Planet Pluto Still A Solar Mystery

by Mark E. Canney
'U' M News Service

Fifty years ago this month, astronomers using faulty assumptions discovered the planet Pluto quite by accident.

Now astronomers wonder if the movements of Uranus and Neptune, observed by the astronomers who predicted the discovery of Pluto and used as the basis of that prediction, ever occurred. Further, there is some doubt that Pluto is indeed a planet at all.

"An honest mistake made almost simultaneously by two astronomers led to the discovery of Pluto," said Kris Davidson, a University of Minnesota astronomy professor.

In January 1930, astronomer Clyde Tombaugh detected a barely visible planet among 20 million other equally bright or brighter objects in the sky. Using a new 13-inch telescope at the Lowell observatory in Flagstaff, Ariz., Tombaugh photographed the small planet for the first time on Jan. 21, 1930.

Existence of a ninth planet in our solar system had been predicted by astronomers Percival Lowell and W. H. Pickering near the beginning of the century. They based their predictions on what seemed to be irregularities in the orbital paths of the two closest planets, Uranus and Neptune.

Both Lowell and Pickering concluded that the irregularities they observed had to be the result of gravitational force exerted by another planet.

Astronomers now know that if there were irregularities in the paths of Uranus and Neptune, they could not have been caused by Pluto. The planet is just too small to have changed the orbits of the two larger planets in the magnitudes suggested by Lowell and Pickering.

"It was absolutely by accident that Pluto was discovered," Davidson said.

A story in the January issue of Mercury magazine states that there is a possibility another planet may have been the cause of a slight perturbation in the orbits of Neptune and Uranus observed by Pickering and Lowell. But Davidson disagrees. "Astronomers today doubt whether the orbits of Neptune and Uranus were ever really affected at all," he said.

Errors in processing data gathered from early observations of Uranus and Neptune could be responsible for what seemed like faulty orbits for the two planets, he said.

Based on the work of Lowell and Pickering, the Lowell observatory (initially funded by the same Lowell who first predicted Pluto's existence) invited Tombaugh to join the observatory staff and search for Pluto.

Using a 13-inch telescope equipped with a camera, Tombaugh began what was to be a year-long search for the mysterious "Planet X."

Tombaugh used the basic technique for searching out new planets. He took photographs of a given area of the sky, and then took a second set of photos of the same region at a later time for comparison. Since planets move relative to the stars that make up their background, a planet will show up in a different area of the sky on each subsequent photo.

Once the photos were developed, Tombaugh placed them in an apparatus called a blink comparator, where the change in position of an object on two photos becomes evident.

Reporting on the tedious search for "Planet X," Tombaugh listed the precautions he had to take: he first had to select photo plates of like age and sensitivity, then judge carefully the sky transparency and sky light, use the same guide star for a reference point, use equal exposure time for the photo plates, and avoid moonlight.

These precautions were crucial, since the movement of "Planet X" could be seen only if the photographs were taken two or three days apart.

On January 23 and 29, 1930, Tombaugh came upon an image that showed planetary movement correct for a celestial body a billion miles beyond Neptune's orbit. Neptune was the most distant known plant in our solar system. He was convinced he had found "Planet X."

"Thereupon, I informed the director (of Lowell observatory) and other members of the staff, who came to take a look," he wrote in a 1946 report.

News of his discovery was telegraphed to the Harvard college observatory on March 13, 1930; from there it was announced to the world, and appeared in a front-page story in the New York Times. A few months later, "Planet X" was named Pluto after the ruler of Hades from Greek mythology.

We now know much more about the mysterious "Planet X" and, according to Davidson, Pluto may not be a planet at all.

While there has never been a clear-cut definition of a planet, planets are normally thought to be made of rock, Davidson said. Recent observations of Pluto made by astronomers of the U.S. naval observatory, however, show that Pluto is probably made of ice, making it more like an asteroid than a planet, he said.

But Pluto does follow the planet pattern in other ways. Traditionally, planets are said to move with respect to the stars, which Pluto does. Pluto revolves around the sun in a regular orbit, as do the other planets.

But Pluto is quite a bit smaller than the other eight planets in our solar system. Only about the size of Earth's moon, Pluto is one-eighth the weight of the moon and one-seven-hundredth the weight of Earth, figures that were recently calculated as a result of the 1978 discovery of a tiny moon that revolves around Pluto.

Further, Pluto's orbital path around the sun is extremely lopsided. In fact, Davidson said, Pluto swung inside Neptune's orbit in January 1979, and will be closer to the sun than Neptune is for the next 20 years.

Pluto may not be the last planet discovered in our solar system, Davidson said.

"It is possible that there are other planets in our solar system so distant in their orbits that we have not been able to detect them," he said.

League Of Cities Laments Inflation

If your utility bill is outdistancing your home mortgage payment, if a service call to repair a home appliance is more costly than the value of the machine, if the cost to own and operate a car rivals your house payments, and you're trying to do all this within an income that is not keeping pace with the cost of living, then you share a common problem with Minnesota cities.

In testimony before the Senate tax committee Wednesday, Roger Peterson, Director of Legislative Affairs for the Association of Metropolitan municipalities, and Mayor of Cottage Grove stated that a recent study conducted by the League of Minnesota cities and the Association of Metropolitan municipalities found that the actual unit cost of goods and services provided by cities is greater than the cost of living as measured by the consumer price index (CPI) at the same time that Minnesota cities with populations over 2500 are locked into spending limits imposed by state law that reflect 1971 economic conditions.

In 1971, the State legislature transferred much of the school funding from the local taxing jurisdictions to the State. To assure that Minnesota taxpayers would receive a resulting reduction in property taxes and that cities, which continued to be funded primarily through local property taxation, would not move into the vacuum created by the shift, the State legislature limited all cities over 500 population to a levy limitation, calculated on a per capita basis, that provided that the revenue a city received from its local property tax levy and revenue distributed through State taxation could not increase more than six per cent over the amount derived from these sources the year before. In 1973, through arguments by city representatives that city elected officials represent the unit of government closest to the people and therefore are most accountable to local taxpayers, particularly in smaller communities, the State legislature was persuaded to remove levy limitations from Minnesota cities with populations under 2500.

For cities with 2500 population and above the limitations continue to exist substantially the same as when enacted into law in 1971. What appeared to be reasonable transition limitations at a time when the cost of living was increasing at approximately six per cent and energy costs were minimal, Peterson contends, are a substantial hardship in today's political and economic climate.

Peterson testified that the League and Association study showed that for $100 of buying power in 1971, the CPI indicates that it took $188 in 1979 to buy the same level of goods and services. Because the services that cities provide are labor intensive, meaning that a high percentage of your city's budget goes for wages and salaries, and involves a high level of energy use, the cost of city goods and services costing $100 in 1971 cost $208 in 1979. Minnesota cities with 2500 population and above could not spend more than $165 for these services. To the public, cities have continued to maintain a relatively stable level of service to their inhabitants. . .much in the same way that consumers have continued to experience a continuing standard of living.

In order to maintain their standard of living, families had to find an additional source of income. For many, this meant that a spouse, formerly working within the home, joined the job market. Cities too had to find an additional source of income if they were to maintain a stable level of service. Peterson said that cities were able to cope with levy limitations by diverting Federal revenue sharing monies from capital investment programs to cover operating expenses, by utilizing the Federal Comprehensive Employment Training act (CETA) which assists local units of government to continue personnel at minimum cost, by laying off employees, particularly in the planning and development areas, and by curtailing programs and services or by funding, where possible, these activities through user fees. What has cities apprehensive is that the CETA program has been cut-back, political talk about balancing the federal budget has city officials nervous about the continuing existence of revenue sharing, and nine years of paring back city personnel, programs, and services have left cities in a tight spot. Of the one hundred and sixty-seven Minnesota cities under levy limits, eighty-three of them are at their levy limit with an additional twenty-one cities within five per cent of their levy limit.

City officials point out that even if the federal government continues to provide revenue sharing monies to cities to keep them afloat in the short run, the long-term affect on cities will be disasterous. Jerry Splinter, city manager of Brooklyn Center points out that, although bonded debt is not included within levy limit constraints, cities do not have the revenue to adequately maintain the city's infrastructure; the streets, buildings, pipes, mains, and physical structures through which cities provide many of their services; nor can it afford the personnel necessary for developing a capital replacement program.

It appears to Peterson and the city organizations that something needs to be done soon to avoid a "cities crisis" in the early 80's. Outside revenue and manpower sources are drying up, cities have pared back in both services and personnel, and inflation is still sky rocketing. Peterson suggests that:

1. City limits be allowed to increase at the rate of the Consumer Price Index which is still lower than the actual cost of goods index.
2. State programs mandated to local government be fully funded by the state or that cities be allowed to special levy for their cost.
3. New commercial and industrial project tax base be allowed fully to increase the cities levy base rather than only help offset other existing property tax.

Peterson concluded by indicating that even if all these suggestions were implemented, the effect on the local property tax would be minimal since the city share of the property tax is only 15 per cent of the total property tax on the average in the metropolitan area and only slightly higher as a percentage in outstate Minnesota.

Convenience Foods Cheaper

Columnist Arthur Rowse, writing in the Midland Cooperator publication, presents some interesting information regarding convenience foods. Contention for some time has been that convenience of prior processing makes a higher cost justifiable. Rowse points out that the cost may actually be lower. Here is what he writes:

By now, nearly everyone who shops for food knows that prices are usually higher for so-called convenience products — the ones prepared before they are packaged.

The latest study by the U.S. department of agriculture reveals that homemade versions of popular products are cheaper per serving for about three-fourths of meat and poultry items, about half of fish items, half of fruits and vegetables and nearly two-thirds of baked goods and desserts.

When 25 home recipes were adjusted for the same ingredients and proportions as convenience dishes, the average cost per serving was 14 per cent lower for home-prepared foods than for one prepared by commercial companies.

But store prices are only part of the cost of eating. Fuel has become a significant factor and so has the cost of a cook's time, especially for people who work outside the home and have a premium on their own time.

It also depends on whether the cooking is done with gas or electricity.

When the cook's time is included at $4.73 per hour, 24 of 41 convenience food products turn out to be cheaper than home-prepared versions done on a gas stove, according to the USDA. When electricity is used, 25 convenience foods are cheaper.

Most of the convenience vegetable products cost the same or less than home-prepared or fresh versions when fuel and labor costs were added.

And all but one of the 14 prepared baked products and desserts are less expensive than the same items cooked at home after including fuel and labor costs.

Some of the biggest cost differences are in baby foods. USDA researchers found that the cost per serving of beef liver was 83.2 cents, including cooking and pureeing, 57.6 cents for merely pureeing food already prepared for the family and only 35.8 cents for commercially-processed products.

Another item costing more to prepare at home was yeast rolls. The cost per serving was 15.7 cents at home, compared to 10.9 cents for the complete mix, 7.2 cents for the frozen version and 7.1 cents for heat-and-serve.

Convenience items that are more expensive that home-prepared include frozen pizza, frozen shrimp newburg, frozen turkey tetrazzini, frozen chicken a la king and frozen lasagna.

Where The Balance Lies

Columnist Ron Lindquist of the Morris Tribune wrote the following column recently:

The Rev. Norman Vincent Peale used the forum provided by a Boy Scout award to his radio program recently to issue a familiar-sounding appeal for more of the "good news." The apostle of positive thinking urged the media to write stories that would help Americans "feel better about ourselves."

As an organization that prints an assorted variety of news, the Sun and Tribune has developed a certain resistance to this viewpoint. To begin with, we suspect that most readers, Dr. Peale apparently included, don't realize how much good news does sneak into the media. Often, it comes under the heading of "human interest" and it may be heart-warming, tear-jerking or laugh-provoking. In any case, it is set apart sharply from the "Two dead in freak three-car accident" variety.

As for the considerable representation of the not-so-good in our, and every other newspaper's, news columns, we don't see this coming to an early end. This assessment is based on our understanding of what is news.

As we see it, news represents, very roughly, a departure from the ordinary. (Hence the name.) Try as we might, we could not stir reader interest in a report that 15,000 customers of the local power company enjoyed uninterrupted service yesterday. News is when a storm topples tree branches onto power lines, and 600 of those customers lose their power.

There are exceptions to this rule, as to most others. If Amtrak's on-time performance suddenly escalated from dismal to splendid — or even so-so — that would be news, alright, and news right up Dr. Peale's alley.

We intend to go on printing good news, not only where we find it, but also where we hear a rumor that it may be lurking. As to making Americans "feel better about ourselves" though, we aren't sure that's a worthy enterprise for a newspaper.

We all should feel about ourselves as we are entitled to feel, based on the degree to which our conduct has met the criteria posed by conscience, law and rights of others. This newspaper is not about to fuss over that stern analysis with any rosy clouds of reflected glory. Let's look at the good, the bad and the in-between, and then think positively about where the balance lies.

Ills Of Democracy

Rep Robert E. Bauman of Maryland, chairman of the American Conservative union, had the following to say recently about the FBI operation disclosing acceptance of bribes by members of Congress:

Reactions in Washington to the FBI's recent sting operation, "ABSCAM," have ranged from indignation to heartsick shame. I find myself sickened at the thought that eight Members of the U.S. Congress could be implicated in such a greedy and opportunistic scheme. The American people don't deserve this insult, nor does the institution of the United States Congress.

The questions raised by the investigation itself are disturbing. Were those snared the victims of entrapment? Did the FBI over-reach its legal authority? And most disturbing of all, how can these ungoverned leaks to the media be justified in the light of the due process of law? These questions will surface again and again in the coming weeks. Meanwhile, Capitol Hill is reeling from this blow to its integrity.

Eight years after Watergate shook the American political system, Americans' cynicism about their representatives in Washington still runs strong. In 1978, a mere 35 per cent of the voting age population bothered to cast their ballots, in contrast to 1970's 43.5 per cent. A national Gallup poll conducted in June of 1979 showed that 61 per cent of Americans disapprove of the job that Congress is doing; in Maryland's First District, according to my own poll from November, 1979, that figure is a depressing 80 per cent.

Neither party stands to gain from the blemishes of disgrace. Rather, the increased demoralization of voting age Americans — with the reasoning that things will never get better, so what's the use of voting? — will only insure that those officials who should be removed from office will stay there without the voter indignation to drum them out.

Congress, for its part, must respond to this crisis of faith quickly and impartially. Investigations in both Houses must begin without delay, for without them, the presumption of criminality in Congress will grow to certainty among Americans. Our political system does work, and well. We must reaffirm the public trust which is mutual between the American people and their elected representatives. Without the trust our 204-year-old Republic would be morally bankrupt.

In the face of issues which require the attention and deliberation of the Congress and the American people, we must fight back against scandal with the most precious resource our political system has: the active participation of the electorate.

The late Governor Alfred E. Smith of New York perhaps defined the cure best when he said, "All the ills of democracy can be cured by more democracy." I couldn't agree more.

Borrowed Nonsense:

Olaf and Lars had each bagged a moose in the wilds of Canada and the bush pilot arrived to pick them up from the hunt. Concerned about the weight of the moose, the pilot was assured by the two hunters that he should tie one moose to each wing to distribute the weight. "That's what we did last year," Lars affirmed.

The task accomplished, the plane labored across the lake, struggled mightily to lift off and then nosed into the waves. The plane, pilot and moose were lost but Lars and Olaf struggled to shore. "Where are we?" Lars asked. "Ay tink," Olaf replied, "about vun hundred feet further den last year."

"Have you ever been arrested?" stated the question on the job application. The next question, intended for those who answered the first in the affirmative, asked "Why?" After writing "no" in the first blank, the eager applicant wrote in the second: "Never been caught."

Common Misconceptions About Electric Rates Cleared Up

By Jay B. Kennedy

Let's shed some light on electricity bills!

Who's paying what and why? Misconceptions can cloud public thinking as states consider electric rates. Let's look clearly at some of the facts:

Misconception No. 1: Homeowners are subsidizing industrial electricity use.

Fact: Residential electricity consumers are not paying more for electricity so industrial consumers can get a "bargain" rate. In fact, in most cases, it's the other way around. Studies show that power companies earn a higher return rate on invested capital from industrial customers than from residential ones. If industrial customers didn't provide such good revenues for utilities, the utilities would have to get the revenues from homeowners.

Misconception No. 2: Industry gets "bargain" or "promotional" electric rates.

Fact: Rates are based on the cost of providing service to each class of consumer—industrial, commercial, residential. Large users often pay lower unit prices because it costs less to bring a kilowatt hour of electricity to a large user (such as a factory) than to a single-family home.

Misconception No. 3: Penalizing industry would help people.

Fact: If every customer paid the same for every kilowatt hour of electricity used—industry would pay rates substantially higher than the cost of providing their service. The higher rates to industry would be passed on to everybody who buys industrial goods and services. Money saved on the light bill would be lost on the bills paid for food, clothes, other consumer items and transportation.

Misconception No. 4: Large industrial users are to blame for peak demands for electricity.

Fact: Residential and commercial customers put the strains on supply systems. They exhibit sharp variations in their demands that require expensive, inefficient units to serve their daily peaks.

Misconception No. 5: Uncle Sam has all the answers.

Fact: The Public Utility Regulatory Policies Act doesn't mandate adoption of any rate-reform measure. It says states have to take a look at those specified in the law. But guidance and money from Uncle Sam is apt to engender some waffling at the level of state regulation, and some expectation that "the real information" will flow from Washington.

The energy problem is really not a dream, and dealing with it requires clear thinking and decision not dictated by politics or emotion. Three principles can serve all consumers in this process:

- An adequate, reliable supply of electricity for everybody must be assured. We will have "spot shortages" of electricity if somebody stops the installation of adequate capacity.
- Fair share, cost-of-service prices are equitable for everybody. Tinkering with prices can only put off—and probably make worse—the necessary economic consequences.
- Regulation of electricity has to remain a state and local matter. What works in one state will not necessarily work in another.

U.S. Senator

Rudy Boschwitz reports to Minnesota

President Carter Should Urge Dept. of Energy Gasohol Support

Gasohol has been a serious topic of discussion in Washington and around the country since the gas shortage of last summer and the resultant increase in prices. Now, President Carter has put forth his program for development of the alcohol-gasoline mixture as a fuel.

I am, of course, pleased that the President is pushing for the development of gasohol. I have long advocated promotion of this fuel and co-sponsored legislation in the Senate to spur its development and production.

It would be good for President Carter to announce his support for the programs now being considered in Congress and encourage his department of Energy to support these measures. If anything, the Department of Energy has been hindering the progress of this legislation and in effect the development of gasohol in large quantities.

Gasohol is far from a new idea and no one can take credit for its invention. It is plain and simple the mixture of alcohol which has been around since the beginning of time and gasoline which has been in existence for more than a century. However, we can all work together to promote its production and that will take a bipartisan effort which will be good for everyone.

As part of the Congress effort to promote gasohol production, the following measures have been proposed and are being considered:

+ Exempting gasohol from the four-cent a gallon tax now levied on gasoline. And, continue this exemption for gasohol through the year 2000.

+ Provide a production tax credit of 40 cents a gallon for alcohol over 190 proof and 30 cents a gallon for alcohol of 150 to 190 proof. This would not be a credit for each gallon of gasohol, but rather on the alcohol which is used to make gasohol.

+ Loan guarantees of up to 15 billion to be granted over the next five years to small and medium sized alcohol production facilities. This is some $2 billion more than called for by the President. I have co-sponsored the loan guarantee program in the Senate.

+ A 10 per cent investment tax credit for equipment used to produce liquids or gases from biomass sources. This would include alcohol production. This credit would be authorized through 1982.

With minor adjustments, these are the same measures being promoted by the President now.

There is an energy shortage in this country and there is a need for production of gasohol in large quantities. It is the kind of fuel that can reduce our dependence on foreign oil sources and provide a market for our own agricultural products and wastes.

These facts are not in dispute. Congress and the Administration both have advocated and worked on programs to promote gasohol production. But, it does seem strange that the President would promote his own program which is little changed from that of the Congress, when he could have simply supported the congressional efforts and urged the Department of Energy to do so.

If the administration wants to accomplish the production of gasohol which is so desperately needed, it would be better to support the measures presently before the Congress rather than introducing his own measure. The slightly different version of the same plan, offered by the President, can do little more than muddy the waters on capitol hill and delay progress toward the flow of gasohol.

We should all be working to speed up the process and not slow it down,

A COMMON BACK YARD scene to Gail and Lillian Rux are these deer the couple have obtained within the past few months. The three white-tailed deer and two black fallow deer are the beginning of a profitable hobby Gail and his wife Lillian have already come to enjoy. It has always been Gail's dream to some day have a game farm, he said.

Game Farm Dream Turns Into Truth For Gail Rux

by Bonnie Reed
Times Reporter

February in northwestern Minnesota... a weekend drive in the country. We spot five deer huddled together, their eyes staring at us from behind the security of their new home.

The scene is a common one for Gail and Lillian Rux, owners of five deer — three white tails from Deerland in Brainerd and two black fallow deer from Germany.

And the Rux family will begin to grow beginning this spring and summer when Gail and his wife acquire approximately 191 birds from various sections of the World, along with a variety of other animals.

Gail often just sits inside his home — 30 yards from the deer pen — and watches the black deer hopping on all fours like huge rabbits, he said. The Rux home is situated six miles west and one mile north of St. Hilaire. The couple has six acres of land now, with two acres of that eventually being enclosed with an eight foot fence for a home for the deer.

Gail hasn't decided yet what he is going to do once he has all of his animals together on his game farm, he said. "There aren't any game farms in this area, so when I have the pens all set up, I might have people come to look at the animals. But that's just in the thinking stage."

He has also thought of selling or trading his animals for other animals on other game farms, he said.

"Some people take their animals to shows all over and display them, too," he said.

Gail plans to buy an incubator so that he can hatch out his own birds from the eggs he purchases. A good incubator can hatch large numbers of any variety of eggs, he said, and that is the type he hopes to own.

Caucus Night Tuesday

Preliminary political event which forms the foundation for political activity in Minnesota will take place Tuesday when precinct caucuses are held throughout the state. Six sites for caucuses, three each for the Democrat-Farmer-Labor and Independent-Republican parties, have been designated in Pennington county.

DFL caucuses will be held as follows: Lincoln cafeteria — Thief River Falls wards and townships of North, Rocksbury, Silverton and Smiley;

Bray town hall — City of St. Hilaire and townships of Numedal, Bray, Polk Centre, Norden, Sanders, Black River and Wyandotte; Highlanding hall — City of Goodridge and townships of Cloverleaf, Kratka, Mayfield, Goodridge, Highlanding, Deer Park, Reiner, Star and Hickory.

I-R caucuses have been scheduled in the following locations:

City auditorium — Thief River Falls wards and townships of North, Smiley, Silverton and Rocksbury; Kurt Marben will preside;

Goodridge school — City of Goodridge and township of Cloverleaf, Deer Park, Goodridge, Hickory, Highlanding, Kratka,

Cut In Highway Funding Shows Up In Load Limits

Impact of reduced state trunk highway funding is beginning to show up in the form of lower permissible truck axle loading during the coming spring, according to Robert Wolfe, Bemidji district engineer for the Minnesota department of transportation.

Prior to announced cutbacks in highway projects last August, Wolfe said he was optimistic regarding the development of a minimum 10-ton route network and a good maintenance resurfacing program to repair road failures. Now he says the 14 counties in northwestern Minnesota were "hardest hit by the cutbacks with only three projects still programmed and one of those is doubtful due to a decline (-9.5 per cent) in motor fuel consumption."

The district engineer points out that one of the early signs of a faltering road repair program is reduced spring road restrictions. State roadways generally carry nine-ton legal axle loadings throughout the year with the exception of some roadways which — due to a weakness during the critical spring period — have reduced allowable axle loading ranging from four to eight tons. The normal "weak" spring restriction period runs from about the middle of March to June 1.

"During this two and one-half month period," Wolfe said, "people in northwestern Minnesota are directly affected. The limits have impact on timber and grain haulers, school buses, community services and retail goods movement, all of which ultimately result in higher costs to the public."

Lack of a continuing road repair program has accelerated the deterioration of state roadways which will now require reduction in spring axle loading from last year's figures, the engineer added. Reductions pointed out include the following:

Highway 1 from Redlake to highway 72, reduced from seven tons last year to five tons this year; Highway 11 from the east junction of highway 72 at Baudette to the junction with highway 71, reduced from six to five tons; Highway 71 from Northome to Big Falls, reduced from seven to five tons; Highway 87 from the junction with highway 71 at Park Rapids to highway 64, reduced from five to four tons; highway 92 and 222 from Oklee to Trail, reduced from nine to seven tons; the highway 6 from Deer River north to highway 1, reduced from six to five tons. Oklee will not have a nine-ton road outlet this spring.

Two additional major grain routes that were considered for reduced spring tonnage but will be deferred until 1981 are highway 32 between Red Lake Falls and Marcoux corner and highway 200 between Ada and highway 32. State maintenance crews will patch these sections in an attempt to hold their load carrying capability at 1979 levels, Wolfe said.

"Seasonal 10-ton routes are extremely important to the grain industry and will also face greater restrictions in 1980," the engineer added. "For some routes, the nine-ton axle limit that is normally posted only during the spring will now be extended longer, probably to late summer or early fall."

Seasonal 10-ton routes which Wolfe said are showing distress and will have longer periods of nine-ton restriction include highway 2, eastbound

City Council Meets Tonight

City council will meet this evening at 7:30 p.m. due to conflicts in precinct caucuses conducted tomorrow evening — the regularly scheduled date for the meeting. Meeting will be conducted in the council room in the city auditorium.

Property Tax Bills Get Smiles, Frowns

Either smiles or frowns will be on the faces of Pennington county property owners as they get their property tax bills in the mail in the next few weeks, according to Gerard DeHaan, county assor.

"Some property owners will be smiling because they'll find their property tax bills have dropped substantially," he said. "Others will be frowning as they find their tax bills are higher."

The smiles and frowns will come as the result of a far-reaching decision of the Minnesota tax court last year, plus steps taken by the governor and legislature in reaction to the decision, according to Clyde E. Allen Jr., state revenue commissioner.

Last February the tax court ruled that the use of limited market value in determining property tax bills — in effect since 1973 — is unconstitutional.

The limited market value was designed as a measure to hold down the amount of year-to-year increases in the value at which property can be taxed.

The decision means that the state will have to go back to its pre-1973 use of market value. Market value — referred to as the estimated market value on property tax bills — is the assessor's estimate of what a property should sell for on the market today.

As mounting inflation pushed up the selling prices of property — especially farms and homes — the assessor's estimate of market values far outstripped the amount of increase the law allowed under the limited market value formula.

Under the state's property tax system, a property's value leads to determining the share of local government costs the owner must pay. The larger the value of one person's property in comparison with that of other property owners in the community, the bigger the share of local government costs he or she must pay.

In most cases, the limited market value formula held down the value used for determining a person's share. As a result, going back to using full estimates of market value could have resulted in large tax increases for the state's property owners whose property values have climbed rapidly because of inflation.

But, Allen points out, instead of making an immediate switch to taxing property on its market value, the governor and legislature worked out a

Movement To License Homes Promoted

T.R.F. Day Care: They Care . . . We Care

HELP FROM MOM is given to five-year-old Kelly by Mrs. Sue Krause, who operates a group home to provide day care for children of working parents in Thief River Falls. Mrs. Krause is a Thief River Falls native who has returned to make her home here and is concerned that parents be more selective and involved in the care their children receive. Her concern, and the starting of her own day care center, grew out of an unpleasant day care experience with Kelly.

Sue Krause knows children can't select their parents, but she believes parents should be very careful how they select day care for their children. Too often, it seems, the mother who agonizes over what brand of peanut butter to buy in the grocery store doesn't hesitate to drop her child off at the first daytime babysitter she can find.

"Kids deserve better than that," Mrs. Krause says. "Chances are that the mother won't be making a bad choice but she really shouldn't leave that decision to chance. She should be asking herself, and the child care provider, a few questions before entrusting a child to that person's care."

Kruase is in the child care business herself, primarily because of an unhappy experience she had with day care for her own child. The former Sue Delorme, she married and moved from Thief River Falls in 1971 when her husband, Alan Krause, went into military service. They came back here in 1974 and Alan teaches in the Thief River Falls school system.

"I was working at the time and leaving Kelly (now five years old) with a sitter," she says about her own experience. "Kelly was only a few months old. When I'd pick her up in the evening she would be soaking wet from top to bottom, maybe hadn't been changed all day. I didn't want my child to just lie in a playpen all day. I decided I could do a lot better myself, so I quit my job and started caring for other children in August of 1974."

Since that time she has taken an active interest in the licensing of child care homes and the type of care they provide. She is the primary advocate locally for improved child care and is a regional coordinator for the food program now available to licensed day care centers through the the U.S. department of agriculture. If you want the full rationale behind the newly-formed child care association here, all you have to do is ask Sue.

"Did you know there are now 18 licensed child care homes in Thief River Falls?" she asked.

That many?

"And 21 unlicensed ones," she added.

That you know about?

"That we know about," she agreed. "A person can run a child care home without a license for one of several children from another family, but if they care for children from more than one family other than their own, a license is required."

Sue thinks one of the questions parents should ask of potential child care providers is if the home is licensed. Licensure alone will not guarantee excellence in child care, but it will assure the parent that efforts are being made to comply with licensing provisions which are set forth with the child's interests at heart.

To be licensed as a family care home and permitted to care for up to five children other than family per day, a person must make application and have the home inspected by a representative of the county social services office. The potential operator must take 12 hours of training available locally through the area vocational technical institute's adult evening program.

Operators of the home must pass a physical examination and provide three character references. The home itself must be equipped with a smoke detector and smoke alarm and have a stipulated square footage of space per child to be brought for day care. The county social services board must approve the application and home inspections will be made several times each year.

To be licensed as a group home (only two of the 18 licensed homes in Thief River Falls are group homes), a house must be inspected by the fire marshal and the operator must have at least one year of experience in providing child care. Thirty hours of training are required annually, there is usually a zoning variance required in residential areas and an assistant must be hired if an infant is among the children brought for care.

Sue estimates that there may be a couple of hundred children left in day care situations in Thief River Falls each work day — probably less than half of them in licensed facilities. A list of licensed homes is available through the social services center and the child care association, but most licensed homes are usually filled; the demand generally exceeds the supply.

"It's not a competitive sort of thing," Mrs. Krause said. "Those of us who are licensed want to see a lot more homes licensed so that youngsters separated from their parents all day receive quality care. We want them to have the best of two homes. That's why we encourage unlicensed homes who are interested in becoming licensed to become members of our child care

SOCIETY and CLUBS

Janette L. Brown And Peter A. Mosbeck Wed

Janette Laurel Brown and Peter Allen Mosbeck exchanged marriage vows at an ecumenical wedding ceremony at St. Francis Xavier Catholic church at Oklee.

The bride is a daughter of Mrs. Lorraine Brown of Oklee. Parents of the groom are Mr. and Mrs. Veral Mosbeck, rural Red Lake Falls.

Officiating at the double ring ceremony were Rev. Keough Patnode and Rev. Keith Prekker. Mrs. Walter Annenson, a friend of the bride, was the organist. She played "Nadia's Theme," for the processional. During the ceremony Mrs. Sherman Knutson, Jr., and Stuart Peterson, friends of the couple, sang "Devoted To You," "Song of Ruth," and "The Lord's Prayer."

Baskets of fresh flowers, accented with wheat and orange bows, graced the altar which was centered with a wedding candle surrounded by matching flowers. Orange bows and wheat marked the pews.

The bride was escorted to the altar by her grandfather Thomas Toulouse. She was attired in a bridal gown of white chiffon styled with a fitted bodice featuring a sheer yoke edged with a deep Chantilly lace ruffle. Lace formed the stand-up, banded collar and the wide ruffled cuffs on her shadow bishop sleeves. The skirt, with apron effect, and the chapel-length train were also edged with a Chantilly lace flounce. Venice lace and seed pearls trimmed her profile headpiece and complemented her fingertip veil. She carried a bouquet of orange, copper and white silk flowers with accents of wheat, babies' breath and orange ribbon streamers.

Mrs. John Gunderson and Mrs. Sherman Knutson, Jr., were the bride's personal attendants.

Maid of honor was Cindy Mosbeck, Red Lake Falls, sister of the groom. Bridesmaids were Margaret Lambert, Donna Jensen and Lori Kvasnger of Oklee, all friends of the bride. Their orange, floor-length, empire-fashioned gowns featured long, gathered sleeves, princess necklines, and pleated skirts. In their hair, they wore a solitary orange flower with babies' breath. They carried wicker baskets filled with orange, white and copper flowers, babies' breath and white ribbon streamers. Their cameo necklaces were gifts from the bride.

Trisha Desselller of Oklee, a friend of the bride, was miniature bride. She was attired in a gown, similar to the bride's and carried a bouquet of orange, copper and white silk flowers. The rings were carried by Aaron Culkins of Plummer, a friend of the bride. Like the groom, he wore a white tuxedo with tails, an orange ruffled shirt, white bow tie and an orange boutonniere with babies' breath.

Stuart Peterson, Thief River Falls, a friend of the groom, was best man. Groomsmen were Kelly Mosbeck, Gary Mosbeck, cousins of the groom, and Paul Mosbeck, a brother of the groom, all of Red Lake Falls. Serving as ushers were Robert Earl, cousin of the bride; Steve Mosbeck, cousin of the groom, and Dallas Johnson, a friend of the groom. They wore toast colored tuxedos with brown velvet trim, orange ruffled shirts and orange boutonnieres.

The mother of the bride was attired in a copper colored floor-length gown with a corsage of white orchids and orange silk flowers. The groom's mother wore an orange heathered gown with a corsage of white orchids, accented with peach silk flowers.

Honor guests were Thomas Toulouse, grandfather of the bride; Mrs. Auggie Anderson and Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Mosbeck, grandparents of the groom.

Following the ceremony, the bride's mother hosted a reception in the church parlors for approximately 400 relatives and friends. Hosts and hostesses were Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Melin and Mr. and Mrs. Dewey Lambert, Mr. and Mrs. Tim Loeffler registered the guests as Leona Culkins and Mari Lynn Mandt served the punch.

Centering the serving table was a three-tiered Lady Windermere wedding cake, iced in white and decorated with doves, wedding bells and orange silk flowers. Topping the cake was a golden cross and an arrangement of white and orange flowers accented with wheat. The cake was cut and served by Mrs. Oscar Mosbeck and Mrs. Don Earl. Mrs. Auggie Anderson and Mrs. Dean Toulouse poured as Mrs. Maurice Nichlay distributed the groom's cake.

Waitresses were Sharon Jensen, Jennifer Cyr, Jean Lindquist, Kathy Cyr and Lynn Christianson. Laurie and Molly Toulouse arranged the gifts and Lynn Toulouse and Lynn Earl were in charge of the rice packets and thank-you scrolls.

Following a wedding trip to the Black Hills of South Dakota, the couple is now at home in rural Red Lake Falls. The bride is a graduate of Oklee high school and the University of Minnesota, Crookston. She is currently employed at Kmart in the apparel department. The groom, a graduate of Lincoln high school, is engaged in farming west of St. Hilaire. Photo, Nordlund Photography, Shevlin.

Common Cold Continues To Baffle Science

Are your eyes red and watering? Is your nose dripping? Do you ache all over? Is your throat tingling and burning?

If you are experiencing this set of symptoms, chances are that you have one of the more than one billion colds which Americans experience every year.

With each passing year researchers are learning more about the common cold and its causes.

Minnesota Medical association lists the following facts about this baffling malady which to date has eluded a cure.

Colds are caused by tiny disease carrying organisms called viruses. There are about 100 known types of viruses capable of producing the symptoms which we refer to as the common cold. A true cold is an infection which may involve one or more of these viruses.

Bacteria related disorders are probably secondary infections. Researchers now feel that colds are harder to spread than originally thought. Fresh colds appear to be more contagious than older ones. Children's colds are probably more contagious than those experienced by adults.

Exact relationship of chilling or exposure to dampness and "catching a cold" is still a topic of discussion among medical researchers.

Powerful antibiotics will not cure a cold. They are very effective in curing secondary infections — which can sometimes complicate a cold. These antibiotics should never be taken without a doctor's prescription. Effectiveness of drugs may be reduced with overuse. Cold treatment is directed toward the relief of the discomfort of the symptoms which ordinarily accompany a cold. Ordinarily the physician will prescribe bed rest and reduced physical activity. He may prescribe mild medications to relieve headache, aching joints and reduce fever.

Value of cold vaccines has not yet been established. There is no evidence that any particular food, special clothing, or exposure to sunlight or fresh air will have any significant effect on colds.

Although there has been some research which indicated that vitamin C might help prevent or lessen colds, the preponderence of research evidence indicates that this product is of doubtful value.

When should you call a doctor about a cold?

—If there is a fever over 101 degrees which lasts for more than 24 hours;

—If there is a bloody discharge from the nose or mouth;

—If there are chest pains which reoccur or persist — this could mean the presence of other respiratory disorders;

—If there is a persistant cough — a hard, hacking cough might indicate a problem more severe than a common cold;

—If there is an earache — This complication common to children calls for prompt medical attention;

—If there is a severe or long lasting sore throat — it may indicate a strep infection.

Women-Owned Businesses To Get Contracts

Women business owners are being encouraged to take advantage of new opportunities to obtain government contracts. According to Marlene Johnson, official representative from the National Association of Women Business owners to the White House conference on small business, the issue of procurement was a clear priority of the delegates attending last month's conference in Washington, D.C.

"The small business owners voted to recommend that 50 per cent of all government contracts be awarded to small businesses. That resolution also contains a provision that at least ten per cent of those contracts be awarded to women-owned businesses," said Johnson.

Currently, Minnesota and Chicago chapters of the National Association of Women business owners are working with the Small Business Administration on a program designed to make it easier for women-owned firms to bid on these contracts.

The program, called PASS, Procurement Automated Source System, allows women to fill out one form which then puts information about their business in a central computer used by more than 300 government and private agencies to obtain requests for contracts. Women are being sought in ten midwestern states, including this state.

For more information about PASS contact Kathie Schlick, Executive Director, NAWBO, 400 Sibley St., St. Paul, MN 55101 612-291-7400.

Twp. Spending Increases 14.6 Per Cent In '79

State auditor Arne Carlson recently announced that Minnesota's 1,792 townships increased their 1979 spending by 14.6 per cent over 1978.

"On the other side, the 810,210 people residing in Minnesota townships paid $24.62 per capita in net property taxes during 1979 as opposed to $77.11 being paid by residents of Minnesota cities," Carlson said.

Township expenditures totaled $54.7 million, compared to $46.7 million in the previous year. Road and bridge equipment purchased, road, maintenance and construction costs accounted for 65.4 per cent of total expenditures. General government expenditures were 14.5 per cent, and fire protection amounted to 7.4 per cent. Of the total, $11.4 million was for capital outlays, with 78 per cent going for road construction and road equipment.

"The report shows townships rely on state and federal grants and aids more than on local taxes," Carlson said.

Three major sources of township revenues were — state aids and grants, 38.6 per cent; taxes, 38.1 per cent; and federal revenue sharing, 9.3 per cent, according to the report.

Townships levied 23.8 million in taxes collectible for the period, compared to 21.5 million for fiscal year 1978. Total township revenue was 52.4 million during the period, compared to 48.1 million in fiscal 1978.

Only 70 of the 1,792 townships had outstanding bonded indebtedness, which total 11 million, compared to 10.4 million for fiscal 1978.

Annual report covers the revenues, expenditures, indebtedness, taxable valuations and tax levies of Minnesota townships for the fiscal year ended March 1, 1979. Residents of townships make up about one-fifth of the population of the state.

Copies of the complete report are available through county auditors and in some libraries.

City Of Holt Receives Flora Mercil Gift

City of Holt recently received a gift of a microfilm reader and micro-films of "The Northern Light" and "Holt Weekly News" from Mrs. Flora Hagglund Mercil of Thief River Falls.

Originally named "The Northern Light" when begun by Charles Latta in 1911, the paper changed its name to the "Holt Weekly News" in 1914 when the paper was purchased by a group of local businessmen. Paper consisted of an inner section of "ready print" purchased from the Western Newspaper Union with the front and back pages of local news items printed at the Holt plant.

When Mrs. Mabel Brattell closed down the printing plant in 1952 she stated: "It is with sadness that we have to bow to the inevitable and close down — the direct cause is the suspension of the ready print service which has supplied us all these years. Of the 41 years that joys and sorrows have been recorded as history unfolded itself in Holt, the paper has been in my family for 25 of them."

The paper is a record of history and it was with this thought in mind that Mrs. Mercil presented the gift to the community in which the history was made. Reader and microfilms are located at the Nazareth Lutheran church and will be available to the general public.

A recent report to the American Meat Institute says electrical stimulation of freshly-slaughtered beef carcasses can increase tenderness about 20 per cent.

Lund Boat Co. Additions Aid Manufacturing

Don Spitzley, president of Lund American, Inc., a fishing and pleasure boat manufacturing company owned by Arctic Enterprises, noted additions of over 55,000 square feet in the last year to the New York Mills plant. The new facilities are comprised of more customer service space including a re-vamped warehouse and expanded production facilities.

More than 27,000 square feet designated for customer services provides indoor storage for deluxe boats and a new, expanded loading area complete with four 150-foot loading bays to improve efficiency and speed of boat delivery to and pickup by Lund dealers and distributors.

In addition a series of other efficiency moves by the company has sped up the finished goods handling systems and improved yard storage and accessability to boats.

Production space has also been expanded by 28,000 square feet. This re-vamping will allow for greater craftsmanship on deluxe boats with more space available for their production. Additional efficiency and quality improvements are planned.

According to Lund management, these improvements mean that boats will be produced more efficiently, quickly and with increased quality. They also indicate the company's belief in and commitment to the aluminum boat business and the solid future that lies ahead for Lund American, Inc.

Highway Fund Cut Shows Up In Load Limits

from Marcoux corner to Wilton; highway 59 from the south Polk county line to Erskine; and highway 371 from Hackensack to Walker.

"Two major factors that have brought about this serious situation are inflation and reduced motor fuel consumption," Wolfe said. "The cost of resurfacing and reconstruction of state highways has increased by 21 per cent in 1978 and 17 per cent in 1979. This increase reflects the heavy dependence of highway construction and maintenance on petroleum products.

"Reduced fuel consumption is very desirable to reduce our nation's dependence on foreign oil and is supported by the department of transportation. The fuel tax does, however, represent the major source of income (60 per cent) for highway programs. In past years, the normal growth rate of revenue from tax on fuel was four per cent. Today's projections show a 9.5 per cent reduction for a 13.5 per cent turnaround."

Wolfe said the need for additional revenue was previously presented to the legislature but no action was taken, principally due to the national mood in opposition to tax increases. The department of transportation has devised a four-level plan for project effort to present a clear picture to the 1980 legislature. The four-level projection notes the following situation:

(1) With no increase in highway department income, an additional $150 million in projects would be deferred, no development would take place, roads would further deteriorate and spring load restrictions would be lowered;

(2) Under a preservation program with limited increased income, 20 per cent of the deferred projects would be reinstated, a fair level of maintenance undertaken and a limited response given to development;

(3) A limited development program would allow completion of the Bemidji bypass currently underway, reinstatement of 40 per cent of the deferred projects, adequate maintenance provided, 500 miles of 10-ton routes added to the system, 1,000 miles of nine-ton routes added to the system and response given to most development needs;

(4) A full standards program would allow 400 additional miles of divided highway, full support of development, 100 per cent of deferred projects reinstated, good maintenance, and addition of 6,000 miles of 10-ton routes and 4,000 miles of nine-ton routes.

"The decision that now faces the legislature is one of selecting the level of program effort from the four proposals," Wolfe added. "Several revenue mechanisms are possible, such as an increase in the nine-cent fuel tax, transfer of motor vehicle sales tax from the general fund to the road user fund, transfer of sales tax on vehicles from the general fund to the road user fund, bonding, general revenues, increased motor vehicle license fees and several others."

Staff members of the department are available to explain current problems related to road construction programs and revenue needs. Service clubs, associations or individuals interested in a presentation should contact Wolfe at Box 727, Bemidji, MN 56601.

Wolfe listed the following deferred trunk highway projects and maintenance resurfacing projects in his district as a result of the cutback announced last August:

Property Tax Bills To Draw Mixed Emotion

plan to make the move in two steps.

The first step — effective for this year — was to raise the limited market value of property closer to market value. As a result, property owners will see a limited market value on their property tax bill this year, but it will be for the last time.

In 1981, limited market value will be abandoned altogether, and from then on, property taxes will be based on the market value.

Here are other actions taken by the legislature to help avoid property tax increases resulting from the move to market value:

First, the state will be paying a larger share of home and farm owners' property tax bills through the homestead program.

The state has been paying 45 per cent of home and farm owners' tax bills, up to a maximum of $325. Starting with taxes property owners will pay this year, the state will be picking up 50 per cent of their property tax bill, up to $550.

Second, the state will help reduce farmers' property tax bills by increasing the agricultural school credit. This is a special credit for owners of farm lands, aimed at reducing the amount of their property tax that goes to pay for public schools.

In the past, the state paid $15 for each $1,000 of the assessed value of a farm home and surrounding 160 acres of land.

For this year, the amount of acreage covered by the credit has been increased to 240 acres. (The state will continue to pay $10 for each $1,000 of assessed value of each acre over 240 acres.)

The state has already begun the third step. The state is sending additional state funds back to local communities to help pay for the expenses of schools and local governments.

In addition to the billions of state aid already being sent, the state is going to provide slightly more than $400 million extra for this purpose.

Fourth, the state is changing the formula which assessors are required to use to determine the assessed value of a property. Multiplying the assessed value by the tax rate established by each unit of local government in the community is the final step in determining the size of a property tax bill.

The assessed value is a percentage of the limited market value. The percentages are set by law, according to how the property is used.

For 1980, the legislature has lowered the percentages the assessor must use to multiply the limited market value by to determine the assessed value of homes or farms.

As a result, property tax increases that might have been caused by increasing the limited market value of homes and farms will be offset by a change in formulas for setting assessed value.

The governor's and legislature's action to bring limited market values closer to market values for 1980 means owners of property with a limited market value far below its market value likely will be paying a bigger share of their community's taxes this year than they have in the past.

"But, had the governor and legislature not taken action to cushion the impact of this move to basing property tax on market value, the increase in property taxes would have been even greater," DeHaan said.

Meanwhile, owners of property whose limited market value has been close to its market value all along may see a substantial tax cut this year.

They will benefit from the measures taken by the governor and legislature to offset the effect of raising the limited market value of property whose limited market value is far lower than its market value.

Allen says all of this is being done in an attempt to avoid drastic increases in property taxes that would have been caused by an immediate shift from limited market value to market value.

When the move to market value is complete, the state will have met the tax court's criticism that the use of limited market value does not square with the state and federal constitutions.

Dear friends,

How comforting it would be to the dying to hear, while they still can, all the good things that their friends admire about them. Why should these things be left unsaid until after death? It would be reassuring to know the value their life has been to others.

Respectfully,

Information About Cancer Provided

Since 1976 the cancer information service (CIS) and its toll-free telephone number have served as a ready resource for Minnesotans with questions about cancer. In its 3½ years of operation, the CIS staff have answered over 13,000 inquiries about cancer.

To persons who have just learned they have cancer, and to their families and friends, the questions, fears and misconceptions about cancer and its treatment can be devastating, states CIS supervisor Debra Zaderaka.

Due to the success of the CIS project in Minnesota, the phone service is expanding in early 1980 to include North Dakota and South Dakota.

The Minnesota-Dakotas CIS is part of a nationwide network of statewide, toll-free CIS systems. The project is funded by the National Cancer institute, part of the department of health, education and welfare.

More than 350,000 persons have called the nation's toll-free CIS telephone numbers since the program's inception in 1975. According to B. J. Kennedy, M.D., president of the Minnesota cancer council which sponsors the CIS, the public's fears and confusions about cancer were the chief reasons for the development of the cancer information service.

Purpose of the CIS is to provide free and confidential access to accurate, up-to-date information about cancer and community resources. The CIS does not diagnose cancer or prescribe treatment, but it can answer some of the common questions that people have about the disease.

"The cancer information service cannot replace examinations or discussions with a person's family physician. But people ought to know generally how to protect themselves against cancer and how to cope with the disease once it strikes," said Dr. Kennedy. "The need for accurate, useful information is great."

The toll-free CIS telephone can be valuable in many circumstances. The well-trained CIS staff can provide information about chemicals — from saccharin to farm pesticides — thought to cause cancer. Guidance and support to women anxious about newly discovered breast lumps is another CIS service. The CIS also can be helpful in providing cancer patients and their families with additional information about new research treatments headlined in the press.

The CIS staff of carefully trained professionals and part-time community volunteers stay well-informed with help from the National Cancer institute, the American Cancer society, physician advisory councils, staffs of major medical centers and current medical writings.

Even though the CIS staff members cannot make any personal medical recommendations, they do provide callers with support and understanding. Confusing technical terms can be explained. Local resources are referenced for further help. Often, telephone information is supplemented by free printed materials sent out to callers. In all cases, the calls are kept confidential and persons need not give their names.

"The more people know about cancer, the better they will be able to deal with their own health concerns and to cope with the problems of cancer patients close to them," explained Dr. Kennedy. "They will be less fearful. We know, too, the persons who know what community resources are available to them may feel less alone and lost when they have a problem," he added.

With the Minnesota cancer information service, help is as close as the telephone by dialing 1-800-582-5262. (The new toll-free number for the Dakotas is 1-800-328-5188.) Office hours are weekdays from 8:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. Again, there is no charge for the calls or for any information or printed materials provided.

MSBA Says Proposal Would Add To Strikes

Legislative proposals pending in the Minnesota legislature may add to the record number of teacher strikes across the nation, according to the Minnesota school boards association (MSBA).

Over 170 teacher strikes have been recorded nationally since schools opened last fall. Of that number, one occurred in Minnesota, the MSBA reports.

Proposed amendments to the 1971 public employee labor relations act (PELRA) would give teachers and other school district employees the legal, unlimited right to strike. Teacher strikes are currently legal in Minnesota only if the school board rejects submitting to binding arbitration. Since PELRA was enacted nine years ago Minnesota has faced just 14 teacher work stoppages.

"To allow the unlimited right to strike," said MSBA executive secretary W. A. Wettergren, "would create an imbalance in the negotiations process which may lead to an increase in the number of strikes." Wettergren added that, "MSBA is concerned about a reduction in service, the quality and the image of public education provided to Minnesota students if the number of strikes increases."

According to Wettergren, teacher organization claims that negotiations have lagged behind other years are false. "By mid-February 375 of our 437 independent school districts have settled their contracts. Two years ago the figure was 353," he said.

Wettergren said that "MSBA stands ready to defend the rights of citizens in each local school district to a quality education."

Farley To Be Speaker At UND March 5

Lin Farley, journalist and author of a recent book about sexual harassment of women on the job, will speak at the University of North Dakota Wednesday evening, March 5.

Her talk, titled "Sexual Shakedown: Harassment on the Job and at School," will be given in the memorial union ballroom at 7:30 p.m. It is free and open to the public.

A panel discussion following her remarks will be led by Sheryl O'Donnell, program moderator and assistant professor of English at UND. Panelists will include Robert Laurence, assistant professor of law; Liz Morque, assistant director of the UND placement center; and Pat Hughes, news reporter for WDAZ/TV in Grand Forks.

Farley will also speak to journalism students Thursday morning (March 6) about the problems involved in investigating and reporting on a major and complex social problem. The session will be held at 9:30 a.m. in room 300, Marrifield hall.

That evening, she will conduct a special workshop on how to deal with the problem of sexual harassment on the job. Sponsored by the UND office of women's programs, the session will be held at the River Valley Room of the Memorial Union beginning at 7:30 p.m.

Both Thursday sessions are also free and open to students, faculty and the public.

Slow down and live.

Regional environmental education committee, working under the Minnesota environmental education board, has organized a useful update on flood control for northwestern Minnesota. The public is invited to attend this seminar.

Application Of Farm Chemicals Is Combined

New developments in equipment and technology are providing farmers with a better edge against rising costs for labor, fuel and machinery, according to a recent survey conducted by a major Chemical company.

Many farmers are switching to the combination approach when applying the herbicides and fertilizers that contribute to profitable crop production. Called "weed and feed" systems, as many as three herbicides can be simultaneously teamed up with fertilizers (dry bulk blends, liquid solutions or anhydrous ammonia) and applied in a single trip over the field.

While the weed and feed concept is not new in itself, there have been some recent developments giving it an even higher priority in farmers' crop management decision making.

One of the newest is impregnating herbicides on spring-applied dry bulk fertilizer blends. Dealers and applicators equipped for impregnation are reporting a rapid increase in acres treated, especially among midwest corn growers.

The process involves a relatively simple pump and tank set-up for measuring and mixing the liquid herbicides, then spraying them into the fertilizer blend. As dry fertilizer granules are mixed in the tumbler, they are coated with herbicide. The mixture then is applied in the same manner as dry fertilizer alone, with the exception that the blend needs to be incorporated into the soil soon after application.

Another weed and feed system is mixing herbicides with fluid fertilizers. Several preplant and preemergence herbicides are available for this option. Both farmers and custom applicators cite speed and ease of application as major advantages. Additionally, farmers who self-apply are better able to tailor their plant nutrient and weed control rates to individual fields.

Preplant herbicide and liquid fertilizer mixes can be sprayed in front of various tillage tools for immediate incorporation. As a result, farmers can accomplish several operations in just two trips over the field: secondary tillage and seedbed preparation; fertilizer with herbicide application and incorporation; and planting with a soil insecticide, if needed, applied through the planter.

Still another weed and feed option gaining in popularity among farmers is the cold-flo process. This system applies ammonia (NH3) shallow as a liquid, instead of knifing it in the soil under pressure. At the same time herbicides are applied and worked into the soil.

Irrigators have their own, unique system for weed and feed, especially where center pivot systems are used. Liquid fertilizer and herbicides are injected into the water line and applied to the field while irrigating. This system not only combines operations but eliminates the need for mechanical incorporation of the herbicides.

In the last analysis, farmers have an increasing number of options and technical improvements to save time, labor and fuel in their field operations as a result of weed and feed innovations.

Farmers Union Asks For Crop Diversion Plan

Minnesota farmers' (MFU) union recently called upon Bob Bergland, secretary of the department of agriculture, to announce a 1980 paid diversion program for wheat and feed grain crop acreage, with at least one-half advance payment at the sign-up.

In his request to Bergland, Cy Carpenter, MFU president, stressed the urgency and immediacy of such a diversion program. He cited the increased operating expenses, the inability of farmers to sell their grain crops, and the uncertainty of disposing of carryover stocks as important reasons for this request. "It appears that a certain amount of diversion will be necessary to keep supply in line with demand," he stated. He went on to say that farmers need to know that such a program should be available now, before farmers make their spring planting purchases. Farmers in the southern states are already faced with preparation and planting costs. This will maximize the program's effectiveness by providing farmers with a timely incentive to sign up. Such a program would insure against excess outlay for chemicals and seed and excess grain production and provide much needed capital for operating expenses.

This program will include a working agreement between the USDA and the farmers to divert a percentage of their cash grain acres, which can then be planted in substitute crops such as hay. Beyond the immediate benefits to farmers, it will allow the USDA foreknowledge of the number of acres to be planted in grain crops this season to more effectively regulate the current grain surplus problem.

Bank Robbery Rate Cut By Reward Plan

Minnesota bankers association (MBA) reward program offering up to $5,000 for information leading to the arrest and indictment of bank robbers was initiated one year ago and has contributed to the reduction in the robbery rate in the state, according to Truman L. Jeffers, MBA executive vice president.

Since Feb. 13, 1979 the association has paid $17,750 to individuals in cases involving 13 bank robberies, Jeffers said. Federal Bureau of investigation and Minnesota bankers association concur that the reward program has had a significant impact on state robberies.

Jeffers said there were 77 bank robberies in Minnesota during 1979, a record high in recent years. However, he suggested the total may have been higher without the reward program, and said the robbery rate has slowed considerably.

"The program has a dual purpose," Jeffers said, "to slow the robbery rate while increasing the solution rate for crimes already committed."

Solution rate in Minnesota stands at 66 per cent. Nationally the rate is 49 per cent. FBI statistics also show the average robbery loss in Minnesota is about $4,300 compared to the national average of about $6,400.

The association also conducted a series of educational meetings aimed at reducing the incidence of bank robbery.

"We're working with the philosophy that a bank with well-trained and alert staff is less likely to be robbed than a bank with little or no training," Jeffers said.

Training directed at bank security has been a main thrust of MBA educational programming, according to Jeffers. He said last year MBA held 16 seminars and four workshops on bank security. Over 5,500 bank employees attended those meetings.

"With special equipment and bank employees better informed on robbery techniques, it is becoming increasingly difficult to execute a robbery," he said. "We want to get to a point where a potential robber won't go into a bank because he knows his chance of success is low."

Jeffers said bank robbers is a serious offense which not only affects the safety of bank employees, but also that of the people in the immediate community.

"I hope the public is willing to get involved and if possible identify possible robbery suspects. We want involvement, and that is what our reward program is about."

Citing reward eligibility criteria, he said everyone except law enforcement officers, bank employees and officers of victim banks are eligible for a reward.

Anyone with robbery information should call the Minneapolis FBI at (612) 339-7861.

Anderson To Head Ass'n. Of Newspapers

Kenneth M. Anderson, publisher of the Cottonwood County Citizen, Windom, was elected president of the Minnesota Newspaper association at its annual meeting February 15 in Minneapolis.

He succeeds Jared How, publisher of The Free Press, Mankato. At the same meeting, the group elected a new treasurer, Tom Dutcher, publisher of the Olivia Times-Journal, succeeding E. Neil Mattson of Warren. Other officers elected were Carole Larson, vice president of Larson Publications, Inc. and secretary-treasurer of Minnesota Suburban Newspapers, Inc. as third vice president; L.D. Crime Victims Board Pays On 242 Claims

Minnesota crime victims reparations board handled 420 new cases and paid an average of $1,547 to 242 victims during the 12-month period which ended June 30, 1979, according to commissioner John P. Sopsic of the Minnesota department of public safety. The board's report was issued earlier this year.

Average payment for the period increased $38 from the previous year. Total number of new cases increased from 389 to 420. In the first year of the board's existence in 1975, there were 290 cases with 135 claims paid. The board denied 148 claims during fiscal 1979.

Among claims filed were 261 assaults, 72 homicides, 45 muggings, 37 rapes, three involving personal property and two arsons. Total money paid to the 242 individuals involved was $374,332.

The board actually handled 660 claims during the period but 164 claims filed during fiscal 1979 are still pending and a cumulative total of 185 cases are still to be included.

Appropriations to the board have increased from $100,000 in 1975 to $500,000 in 1979. A total of $456,239 was spent during fiscal 1979.

The board has handled 1,718 cases since it was formed. Claims are paid from state general revenue funds. Occasionally, the state is reimbursed by the person responsible for the crime.

Minnesota crime victims reparations law provides a growth situation for several years to come, according to Duane E. Woodworth, executive director. "Even if crime decreases, the amount of persons eligible to apply who do not is low enough so that as the public becomes aware of this law, the amount of claims presented and dollars awarded will increase," Woodworth said.

The board has three members, appointed by the governor for four-year staggered terms. Present members are attorney Joe Thompson, chairman, Willmar; Dr. Johanna Miller, chairwoman, Minneapolis; and Sheriff John Lyght, Cook county. The board office is at 702 American Center Building, 160 East Kellogg Blvd., St. Paul, 55101.

Anyone desiring information relative to the crime victims reparations board should contact Duane E. Woodworth, executive director at the above address.

Heat Recovery Seminar Set At Moorhead

A seminar for business and industry personnel on the subject of heat recovery will be held at the Moorhead AVTI on Friday, March 14.

Seminar is designed for those involved in the areas of administration, supervision, plant operation, plant engineering, building management, and energy management.

Recovery of waste heat energy is considered an important cost savings factor for many industrial, commercial and institutional organizations.

Sponsored by the Minnesota energy agency, the Moorhead AVTI, and others, the seminar will begin with 8 a.m. registration and continue to 4:30 p.m.

Seminar cost is $30 including coffee breaks, lunch and seminar manual.

Case studies will be used to illustrate the points of the seminar. Examples will be given of various equipment options available to recover heat. Attendees will practice economic analysis to determine if acceptable paybacks can be achieved.

Both low and high temperature applications of waste heat recovery will be presented.

Interested parties should contact the Adult education director at the Moorhead AVTI, (218) 236-6277.

A Good Idea . . . . . . Whose Time Has Gone!

If you would believe your state government, the time to prepare for winter is when it is almost past! At least one can draw that assumption from one of the state's recent promotions.

According to a winter survival proclamation issued by the governor's office, February 13 has been designated in Minnesota as — get this — Winter Preparedness Day". That kind of observance is akin to urging people on December 24 to get their Christmas shopping done early.

Winter preparedness day is a good idea. It would be an appropriate observance in our state where severity of the elements is an expected circumstance for at least half a dozen months. But the time to get ready is scarcely in February. The day would be more appropriate as a reminder in October, or even late September.

We plan to hang on to the material submitted and — if we can find it again — make use of it next fall when it makes more sense to publish it. If northern Minnesotans aren't prepared for winter by now, it's a little late to start getting ready.

What About Recall?

Is an important potential third factor missing in the current proposal to institute a system of initiative and referendum in Minnesota? What about legislating a recall provision to give voters a still greater voice in their government?

Truthfully, we haven't fully made up our mind that initiative and referendum are all that necessary in Minnesota today. We can imagine very little good legislation which proponents could not get legislators to at least introduce and probably to adopt. Similarly, a concerted opposition to bad legislation can usually effect the necessary changes.

But recall is another matter. Once a legislator is elected, he or she can remain in office for a two-year (if a House member) or four-year (if a Senator) term, virtually regardless of performance. The voters from that legislator's district are stuck with the legislator all that time.

With a recall provision, 25 per cent of the voters in the last election (25 per cent is a typical number) could petition for an election in about a month's time and the legislator would have to stand the test of the electorate. Responsible legislators seemingly should have nothing to fear from such a plan. Most likely it would be used very sparingly if at all. But it would be a deterrent to actions flagrantly in opposition to public opinion or in disregard to the majority's desires.

Next time someone in politics mentions initiative and referendum to you, ask about a recall provision. You might be surprised by the reaction.

Milk Making Machine

Following article is from "Dairymen's Digest":

Dairy cows do much more than produce wholesome milk and nutritious meat. Being female, these incredible milk making machines tidy up nature's house and make do with leftovers. They graze where plows cannot go and transform inedible food by-products unfit for human consumption into nourishing and necessary milk.

And cows are naturalists, too. They irrigate and fertilize wherever necessary for future grazing lands and leave enough weed and grass stems for sheep and goats to enjoy. They juggle nature's imbalance and tolerate man's shortsightedness.

Every year dairy cows munch a mountain of some 13 million tons of by-products. Because of microorganisms living in their rumen, cows have the unique ability to transform these worthless materials into nutrients that can be used to produce milk.

Something more from something less is a refreshing change in this era of decreasing expectations. Cows graze placidly while men frets about decreasing oil supplies and sometimes overlooks his four-footed natural resource.

Animal agriculture is being challenged today as a luxury our modern society can no longer afford. Some contend that grain produced on an acre of land should be fed directly to humans and not be converted into animal products. Others suggest eating less meat in this country would solve world hunger elsewhere.

That simply is not true.

Feed for dairy cows consists mainly of rough, fibrous materials unsuitable for man, or course feed grains man doesn't eat in large amounts. In addition, cows forage on lands that would provide little or nothing to human food requirements. In fact, taking cows out of the food producing business, would actually decrease the food available for human consumption.

The dairy cow is the most efficient farm animal in converting forage and grain into food. Future agricultural planning should concentrate on crop and animal production that will provide the greatest yield for the lowest cost. It is estimated that cows can be maintained on a ration of 80-100 per cent non-grain feeds.

Every year about 350,000 acres of farm land on the fringes of America's suburbs are taken out of crops and turned into condominiums and high-rises. The lost acreage is quality farm land with rich topsoil. And even though the U.S. has 470 million acres of cropland, man should be ever more thankful for the cow. Yes, be thankful for that gentle creature, the cow, that walking garbage collector who does her bit to make our lives better. For only she and her ruminant club members can eat forage and contentedly chew cuds to make milk that's necessary for the nation's diet.

Reaching The Limit?

Following was written in his column "Agriculture Today" by Ed Curran of the U.S. department of agriculture:

Many agricultural scientists are now telling us that we've just about reached our agricultural production limits. Oh, we'll be able to produce a bit more here and there, they say, but not much more. But, the farmer in us says that's all wrong.

Truth is that was being said 20 or even 30 years ago. That was the theme when American farmers first broke the 40 bushel per acre barrier in corn. It was great, they said, but we'd just about reached the limits. And, they seemed to be right. That 40 bushel record stood for seven years. Fact is, it took them until 1958 to break the 50 bushel to the acre barrier.

From then on, it was a foot race. Over 62 bushels in 1961. . . Nearly 74 bushels in 1965. . . Over 80 bushels by 1969. Then a big jump — to 97 bushels to the acre in 1972. That's the year we sat down with another veteran farm reporter and agreed — that was it. There'd never be another year like 1972.

Of course, you know what happened. We were right for a while. But, in 1978, those farmers went out and did it again. They produced an average of 100.8 bushels of corn per acre. They showed us!

That, of course would be the record that should stand for years, we announced, a little more cagily this time. It would be the benchmark. Never could beat that one.

It took those farmers out there just one more try. Of course they went out and did it again last year. Averaged 109.4 bushels of corn to the acre. In the process, they produced a 7.8 billion bushel corn crop — the largest the world has ever known. More than double that produced in 1964.

Why, farmers in Iowa and Illinois alone produced 3.0 billion bushels of corn — more than the nation as a whole did in any year prior to 1942. Not only that, they just about broke the yield barrier, with Illinois avergaing 128 bushels, Iowa, 127 bushels per acre — the highest yields in the nations.

And, American farmers didn't stop at corn either. They also produced record yields per acre for sorghum, barley, wheat, soybeans, cotton and hay as well.

Of course, 1979 was an unusual year. The weather was just right, you know. Won't be another year with a growing season like 1979's. But, don't say those things to farmers. They're just apt to show you you're wrong!

Borrowed Nonsense:

At the Middle River whist tournament, an angry player threw down his cards and announced, "This game is crooked!" The tournament chairman responded to the ruckus. "What's the trouble here?" he demanded. "This guy is cheating," the complainant said of the player on his left. "How do you know?" the chairman pressed. "Because," the irate player explained, "he isn't playing the hand I dealt him!"

The tired businessman came home to find the house in a complete state of disarray. "What on earth happened?" he demanded of his wife. "You're always wondering what I do all day," she replied. "Well, today I didn't do it."

HALF THE FUN of stacking blocks is watching them tumble down. Taking part in this activity at Sue's day care center in Thief River Falls are Brian Fredrickson, 5½ and three-year-old Mike Stanislawski.

Embargo Hurts Russia And United States

Economic sanctions such as the partial grain embargo to Russia are the only realistic courses of action for the United States, according to a report from the University of Minnesota's agricultural extension service.

The grain embargo will create problems for the Soviets — a major inconvenience by slowing the rate of increased in livestock production. "The embargo on the sale of high technology items will also create problems for the Soviets," the report says.

"These and other actions will force the Soviets to pay a price — and in the long run a reasonably high price — for invasion of Afghanistan. The price may not be high enough to cause Soviet withdrawal from Afghanistan, but it could be high enough to deter repeat actions. This is the significant part for United States citizens."

The report was written by agricultural economists at the University of Minnesota. Limited supplies are available free from the Bulletin Room, University of Minnesota, St. Paul 55108. Ask for Extension Miscellaneous Publication 103.

Impacts of suspending USSR grain shipments could be quite high on Minnesota and surrounding states, depending on policies chosen by the government. Minnesota corn prices have been depressed more than prices at other major market centers.

Before the suspension, Minnesota terminal corn prices were about 20 cents less than Chicago cash prices. Since then the difference has been 35 to 40 cents. The greater impact on Minnesota could be caused by its distance from export points, the report says.

The suspended grain shipments may lead to some short-term financial problems in Minnesota. To the extent that the partial embargo curtains grain movement, it could lead to cash flow shortages for some farmers who hold rather than sell grain. It could lead to credit crunches for bankers who in effect finance holding of farm inventories (on Jan. 1, 1980/80 per cent of the stored corn and 75 per cent of the wheat in Minnesota was on farms)

To the extent that feed grains are cheaper in Minnesota than in other parts of the country, Minnesota livestock producers will benefit. And in the long run, lower feed grain prices in Minnesota could stimulate expansion of livestock production. Exactly what will happen depends on decision of farmers, grain traders and government policy makers.

Although the suspended grain sales are likely to cause some policital and economic difficulty in that country, they could also slow the rate of growth in U.S. export markets for years to come, according to G. Edward Schuh, agricultural economist at the university and one of the authors of the report.

The suspension of sales to Russia, following hard on the heels of economic retaliation against Iran, could cause a crisis of confidence among our trading partners, Schuh said. Grain importing nations may work to diversity sources of imports and try harder to become self-sufficient.

Solar Heating Seminar At Winter Shows

Solar heating for northwestern Minnesota will be the subject of a winter shows seminar to be held Friday at 9:30 a.m. in the ag research center, Northwest experiment station in Crookston.

Gene Miller, ag engineer at the station, will kick off the seminar with specifics and background of solar in the perspective of today's energy problem.

Darryl Thayer, staff instructor and consultant in the solar energy division at the Red Wing AVTI will discuss the technical systems that are available today. Thayer has a consulting firm in Minneapolis and has set up many solar systems in Minnesota to date.

Dr. Milo Hellickson, South Dakota state university researcher from Brookings, will present current agricultural systems. Hellickson, an agricultural engineer from South Dakota, has been project leader in major federal research on a crop drying system that concentrates the rays of the sun to obtain higher temperatures for crop drying. Modification of conventional grain bins and systems grew out of early experience at South Dakota which Hellickson will also report.

Ray Orendorf, a farmer-builder from Fertile, will present his experiences with a practical solar installation.

The solar group will lunch together at Bede hall on the UMC campus and an afternoon session will address specific farm sites and situations in the upper midwest area. Miller, Thayer and Hellickson will give specific recommendations for these units. Farmers who are interested in having a specific site and problem discussed should contact Gene Miller, program chairman, at the Northwest experiment station in Crookston.

Letters to the Editor

To The Editor:

In regard to Tom Kenville's letter to the editor in the Times recently, I think it was the nicest way to express his feelings about the on-the-job fire fighters. I think he needs a gold medal, too.

It reminds me that four years ago I had a big fire. When I awoke at 4 in the morning the firemen were already here. Someone had seen the fire and turned in the alarm.

From what I have seen and heard, I would say we have the best firemen in the state.

Anyone serving the public needs a little assurance of a job well done and we also need a lot more Tom Kenvilles to give credit where credit is due.

Sincerely,
Melvin Joppru

Minnesota Zoo Notes Birth Of Crested Ape

A small bundle of black fur and an inquisitive pink face describes the Black Celebes crested ape as she cuddles close to mom in their home at the Minnesota zoo. The wide-eyed baby will stay within eyesight of its mother for at least a year, because primates such as man, are slow grow least a year, because primates, such as man, are slow growers

The little one only weighs a pound at present, but at maturity she will tip the scales between 15 and 18 pounds, while the males grow up to 25 pounds. Life expectancy for these narrow-faced creatures is approximately 30 years.

Distinctive feature of this species is the cone-shaped crest of hair on the top of the head that stands straight up when the animal is excited, thus leading to the name "crested ape."

But the term ape is a misnomer. These black and tailless primates are actually monkeys or specifically members of the macaque family, which includes the familiar rhesus monkeys and the zoo's own Snow monkeys. Nature has installed its own pillow in this fruit-eating species, a large red rump pad designed for protection during long hours of sitting and sleeping.

To the visitor, the troop displays the entire repertoire of what looks like monkey business, but is really a series of visual, vocal and tactile communications. The male leader will often display large canines with a long yawn that is a sign of dominance. Rapid lip-smacking is shown by all individuals, including the infant. This has been interpreted as a sign of greeting, submission or appeasement.

Vocally, the dominant male uses a high-pitched call to advertise his territory and warn other males in the vicinity against encroachment. Other members vocalize a high-pitched scream when alarmed, a high cough when angry, or a human-like laugh or play chatter when they are frolicking.

Monkeys are often seen huddled together picking at each other's fur coats that were commonly believed to be infested with fleas. This concept is false. Close grooming behavior follows a hierarchial pattern that maintains harmony and social order in the troop.

These eight unusual monkeys, not commonly found in captivity, trace their homeland to the Celebes island in Indonesia. They can be seen daily in the tropics building at the zoo along with 150 other species of animals that live in spacious environments amidst 15,000 Asian plants.

Four other trails and 100 more animal species are at the Minnesota Zoo located south of the Twin Cities in Apple Valley. Admission prices to the zoo are adults 17 and over, $3; ages 12-16, $1.50; ages six-11, $1; seniors 62 and over $1.50; and children under five are admitted free. For more information, call (612) 432-9010.

Operation I.D. Helps Prevent Many Thefts

Every 17 minutes a home or apartment is burglarized somewhere in Minnesota, reports Commissioner John Sopsic of the Minnesota department of public safety.

Residential burglaries have increased 30 per cent in the last six years and cost homeowners and renters about $10 million in property losses in 1978.

One of the best defenses against burglary is to join Operation Identification, a property marking program of proven effectiveness, said Charles Rix, coordinator of Minnesota crime watch, part of the public safety department.

"Anyone can join Operation Identification free of charge. Some insurance companies even give homeowner policy discounts to people who join. Ask your police or sheriff about Operation I.D. They will assign you a permanent identification number and loan a tool to engrave the number in your property," said Rix.

"The number is nationally recognized and marked stolen property can be traced and returned to you when recovered.

"It's a good idea to make a list of your I.D. number and the marked property, along with serial and model numbers for the items. Keep several copies of the list. Put one in a safe place at home and another in a safe deposit box. You may also want to file a list with the police or sheriff."

In case of burglary, Rix said, the property list and I.D. number enable you to describe stolen goods quickly, which can help police recover them. The list lets you know which valuables were stolen and can make insurance claims easier.

"Also, display Operation I.D. stickers on the exterior doors and windows of your home or business. Stickers warn would-be burglars that any goods stolen will be hard to dispose of because they are identified as yours.

"And if the marked goods are found in a burglar's possession, the I.D. number constitutes solid evidence of guilt acceptable in court."

Rix said Operation Identification is a potent burglar deterrent. Studies show that residents using Operation I.D. sustain four times fewer burglaries than those who did not join the property marking program.

Police have reported cases where marked stolen property has been recovered and returned to owners after being used to solve burglaries, Rix said.

Job Corps Has Openings For State Youths

More than 160 openings are available for state young men and women in the Job Corps training program, the Minnesota department of economic security announced recently.

Job Corps is a federally funded program to provide basic education and vocational training for low-income youth between the ages of 16 and 21.

Job Corps participants are paid while they train and receive a readjustment allowance at the completion of the program. Minnesota youth are referred to six out-state centers where room and board, clothing, educational supplies, medical and dental care are provided at no cost to participants.

Vocational training includes carpentry, bricklaying, painting, automotive trades, heavy equipment operation, health occupations, business and clerical skills, cooking, baking, welding, forestry, library assistant and veterinary assistant. Pre-college education and training is also available. At the end of training, Job Corpsmen are assisted in job seeking through private and public employers, as well as other placement services.

Interested applicants should contact their nearest Job Service office.

Program Aimed At Teachers Of Gifted Student

Golden Fleece III, a five-week summer program for preparing elementary and high school teachers to work with gifted and talented students, will meet June 9 through July 11 at Moorhead state university and registrations are being accepted now.

It's the third summer Moorhead state has offered a program of courses aimed at teachers of gifted and talented students. Classes this summer will meet every weekday during the five weeks and will include a classroom practicum with 20 gifted students who will be studying on the university's campus then.

Golden Fleece is one of a dozen university programs in the country that offers intensive training for teachers on how to recognize and educate the gifted.

According to government estimates, at least three per cent of all children have exceptional gifts — over 2.5 million children in the United States. But only a fraction of them are ever singled out by the schools.

Golden Fleece courses are designed to qualify Minnesota and help credential North Dakota teachers for gifted programs. Minnesota has not established credentials for gifted teachers, but North Dakota has.

In Minnesota, however, the Legislature recently passed a bill that will give school districts $30 for every child placed in a qualified gifted program.

Golden Fleece was established to help school districts develop their own programs and train teachers for them.

The nine-credit summer series includes three courses — "The Gifted Child," "Curriculum and Materials for the Gifted" and "Study of the Individual: Practicum on the Gifted." Students in the summer program must take all three.

Enrollment will be limited and the deadline for applying is April 4. Arrangements can be made for housing on campus.

For more information or to register, write the director of the Golden Fleece program, Dr. Bella Kranz, at: Education Department, Moorhead State University, Moorhead, MN 56560; or call her at (218) 236-2148.

Price Of Cars Takes Less Of Family Income

Although car prices are high, it now takes less of the median family income than ever before to buy one, according to the Automotive information council (AIC).

Estimates for 1980 indicate that today's buyer is spending about 36 per cent of the family income to purchase a new car, compared with 38 per cent in 1970, more than half of the income in 1960 and 70 per cent in 1950.

Average 1980 car is selling for about $7,550, which includes normal options, taxes and license, but excludes financing. The estimated median family income for 1980 is pegged at $21,000.

Ten years ago the comparable figures were $9,867 for income and $3,706 for the car, or about 38 per cent of the income.

That was a great improvement over prior decades, states AIC. In 1960 the typical car was priced at $2,920, so the average family had to work slightly more than half a year for it. Median income then was $5,620.

In 1950 the price of an average new car was $2,334, and the average family earned $3,319, which put a car purchase virtually into the luxury class based on per cent of income.

So when you look at the price of a car in relation to earnings now, compared with earlier years, the shock should disappear, said AIC.

Additionally, the car prices in recent years also reflect the great popularity of such convenience items as air conditioning, power steering and brakes, adjustable steering wheels, AM-FM radios and other features not generally used on cars 20 and 30 years ago.

And the bureau of labor statistics shows that transportation-cost increases have been outstripped by those for medical, food and housing and the "all items" category.

Consider also what those in some other countries must pay for a car. A Russian has to spend 41 months of his income for a stripped small car, an East German 20 months, a Hungarian 30 months and a Pole 39 months. . . if they can get one.

Relatively speaking then, the U.S. car buyer of today should feel he's getting a bargain, said the Automotive information council.

State Medical Ass'n. Gives Advice On Flu

"How can a person feel so miserable so suddenly?" Minnesota medical association offers the following information on this common lamentation of the flue sufferer:

If your muscles ache and there are accompanying symptoms which may include chills or chilliness, fever, prostration, leathergy, loss of appetite and weakness, it is likely that you've got "it."

Other common symptoms or forms of discomfort may include a headcold, sore throat, a dry or hacking cough, pain or burning in the eyes, sensitivity to light, and nausea.

Although a number of the symptoms of the common cold and flu may be similar, flu is ordinarily more severe.

While about with the flu may cause a certain amount of discomfort, it is seldom serious. Persons who may be more susceptible to its serious effects include older people, pregnant women or people with chronic respiratory disease.

This highly infectious disease may be produced by any one of several strains of the influenza virus. Because the "flu bug" is very contagious, the disease may spread very rapidly and it frequently becomes a community affair. Discharge from the mouth and nose of infected persons are the usual source of infection.

While an attack of the flu often seems to come on suddenly, the usualy incubation period is one to three days. Fever which accompanies the flue may cause a rapid rise in body temperature at the onset of the disease. Peak temperatures may reach 101-103 degrees Fahrenheit. Although the fever ordinarily subsides in two or three days it may last as long as a week. A tired feeling and hacking cough may linger beyond the fever period.

Minnesota medical association suggests the following if you think you have the symptoms of influenza:

+ Call your doctor. This is particularly important if you are in one of the high risk groups.

+ Get plenty of bed rest; it will aid recovery.

+ Take aspirin to bring down the fever and ease the pain of aching muscles.

+ Force down plenty of liquids (of a non-alcoholic vareity). This will bring down the fever.

+ Keep out of circulation — stay at home in bed as long as the flu is severe, probably two or three days after the fever is gone. This could mean a total recovery period of seven to 10 days.

+ Don't take penicillin or other "wonder" drugs without your doctor's orders. He may prescribe them to treat a secondary infection, but they are not effective against the cold or flu virus.

+ Avoid exposure to other forms of illness during recovery. Low resistance increases vulnerability to diseases.

Arabian Horse Show Slated In Brainerd

Dr. E.T. Curren of Crosby, president of the Northern Minnesota Arabian Horse association, announces that the association will hold its 15th annual Arabian horse show on May 17 and 18 at the fairgrounds in Brainerd. Grace Akerson of Pequot Lakes will be chairwoman for the show.

ALTHOUGH THE DEER were a bit frightened at the sight of newcomers, Gail Rux was able to lure them close enough to him for a few Times photos Saturday. Each day, Gail travels out to the deer pen to feed his three white tailed deer and two black fallow deer. The animals are only a beginning of the many birds and animals Gail Rux and his wife, Lillian hope to have on their game farm near St. Hilaire in the near future.

It is expected that approximately 250 to 300 horses will be shown in the halter, equestian, youth, hunter and performance classes. Plans are also being made to hold a horse race in conjunction with the show.

Dr. Curren stated that this will be a "Class A" show which is sanctioned by the National Arabian Horse association, as well as the Tri-State Horse association.

Judges and other officials will be announced at a later date. For further information write Mary Smith, Route 1, Box 18, Farwell, Minnesota 56327.

USDA Aims To Cut Down Food Stamp Fraud

U.S. department of agriculture will implement a series of measures aimed at tightening management of the food stamp program and preventing food stamp fraud.

Assistant secretary of agriculture Carol Tucker Foreman said, starting in June, people applying for food stamps must supply social security numbers for adult household members and all children with income.

"This provision, which is required by a 1979 law, will help states use computers to check information provided by people applying for food stamps," Foreman said. "People who refuse to supply their social security numbers will not be eligible for food stamps."

"The new regulations also crack down on people who have defrauded the food stamp program," Foreman said. "They are already disqualified from receiving food stamps for 3 to 27 months. Now they can rejoin the program only if they repay the stamps' value in cash or agree to have their allotment reduced, until the money is recovered. As an incentive to states to track down persons who have defrauded the program, the new rules allow states to keep half of the money they recover."

Other important features of the new regulatory package, Foreman said, include administrative procedures that are expected to produce a combined savings of $80 million beginning in fiscal year 1981.

Under the procedures, states will be required to round applicants' income figures to the nearest dollar in calculating their food stamp benefits.

In addition, benefits will be adjusted more quickly following annual cost-of-living increases in social security and supplemental security income. This is important, Foreman said, because each additional dollar in these benefits reduces food stamp benefits by 30 cents. "States will now have to make these adjustments immediately or, if they lack this computer capability, within four months," Foreman said.

These rules were published in the Federal Register Jan. 31 and Feb. 1.

USDA's Food and Nutrition Service put other legislative reforms into effect last March aimed at tightening eligibility for the food stamp program and reducing abuse: income eligibility limits were lowered to the poverty level, the number of deductions allowed from gross income was cut from eight to three, participation by students was limited, and households are now dropped from the program if the breadwinner voluntarily gives up a job.

In addition, USDA also increases the federal share of state costs in investigating and prosecuting fraud from 50 to 75 per cent in another effort to spur more intensive anti-fraud action, Foreman said.

GAIL AND LILLIAN Rux have always said when they retire they will have a game farm. At last their plans have begun to come true. The couple, who live six miles west and one mile north of St. Hilaire, presently have two fallow deer, three white-tailed deer, various birds, and two dogs. Pictured in the arms of her best friend is Shary, the Rux's silver poodle.

Rux Game Farm Growing With More Animals

He presently has nine quail hens and two roosters that he obtained from the Wild Acres Game Farm at Breezy Point, near Pequot Lakes. He also has a variety of white doves, pigeons and a goose.

The Wild Acres Farm presently is able to hatch out over 25,000 pheasants a year, he said.

In the near future, Gail and his wife have plans for acquiring various species of birds including yellow, silver and ring-necked pheasants, Bobwhite quail, Lady Amherst pheasants, and wild turkeys.

"We also plan on getting a pair of African pygmy goats," he said. And, a pair of white deer from Austria.

"When the black fallows and white deer are bred, they produce spotted deer that look like fawns all the time," Gail said.

Eventually, he wants to dig a watering pond so he can have Canadian geese and mallard ducks.

"I was told that if you keep fresh water in the pond and feed the birds, they won't fly away," he said.

Gail and Lillian have been living on their farm on the outskirts of St. Hilaire since 1963, Gail said. "We saw the ad for the house, came out and walked through it, and that was it," he said. The 14 years prior to that time, Gail was employed at Tunberg Motor company in Thief River Falls as a service manager. Up until five years ago, the Rux's were dairy farmers. A year ago they were given the chance to sell their land, so they took that chance — but kept the home — and six acres.

Trips made to get the deer Gail now has were quite expensive, he said, so he has learned to build his own crates for hauling them. And catching the deer to put them in the crates is no problem — if you know how to do it.

"You grab them by one of their hind legs, then they can't do anything," Gail said. "They don't hurt you and you don't hurt them. Just don't ever grab them by a front leg. They could tear you apart."

"Now that I can make my own crates we can get them ourselves and get a trip out of the deal too," he said.

Gail and Lillian have had their white-tailed deer for only about two months, but still one of them ate out of Gail's hand in three days after he got them.

The fallow deer, which he got last August, don't seem to mind our sub-zero winter temperatures, either.

"They dig a hole like a dog and lay right out in the snow," he said. Although he has tried to get them inside, they seem to like the snow.

Some of his rare birds will have to be kept inside continuously during the winter, he said, but during the summer, he will have the pens set up so they may all go in and out as they please. So far, there have been no problems with diseases in the animals, Gail said.

"With some of the birds, like quail, there are problems with diseases. Everything has to be sanitary."

Gail and his wife will be kept quite busy during the next few years. There will be digging, cleaning, buying, traveling, and reading. Already, Gail has stacks of literature that he is reading and studying.

"There's a lot I haven't read yet," he said, laughing.

He has been reading various magazines to get addresses of places to write to buy different birds. And, he has joined two game farm clubs.

"It's gonna be a lot of fun," he said. "I've always said when we retire we're going to have all kinds of birds and animals, and that I was gonna have myself a game farm. And if it's gonna be a hobby, why not make it a profitable hobby? It'll take time — it's not something you do in a year or two."

Gail and Lillian have two children, Gary and Allen, who both live in Thief River Falls. Then, they have two "others" at home — Blackie, their nine-year-old black Labrador, and their silver poodle, Shary.

"It's important to have a good dog that watches over things," Gail said about his Black Lab companion. "And Blackie is a good dog. When he goes I hope we can find one just like him."

Many things have changed for the Rux's since they have begun their plans, and they have much work ahead of them. Gail has even given up deer hunting, he said. "I'll never buy another deer license," he admitted.

"It has always been my dream to have a game farm," he said. And at last, for the Ruxs the dream is coming true.

Ag. Seminar Expanded At Winter Shows

Program for the transportation agriculture seminar at the Red River Valley winter shows has been expanded to include reports on what is happening in the international wheat market and for questions and answers with the auditors for the Minnesota Wheat growers and the Minnesota Wheat council.

Starting time for the seminar, planned at the Best Western motel in Crookston February 28, is 9 a.m.

Richard Baum, president of Asian operations for U.S. Wheat associates, and Ole Sampson, a Lawton, North Dakota farmer and chairman of the board of U.S. Wheat associates, will address the subject of international market development and what happens to the penny check-off, as part of an 11:30 a.m. luncheon. Question and answer period will be conducted following the luncheon.

Flood Control Program At Winter Shows

Flooding in the Red river basin is a serious problem. Over the last year, the states of North Dakota and Minnesota, along with respective agency staffs and the local water agencies, have made substantial progress. States have adopted criteria for agricultural dikes and have agreed to a procedure for evaluating the existing dikes.

Much more needs to be done. Informed citizens can do much to aid the state and local as well as federal decision makers about what should be done. Flood control update program to be held Friday at Kiehle auditorium on the University of Minnesota, Crookston campus starts at 9:30 a.m. and runs until 3:15 p.m.

Presentations by Don Ogaard, chairman of the lower Red river watershed management board; Dan Thul, Red river coordinator of the legislative commission on Minnesota resources; and Herbert Monson, director of the national weather service in Fargo are three speakers on the program offered that day.

Agassiz regional environmental education council which is sponsoring the day long program invites you to attend and wishes you a good winter show experience.

TRF Day Care Homes Work On More Licenses

association."

Mrs. Krause and Georgina Wischnak are co-chairman of the association with Glenda Dauer as secretary and Shari Knutson as treasurer. A stated purpose of the association is to inform parents of their rights to have the best child care possible.

What should parents keep in mind when selecting a child care provider? After questioning if the home is licensed, the child care association suggests the following questions to be asked of the people operating the home:

(1) Do you child proof your home against possibility of children reaching poisons, household cleaners, medicines and other dangerous substances?

(2) Do you carry liability insurance?

(3) What type of child guidance and discipline do you employ?

(4) What activities do you provide for the children and how do you assist them?

(5) What type of meals are provided?

(6) What kind of training do you give to the children during the day?

(7) Will there be an open line of communication between parent and provider regarding care of the child?

(8) What is your policy in case of emergency?

(9) What type of involvement will I have as a parent in the care you give my child?

(10) Do you have a fire escape plan and practice it?

(11) What are your main goals in providing child care?

The question of what types of meals are provided is among the more important ones, Mrs. Krause said. Licensed day care providers are now able to participate in the quality child care food program, a non-profit organization concerned with good food and healthy eating habits for children. Funding is available through the U.S. department of agriculture nutrition program.

The program requires that day care providers serve USDA approved balanced meals and snacks. Beginning May 1 they will be reimbursed on the basis of 47 cents for breakfast, 90 cents for dinner and 27 cents for monrning and afternoon snacks for each child enrolled. The reimbursement is tax-free and based on submitted menu and meal count.

"I like to know that the kids in my home have had at least two good meals that day," Mrs. Krause said. "A parent should know if the youngster is getting soup every day or a balanced meal. Nutrition is very important to a young child. We have been very fortunate here in that several suppliers have given locally licensed homes a 10 per cent discount on food items."

Mrs. Krause insists on involvement from parents of youngsters left in her care. She provides them with a list of meals and activities for the week and expects them to question the child about what they ate and what they did during the day. And she wants parents to ask about their children.

"If one of the kids has been a little devil all day," she said, "I'll tell the parent about it. We have rules here and we teach the youngsters to follow the rules. They learn to say please and thank-you. When the time comes for them to go to school they should know how to behave themselves and respect the rights of other children."

Mrs. Krause said that most of the day care providers are in the mid-30's to mid-50's age range, although there are older providers as well. She credits Mrs. Bill Ness and Mrs. Mark Johaningsmeir with providing parenting classes which permitted several providers to obtain their licenses and others to receive an update on child development training.

"Not all providers run their homes the way I run mine," Mrs. Krause said. "Some are stronger in some phases than others, depending upon the abilities of the operator. Our goal is that every child which parents must leave with someone else while they earn a living is given the love, attention, nutrition and learning experience which helps that child to develop into a healthy, well-adjusted person."

Information concerning the child care association can be obtained by calling Georgina Wischnak at 681-5868. For information on the quality child care food program, call Mrs. Krause at 681-7445.

While the 1980 Section 8 high school hockey tournament starts Friday in Thief River Falls, it might be a good thing that the host Prowlers will wait until Saturday to begin post-season play. Friday is February 29, while Saturday marks the first day of March. And the Prowlers did not have a very good February.

Thief River Falls, 10-3 at the end of January, was entertaining thoughts of a 17-3 finish and had every right to expect a Minnesota state high school hockey tournament berth for the first time since 1965. The Prowlers were playing strong hockey and had many people convinced they were the best team in Section 8.

However, there was a turnaround in February when Thief River Falls went just 2-4-1 to finish 12-7-1. Their late-season problems dropped the Prowlers from a Section 8 favorite to a Section 8 hopeful — at best.

Thief River Falls might have hit a season low Friday in a 2-1 loss to a Fergus Falls team that will have a tough time winning a game in Sub Section 8 play that starts tonight. The Prowlers, a third-place finisher in the Section 8 point standings, were out-played by the Otters who could do no better than a 13th place finish among the 15 teams ranked in the standings.

Through much of the month-long Thief River Falls slump the Prowlers' problems were traced to injuries that struck forwards Jim Thompson and Paul Drees, and a back problem that plagued goalie Bill Jury. Back-to-back losses to Crookston 5-2 and Roseau 6-2 were directly related to Jury's back problem that caused him to leave both contests.

But Jury played well Friday.

Drees is out of the line-up again, though, and is hospitalized because of an illness that will likely keep him out of tournament action.

While Thief River Falls has struggled as of late, Crookston has come on strong and the Pirates have to be considered a pre-tournament Section 8 favorite. They enter the Friday quarterfinals with the tournament's top seed and best record, 16-3-1.

Frank Fee of KROX radio in Crookston, the Section 8 scoring statistician, agrees. His season-ending rankings: 1. Crookston; 2. Roseau; 3. East Grand Forks; 4. Thief River Falls; 5. Moorhead; 6. Warroad; 7. Fergus Falls; 8. Mount St. Benedict; 9. Bemidji; 10. Detroit Lakes; 11. Brainerd; 12. Lake of the Woods; 13. Indus; 14. Hallock; 15. Red Lake Falls.

Thief River Falls, though, is hardly out of the title picture. The Prowlers still have the talent to win it. And they might. After all, the last time Thief River Falls won a Section (region) 8 hockey title was in 1960, the same year the United States last won an Olympic hockey gold medal — until this year.

Engelman Happy With MJCAA Play

Northland community college basketball coach Chet Engelman was a very satisfied man following his team's third place finish in the 1980 Minnesota junior college athletic association (MJCAA) state basketball tournament played Thursday, Friday and Saturday at Normandale community college in Bloomington.

The Northmen beat Mesabi, a team that had knocked off Northland 81-74 during the regular season, 90-79; lost to Golden Valley Lutheran, the nationally-ranked tournament favorite, 103-90; and defeated Fergus Falls, a team that shared the Northwest Division title with Northland this winter, 107-94.

"We played three good ball games," said Engelman. "I was really happy. I could not have been prouder of a bunch of kids. There's no doubt in my mind that we have never conducted ourselves as well on the court as we did this year. Everybody did a good job."

Engelman wasn't disappointed with the loss to the Royals, either. "I have never enjoyed losing, but I didn't feel the least bit bad Saturday night. We didn't lose it. . .they won it."

It was a strong tournament, according to Engeman, who said, "The field, compared to what we had 10 years ago, was unbelieavable. It's the most talent field overall we've ever had."

Miscellaneous

+Look for Warroad's David Christian to be in a Winnipeg Jets uniform Friday night when the Jets host Vancouver in a National Hockey League game in Winnipeg. Christian, maybe the most consistent performer for the remarkable gold medal-winning United States Olympic hockey team, is expected to sign an NHL contract with the Jets this week and pass up the rest of his collegiate eligibility at the University of North Dakota. The USA Olympic wins over Czechoslovakia, the Soviet Union and Finland have to rank No. 1 in the list of great sports highlights for even the most casual hockey fan. The 4-3 win over the Soviet Union and 4-2 final gold medal-clinching win over Finland were tear-producers for us.

+Thief River Falls' Bill Jury isn't the only goalie in Section 8 with problems this year, according to Frank Fee of KROX radio. Mount St. Benedict sophomore Jon Brekken, Jury's chief rival for an all-section nomination, is out for the year with strained knee ligaments; Jim Wizner of Bemidji is ineligible for nine weeks (along with Gary Tobey and George Williams); and earlier Tom St. Pierre of Indus and Mark Schmitz of Red Lake Falls left the nets.

+College scouts from Duluth, Minnesota, Wisconsin, Brown, Yale and Harvard, among others, have been seen at Section 8 hockey games this year, watching the likes of Matt Baab of Mount St. Benedict, Mark Huglen of Roseau, Bill Jury of Thief River Falls, Eddie Christian of Warroad and Bob Clauson of Crookston.

+Ray Farwell of Bemidji was named recently as the Region 8AA cross country coach of the year. The selection was made by the region members of the Minnesota cross country coaches association. Farwell guided the Lumberjacks to the Region 8AA title this fall, their first since the sport went into the class system. Farwell was Region 8AA track coach of the year last spring.

SCORING A game-tying goal on a power play at 6:11 of the second period during Friday's high school hockey game played in the sports arena was Thief River Falls' Bob Fitzgerald (8) who took a feed from behind the net from teammate Dave Geatz and beat Fergus Falls goalie Mark Hedstrom for a 1-1 hockey game. Crowded around the net were Thief River Falls' Mark Harder (19), along with Fergus Falls' Lance Nygaard (13), Jody Wentler (18) and Greg Lillemon (17). The Otters surprised the Prowlers 2-1 in the final game of the 1979-80 season for the host Thief River Falls team.

TRF Finishes Regular Season Schedule With 12-7-1 Mark . . .

Otters Knock Off Prowlers 2-1

Flat didn't describe it, said Lincoln high school hockey coach Wendell Grand. "Lackluster" was his choice of adverbs after watching his team drop a 2-1 season-ending Section 8 game to unheralded Fergus Falls.

"I think that's the poorest performance, as far as enthusiasm goes, in three-plus years for a Thief River Falls team," said the Thief River Falls coach who was obviously upset with the continuation of a late-season slump by the Prowlers that dropped their record to 12-7-1. The Prowlers won just two of their last seven games.

The Otters, who struggled to a 13th place finish among the 15 teams listed in the Section 8 point standings, won it with a conservative attack, explained Fergus Falls coach Wayne Horgen.

"We're not going to overpower anybody," smiled Horgen. "I thought we played our game. We try to control the puck as much as we can. We're quick on defense and we concentrate on controlling the rebounds in our end."

The two teams matched second period goals after an uneventfull first period. Both goals were scored on power plays. A centering pass by Tim Mann set up Mike Andrews in front for a Fergus Falls goal at 4:51 that was matched at 6:11 when Thief River Falls' Bob Fitzgerald was fed in the slot from behind the net by defenseman Dave Geatz.

Only other goal was Jody Wentler's game winner for the Otters at 11:47 of the third period. Technically both teams were at full strength for the goal as the light came on exactly two minutes after they picked up matching minor penalties. But on the ice it was 4-on-4 when Greg Lillemon picked off a bad clearing pass in the Thief River Falls zone and fired a slap shot at goalie Bill Jury, who came out to stop the drive. But Wentler went behind him to tap in the puck after it trickled through the goalie's pads.

Jury came up with 22 saves in his best showing since he began experiencing back problems at the start of the month. Fergus Falls goalie Mark Hedstrom had a strong 28-save night.

The game featured 13 penalties, seven against the Prowlers.

Region 8A Contests Scheduled At UND

Bagley, Mahnomen, Warren and Lake of the Woods emerged as champions last week in Class A boys district basketball tournament play.

That sets the stage for this week's Region 8A tournament at the University of North Dakota fieldhouse in Grand Forks where Friday's opening night pairings will match District 29 champion Bagley against District 32 winner Lake of the Woods at 7 p.m., followed by a game involving District 30 titlist Mahnomen and District 31 representative Warren.

Bagley successfully defended its District 29 championship by beating Gonvick 72-58 in Thursday's finals at Bemidji State University. The Bulldogs were going for their first-ever district title.

Northome took the consolation crown with a 63-58 decision over Blackduck.

District 30

Mahnomen edged top-seeded Ada 45-44 to win the District 30 trophy Friday at Crookston, giving the Indians their first Region 8A berth since 1976. Ada was trying for its first district title since 1969.

Defending champion Fosston shaded Fertile-Beltrami 66-63 in the consolation game.

District 31

Defending champion Warren rebounded from two regular season losses at the hands of unbeaten Argyle to take the District 31 crown Saturday at Warren 51-46.

The Eagles beat the Ponies 34-32 and 37-34 during the season, and the only other loss for Warren was a 46-45 season-ending decision against Thief River Falls.

Stephen was named consolation champion with a 51-43 victory over Climax.

In Thursday's semifinals, Warren got by Stephen 48-43 and Argyle downed Climax 30-16.

District 32

Lake of the Woods repeated as champion in District 32 with an easy 70-44 triumph over Roseau Friday at Newfolden. The Rams were looking for their first district prize since 1965.

Host Marshall County Central took the consolation title with a 60-52 verdict over Greenbush.

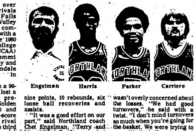
SOMETIMES THINGS aren't what they seem to be. What looks like a Fergus Falls goal in Friday's high school hockey game played in the sports arena sailed through the Thief River Falls goal crease in the first period of the Section 8 game. Thief River Falls goalie Bill Jury was scrambling in front of the net when Fergus Falls' Tim Mann (10) shot the puck through the crease and the Otters' Jody Wentler (18) wasn't able to get his stick on the thing. Also involved in the play were Brian Ranum (3) of the Prowlers and Scott Denley (14) of the Otters. Fergus Falls won the game 2-1.

Northmen Place Third In 1980 State Basketball Tournament



Engelman Harris Parker Carriere

Sandwiching wins over northern Minnesota rivals Mesabi and Fergus Falls around a loss to Golden Valley Lutheran, Northland community college came up with a third place finish in the 1980 Minnesota junior college athletic association (MJCAA) state basketball tournament played Thursday, Friday and Saturday at Normandale community college in Bloomington.

Northland opened with a 90-79 victory over Mesabi, lost a semifinal decision to pre-tournament favorite Golden Valley Lutheran 103-90 and bounced back to out-score Northwest Division rival Fergus Falls 107-94 in the third place game.

Thursday's complete first round results found Fergus Falls beating Vermilion 91-67, Anoka-Ramsey defeated defending MJCAA champion Willmar 99-88, Golden Valley Lutheran knocked off Bethany Lutheran 86-74 and Northland downed Mesabi 90-75.

In the Friday semifinals, Anoka-Ramsey got by Fergus Falls 89-83 and Golden Valley avoided Northland 103-90, with Anoka-Ramsey upsetting Golden Valley 107-106 in three overtimes Saturday afternoon to win the state title.

Consolation play started Friday when Willmar beat Vermilion 91-88 and Mesabi eliminated Bethany 79-73, with Mesabi taking the consolation title Saturday afternoon with a 91-79 victory over Willmar.

An MJCAA all-state tournament team announced after Saturday's championship game included Terry Harris and Vince Parker of Northland; Nelson Johnson, Jerry Williams, John Wheeler, Golden Valley; Johnny Maclin, Bryant Jackson, Anoka-Ramsey; Gary Douglas, Fergus Falls; Scott Wirtanen, Mesabi; and Anthony Bias, Bethany.

Northland 90
Mesabi 79

Terry Harris and Vince Parker put on a scoring show, but still had to share post-game plaudits with Mike Carriere Thursday as Northland defeated Mesabi 90-79 in first round play.

Harris and Parker, Northland's Mutt and Jeff act, combined their scoring talents for 60 points as the 6-5 Harris poured in 36 and the 5-5 Parker hit 24. But Carriere, who seemingly works in anonymity much of the time, received just as much post-game praise as his high-scoring teammates with a solid, if not spectacular, performance that included nine points, 10 rebounds, six loose ball recoveries and assists.

"It was a good effort on our part," said Northland coach Chet Engelman. "Terry and Vince did well, of course, but Mike did a lot of things for us. He really played well."

Harris, who had 24 points in the first half when Northland led 47-41, also pulled down 16 rebounds to help the Northmen build a 51-38 edge on the boards. And Parker didn't limit himself to just scoring, either, as he handed out five assists and came up with nine loose ball recoveries.

Mesabi led only once, 5-4 with 3:11 gone in the game. Northland led it 21-13 by the seven-minute mark and Parker banked one in at the buzzer for a 47-41 halftime score.

"We got out early and controlled the tempo. That was the main thing," explained Engelman. "We controlled it in the second half, but never really got away from them until right at the end."

With Harris sandwiching two baskets around a Parker bucket, Northland built a 61-49 edge with 16:38 remaining. Mesabi had it back down to 79-73 with 4:30 left, but Northland's version of the four-corner offense held off the Norsemen who beat the Northmen 81-74 at Virginia on the opening weekend of MJCAA play back in January.

"We slowed things down in the second half," acknowledged Engelman. "We were in control. We made our shots and we made our free throws."

He's right. Northland shot 67 per cent from the field in the second half (14-for-22) and enjoyed a tremendous 20-for-26 night at the free throw line.

For the game the Northmen shot 52 per cent from the field (35-for-67) while the Norsemen shot 43 per cent (35-for-81). Mesabi made nine of 14 free throws. Chris Kneen's 11 rebounds helped Northland build that 51-38 edge on the boards.

Northland was charged with 29 turnovers (to 22 for Mesabi), but Engelman wasn't overly concerned about the losses. "We had good turnovers," he said with a twist. "I don't mind turnovers so much when you're going for the basket. We were trying to run with the ball and several times we just missed the long outlet pass."

Golden Valley ... 103
Northland 90

Nationally ranked Golden Valley Lutheran was challenged by underdog Northland before pulling away at the end for a 103-90 semifinal victory Friday night.

A near-perfect first half of basketball netted Northland a 47-47 draw. The Northmen built an 18-12 lead with 14:02 remaining in the first half and forced the Royals out of their favored zone defense into a man-to-man match-up. Northland led the entire first half until Nelson Johnson of Golden Valley tied it at 40-40 with 2:38 remaining and then hit one from the corner for the Royals' first lead, 44-43, with 1:20 left.

David Spilde put Northland back in front 45-44, but a key turnaround at the end tied it at 47-47. Holding on to the ball for a final shot, Northland lost it when Terry Harris, who finished the half with 21 points, was called for an offensive charge — his third foul of the game — with just two seconds on the clock. That sent Johnson to the free throw line and he converted the front end of the bonus situation.

Northland's only lead of the second half came on a technical foul free throw shot by Harris when Golden Valley Lutheran was penalized for a late arrival on the court. But the Northmen missed the shot on the ensuing possession and the Royals' John Wheeler put his team on top for good, 49-48.

Still, Northland stayed close and trailed by just 74-70 with 8:50 left before losing ground. It was 81-70 two minutes later.

"We played well," said Northland coach Chet Engelman. "We knew they were deep, and the thing that killed us was that John Wheeler came off the bench and really stuck it to us." The 6-1 guard scored 26 points while the more-published Jerry Williams and Johnson had 26 and 22 points, respectively.

Harris finished with 30 points after running into foul trouble. He picked up his fourth personal just five minutes into the second half and got his fifth with 4:40 left. Vince Parker had 19 and Mike Carriere 14 for the Northmen.

Golden Valley shot 51 per cent from the field (44-for-86). Northland shot 40 per cent (36-for-89). From the free throw line the Northmen were 18-for-29 and the Royals were 15-for-24. Northland tried to stay with the tall Royals on the boards, but came out on the short end of a 63-54 count. Harris had 13 rebounds for the Northmen, Tony Smith 13 and Carriere 12.

"They never got away from us, but they were just so strong on the bench," mentioned Engelman.

Northland 107
Fergus Falls 94

They presented the regular season prizes during the state tournament gathering, with Northland and Fergus Falls both picking up trophies as co-champions in the Northeast Division. But after splitting a pair of home court decisions this winter, Northland took the rubber match at the state meet Saturday afternoon when the Northmen outlasted the rival Spartans 107-94 in the third place game.

Two Steve Ellingson free throws with 12 seconds left gave Fergus Falls a 56-55 halftime lead. But Northland scored the first second points of the second half and maintained that edge for the duration.

"The big key was that we dominated the boards in the second half," reported Northland coach Chet Engelman. "We pretty much controlled things in the second half. We got a quick jump and held on to the thing."

Northland led 96-89 with 3:06 left when the Northmen went into a delay game. It was 100-89 with 1:50 remaining when Terry Harris, the game's high scorer with 41 points, hit two free throws.

Joining Harris in double figures for the Northmen were Vince Parker with 24 points, Chris Kneen 11, Dave Spilde 10 and Craig Pietruszewski 10. Gary Douglas led Fergus Falls with 28 points.

Both teams shot well. Northland was 40-for-78 from the field for 51 per cent and Fergus Falls was 38-for-76 for an event 50 per cent. From the free throw line the Northmen were 27-for-35 and the Spartans were 18-for-23. But Northland built a 49-40 rebound ege — which included half of the rebounds that came off their offensive boards in the second half — and had four fewer turnovers than the Spartans (21-17). Harris grabbed 17 rebounds and Mike Carriere finished a strong all-around tournament with nine points, six assists and six loose ball recoveries.

Northland finished the year 10-16 — a record that included six forfeit losses.

Freshmen Are Beaten 64-54 By South J.H.

Lincoln high school freshman basketball team will close out its 1979-80 regular season schedule with a pair of 4 p.m. games against Grand Forks junior high school teams this week, playing at Schroeder Tuesday and hosting Valley Thursday.

Grand Forks South defeated Thief River Falls 64-54 Thursday, dropping the losers' record to 1-12 for the year.

Ahead 12-6 at the end of the first quarter, South found itself in a 14-14 tie with six minutes remaining in the second quarter. But the winners scored 21 straight points and went into halftime with a 35-14 lead. It was 45-52 after three quarters.

Mark Gere scored 26 points for Thief River Falls while Steve Kruta added 12 and Steve Olson had 10.

Lincoln Girls End Season With 42-38 Loss To EGF

Sue Christopherson sank two free throws in the final 14 seconds Thursday as East Grand Forks held off Thief River Falls 42-38 in a season-ending girls high school basketball game played in the Lincoln gym.

Thief River Falls, facing a 37-28 deficit at the four-minute mark of the fourth quarter, battled back to within 40-38 with 31 seconds remaining following back-to-back baskets by sophomores Tara Nicholson and LeAnn Paetznick in the final minute.

And it might have been even closer except that Paetznick, after receiving the tip off a jump ball under the East Grand Forks basket with 1:18 remaining in a 38-34 game at that time, spun and put the ball in the wrong basket to give the Green Wave a 40-34 edge.

Still the Prowlers battled back. Nicholson put in a short base line turnaround jumper and Paetznick followed an East Grand Forks turnover with a basket from underneath.

But faced with a must-foul situation, Thief River Falls put Christopherson at the line with 14 seconds remaining. She made her first free throw and East Grand Forks controlled the tip on a jump ball after the rebound on her second free throw was tied up. Six seconds later Christopherson was at the free throw line again. This time she made the first shot on a bonus situation and East Grand Forks maintained possession when the rebound on the second shot went out of bounds off a Thief River Falls player.

The defeat ended Thief River Falls' 1979-80 regular season record at 6-11. The Prowlers will wait until next week to begin play in the North Half Region 8AA tournament at Detroit Lakes. They'll find out the pairings Tuesday following a coaches' seeding meeting.

"We hustled and we rebounded well," said Thief River Falls coach Sylvia Sjoberg after Thursday's loss. "But we did not shoot very well and we turned the ball over too many times."

Statistics back her up. Thief River Falls out-rebounded East Grand Forks 38-32, but the Prowlers committed 24 of the game's 35 turnovers. And they shot just 28 per cent from the field, hitting 15 of 53 shots. In the first half the Prowlers shot an anemic 14 per cent, making just four of 28 shots in falling behind 21-14.

East Grand Forks had its biggest lead of the game, 25-14, early in the third quarter when Thief River Falls guards Ann Goodrich and Patty Blackstad sparked a 10-point, 5½-minute run by the Prowlers. Goodrich hit from 15 feet and added a fast break lay-up, followed by two fast break baskets by Blackstad that narrowed the gap to 25-24 with 1:10 left.

The Green Wave had a 29-26 lead as the quarter came to a close and then opened up that 37-28 gap when Vicki Pederson scored five of her game-high 14 points during a seven-point East Grand Forks surge.

Alice Tack added 13 points for the visitors who had plenty of problems themselves in the shooting department, going 17-for-63 from the field (26 per cent) and 8-for-22 at the free throw line. Paetznick led Thief River Falls with 10 points.

Thief River Falls junior varsity finished the year with a 42-39 loss to East Grand Forks and an 8-9 record. East Grand Forks also won the freshman game 42-40. The Lincoln freshmen finished 4-11.

Leading scorers for both teams, Pederson and Tack had 14 and 13 points, respectively, for East Grand Forks while Paetznick and Nicholson finished with 10 and nine points, respectively, for the Prowlers. Terry Harris Named MJCAA All-Stater

Northand community college freshman Terry Harris was one of four unanimous choices for a spot on the 1979-80 Minnesota junior college athletic association (MJCAA) all-state basketball team, it was reported today.

Harris, a 6-5 center-forward from Robichaud high school in Dearbrone Heights, Mich., joined Tony Cunningham of Normandale, Johnny Maclin of Anoka-Ramsey and Nelson Johnson of Golden Valley Lutheran as the only unanimous picks on the team chosen by a vote of the MJCAA coaches.

Rest of the all-state team members included Burdis Holden, Rainy River; Tom Busack, Waseca; Anthony Bias, Bethany; Charles Curran, Austin; Gary Douglas, Fergus Falls; Keith Strickland, Crookston; Mike Portugue, Vermilion; Howard VanWyhe, Worthington; Don Kelly, Minneapolis; Jerry Williams, Golden Valley Lutheran; Jeff Oliphant, Brainerd; and Scott Wirtanen, Mesabi.

Northland sophomore Vince Parker was included on the MJCAA all-state honorable mention list. Harris and Parker were both named to the all-tournament team Saturday after the 1980 MJCAA state basketball tournament and both were named to the 1979-80 MJCAA Northwest Division all-division team earlier.

Vikings Will Play Sunday At Kennedy

Minnesota Vikings basketball team, featuring stars from the NFL team, will play the Kennedy Lions all-stars Sunday, March 30, at the Kennedy high school gymnasium.

Last season the barnstorming Vikings played 60 games rolled up a 51-9 record against teams in Minnesota, Iowa, North Dakota, South Dakota and Wisconsin. Their appearances raised more than $100,000 for different charities and fund-raising groups.

Leading scorer for the Vikings was 6-5 Matt Blair, whose leaping ability enabled him to average over 40 points per game. The Vikings have a good combination of speed, height and muscle.

Tickets for the game are on sale at the Farmers State Bank-Kennedy or from any Kennedy Lions member. All proceeds go to community projects. Game time is 2:30 p.m.

Minnesota Vikings active on the barnstorming tour are Bobby Bryant, Matt Blair, Nate Allen, Paul Krause, Brent McClanahan, Doug Sutherland, Ahmad Rashad, Nate Wright, Stu Voigt, Randy Holloway, Rickey Young, Lyman Smith, Rick Danmeier and Frank Myers.

After the game the Vikings will be available to sign autographs and meet the fans.

Lincoln Hockey JV Gains 7-6 Overtime Win

Bouncing back from a 6-2 deficit, Thief River Falls rallied to beat Fergus Falls 7-6 in overtime Friday in a season-ending junior varsity high school hockey game against Fergus Falls.

Thief River Falls built a 2-0 lead in the first period, but then surrendered six straight goals. And the winners didn't start their comeback until the 7:52 mark of the third period. They tied it on Jeff Milender's third goal of the night with just 1:31 remaining and then won it on Jeff Imgrund's backhand from the slot 2:35 into a five-minute overtime period.

Todd Bergland, Rick Engelstad and Jim Dillon also scored for the winners who finished the year with a 15-4-1 record.

TRYING FOR A tip-in after Thief River Falls goalie Bill Jury stretched across the goal mouth, Fergus Falls' Jesse Wentler (7) couldn't get his stick on the puck during Friday's high school hockey game played in the Thief River Falls sports arena. Bob Fitzgerald (8) and Scott Wiebolt (2) of the Prowlers, along with Lance Nygaard (13) of the Otters looked on. Fergus Falls defeated Thief River Falls 2-1.

District 32 Tournament Semifinals . . .

Rams Top Nordics 54-53 On Final Second Rebound

Loren Thacker's shot off an offensive rebound with just two seconds remaining Thursday gave Roseau a dramatic 54-53 win over host Marshall County Central in the District 32 high school basketball tournament semifinals.

"That was a hard one to lose," said Marshall County Central coach Ron Ueland. "We did a super job on the boards all night. We did an excellent job blocking out. We just happened to be in the wrong defense at the end."

Marshall County Central trailed nearly the entire game, facing a ten-point deficit with six minutes remaining. The Nordics finally went ahead 53-52 with 12 seconds left and immediately went into a zone press.

Roseau got the ball downcourt and then pulled down two offensive rebounds before Thacker won it. The Rams had just five rebounds off their boards all night.

The game was tied 6-6 at the end of the first quarter. Roseau led 22-20 at halftime and owned a 38-34 third quarter edge.

Poor shooting hurt the Nordics who had beaten the Rams twice during the regular season, 67-47 and 46-40. Marshall County Central shot just 25 per cent from the field in the first half (8-for-32) and finished with only a 34 per cent figure for game (20-for-59).

"Had we shot decent in the first half we would have had things well in hand," maintained Ueland.

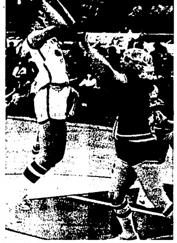
Roseau had no such problems, shooting at a 24-for-42, 55 per cent clip for the game.

"They shot really well and we didn't," acknowledged Ueland.

Roseau finished with a 32-24 advantage on the boards, but committed 24 of the game's 32 turnovers.

"Our pressure defense worked well," Ueland explained. "We hustled and we forced them to turn the ball over. We played well, but we did not shoot well."

Clay Larson scored a game-high 20 points for the Rams and Thacker had 14. Ray Kvalvog scored 19 points for the Nordics.



PULLING UP for a jump shot, East Grand Forks' Alice Tack avoided the defensive effort by Thief River Falls' Kathy Bello in the first half of Thursday's high school girls basketball game played here. Tack scored 13 points in the 42-38 Green-Wave victory over the Prowlers.

Greenbush 51

Dan Engen scored 20 of his 22 points in the second half and performances off the bench by guards Chuck Sorenson and Kerry Hodne sparked a fourth quarter surge that carried Marshall County Central to a 60-51 win over Greenbush Friday in the District 32 tournament consolation game.

Greenbush controlled things at the start, building a 15-8 first quarter lead and pulling out to a 29-19 halftime edge. The Tigers led it 42-37 after three quarters and sat on a nine-point edge early in the fourth quarter before the Nordics rallied.

"Sorenson and Hodne were the guys that really got us going," explained Marshall County Central coach Ron Ueland. "They really did a nice job off the bench to get our style of game going. They got the intensity going and came up with some key steals for us."

Dan Maki added 14 points and Jeff Dahl came up with 11 for the Nordics. Basil Emery scored a game-high 23 points for the Tigers.

"In the first half we played like it was a consolation game," admitted Ueland who was happy with the way the Nordics came on at the end to close with a win and a 15-7 record.

The Nordics did not shoot well, making 22 of 58 attempts for 35 per cent, but they were 16-for-25 at the line, including an 11-for-14 performance in the final seven minutes to pull it out. "We shot free throws real well down the stretch," acknowledged Ueland.

Greenbush shot 47 per cent from the field, going 20-for-43, but made just 11 of 19 free throws. The Nordics held a 28-22 rebound edge and the Tigers topped the turnover charts 24-17.

Plummer Girls Defeat Argyle

Plummer started slowly — scoring just two points in the first quarter — but finished strong — 25 points in the final eight minutes — to defeat Argyle 54-41 Friday in a girls high school basketball game played in the Pershing high school gym.

Argyle led it 9-2 at the start, but Plummer was ahead 19-16 by halftime and held on to a slim 29-27 edge at the end of the third quarter before pulling away at the end.

"We were standing around," said Plummer coach Rick Koivisto in reference to his team's slow start.

High-scoring Diane Fisher ran into foul trouble in her final home court appearance, but still finished with 22 points, 12 rebounds and seven assists. Sandy Zimpel scored 15 points and grabbed 11 rebounds for the winners and Koivisto praised the play of point guard Jodi Pahlen who had nine points and committed just one turnover.

Plummer shot 44 per cent from the field (22-for-50) and made 10 of 17 free throws. Argyle shot 43 per cent (18-for-42) but was just 5-for-14 at the free throw line.

Middle River 47

Plummer broke open a tie ball game in the final three minutes Saturday afternoon en route to a 54-47 win at Middle River.

Middle River led 11-10 at the end of the first quarter, carried a 26-24 edge into halftime and trailed 38-34 after three quarters.

"We missed some free throws at the end and they didn't," explained Middle River coach Tom Neibauer, "and they had Diane Fisher."

The Cardinals' star finished with 33 points even though she was just 9-for-19 at the free throw line. Dawn Nelson came off the injury list and led Middle River with 19 points although she was still slowed.

"I thought we played pretty well except for our free throws," noted Plummer coach Rick Koivito, pointing to the Cardinals' 16-for-32 showing at the line.

Plummer, 13-4, will close out the year Tuesday at Alvarado. Middle River finished 8-9.

Charlotte Welland

Should you go first and I remain,
One thing I'd have you do:
Walk slowly down the path of death,
For one day I'll follow you.
I'll want to know each step you take
That I may do the same,
For someday down that lonely road
You'll hear me call your name.

The Board of Education will answer the grievance at the February 18, 1980 meeting as was agreed to by both parties.

Discussion was held on another transportation personnel matter.

Discussion was held also concerning use of Chartered Busses for out of district events. The topic will be on the agenda for the February 18, 1980 regular board meeting.

MS Receives $58,200 From Snow-Rally

"Official results show that $58,200 will go to MS research and Minnesota patient services, thanks to the 88 riders in MS Sno-Rally 500," announced Sno Rally advisory committee chairman Cal Melder recently.

MS Sno-Rally 500, a St. Paul winter carnival event, was held February 1 and 2. Every rider was backed with at least $500 in pledges for the benefit of multiple sclerosis.

Multiple sclerosis is the most common disease of the central nervous system among young adults aged 20 to 40. There is no known cause or cure. Minnesota ranks second highest nationally in the incidence of the disease.

Sno-Rally 500 is approved by the Minnesota united snowmobilers association and supported by the Duluth area association of snowmobile clubs.

"This first-year ride was an outstanding success," commented Melder. "We originally expected only 50 riders, but we were very pleased to have 88 and every one of them should be congratulated. We anticipate more than 150 riders every year," he added.

Sponsored by Arctic Enterprises and endorsed by the Minnesota broadcaster's association, the ride took the snowmobilers 279 miles from Duluth to Hinckley and back to Duluth.

Originally the ride was planned to run all the way into White Bear Lake, but lack of snow forced a change of route.

Minnesota Viking Matt Blair returned early from his Hawaii Pro Bowl vacation to make the trip. Blair picked up the trail in Hinckley and rode into Duluth with the other snowmobilers.

Top fundraisers of the event will be announced March 20. Prizes are furnished by Arctic Enterprises, Thief River Falls, and Norco Outdoors, Duluth.

March 1 Is Date Set For Financial Aid

Bemidji state university's financial aids office reminds students attending any post secondary school in Minnesota that March 1 is the priority date for students who haven't yet applied for financial aid for 1980-81 school year. Changes have been made from previous policies and now students in any year of undergraduate study may apply for a state scholarship and grant based on financial need.

State scholarship and grant awards ranged from $100 to $1,100 but cannot exceed one half of an individual's financial need. State award combined with a federal BEOG may not exceed 75 per cent of one's need. A recent notice from the Minnesota Higher Education Coordinating board (MHECB) indicates in the 1980-81 school year the maximum award will be increased to $1,250 and will rise to $1,400 in the 1981-82 school year. The average award last year was $730.

Once again, for the grant program, any full-time student who has not received an undergraduate degree may apply for a scholarship or grant for any year of undergraduate study. Grants are based solely on financial need.

According to Bemidji State university director of financial aid, Robert Frazey, students should have their parents rough out their income taxes even if they haven't been filed to insure providing correct financial information. Figures recently released by the State Scholarsip and Grant program indicate 58 per cent of the 1979-80 applications were also not filled out properly or required additional information or clarification.

Application packets for State Scholarships and Grants are available in university and college financial aids offices or from a high school student's school counselor.

Users Of Radar Jammers May Pay Heavy Fine

Introduction of a so-called police radar jammer has prompted commissioner John P. Sopsic of the Minnesota department of public safety to issue a warning about its use.

Sopsic said users are subject to heavy fine and possible prison sentence if they are caught using them to jam police, sheriff or patrol radar, and jamming radar perpetrators will be charged, according to Roger Ledding, chief of the Minnesota state patrol.

Ledding said there has been no problem with jammers in the state and he suggested that the prohibitive cost of between $300 and $1,000 for the equipment may deter usage. The fact that they are illegal will not make them a popular device to purchase, in Ledding's opinion.

"The main thing, however, is that the 55-mile-an-hour speed limit is here to stay," Ledding said. "This is not a game," he added, "people's lives are at stake."

The new-type jammer, more sophisticated than the fuzz buster of more recent fame, can by its use amount to at least three violations of federal communications Law.

According to Sam Gargaro of the transportation department communications section, use violates the 1934 communications act of the federal government. Gargaro said he had not heard of any of the jammers showing up in Minnesota.

Once arrests are made, charges filed and people found guilty, violators will be turned over to U.S. District attorney's offices for handling.

Maximum penalty is a $10,000 fine and-or a year in prison.

Council Supports Dormitory Plan

Item not on the city council agenda concerning the possible construction of dormitories for Northland community college students began the regular city council meeting conducted Monday evening instead of last night due to precinct caucuses.

Ken Wiebolt, representing Northland community college, appeared before city council members requesting that the city of Thief River Falls act as a vehicle in a land transaction which would move land ownership through the state of Minnesota to a private developer for the possible construction of dormitories for students.

Vermilion community college in Ely and Mesabi community college in Virginia, MN are presently involved with situations similar to this proposed land transaction, Wiebolt said.

"The city was the donor of land when Northland community college was built. The land was given to the state of Minnesota for the community college," Wiebolt said. "We'd now like to give the piece of land to a private developer by transferring the land back to the city for the dorm building. We are asking the willingness of the council to participate in this request so the Legislature can take action on it."

Alderman Bill Penning introduced the resolution to support Wiebolt's request and to appoint the city attorney and city clerk to work with Wiebolt and the college in the land transaction. The resolution carried following a second by alderman Ole Engelstad.

Matter of the handicapped parking stall at 318 Knight av. N., in front of the employment services office, was introduced by Jim Winjum. The proposal, carried over from the February 12 city council meeting, was referred to the safety council February 19.

Alderman Penning introduced the resolution to adopt the proposal to provide the handicapped parking stall in that area, to make it with appropriate dimensions, and to review it for safety in six months. The resolution carried.

In street committee recommendations, the resolution was passed to advertise for a snowplow truck and a dump box with bids to be opened March 25 at 2 p.m. Also, the resolution was passed to advertise for a full time position in the street department for a light

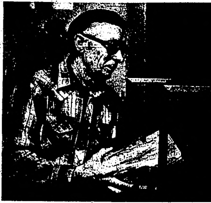
Lindbloms Are Valley Farmer, Homemaker



CARL LINDBLOM, a third generation Pennington county farmer, adds another log to the fire in the fireplace of the Lindblom home in Kratka township. Carl and his wife were honored in Crookston Tuesday as Pennington county's valley farmer and homemaker for 1980.

by Marvin Lundin
Times Editor

Carl Lindblom is a Pennington county farmer with family roots deep in the soil of this area and an interest and aptitude for things mechanical that causes his wife, Olga, at least a little consternation.

"He's too good a fixit man!" she says emphatically in mock complaint. "He can fix everything around the place and I never get anything new!"

Carl merely smiles at the comment, for he has heard it told a dozen times or more before. It is Olga's way of letting people know she recognizes an ability in her husband that many women probably wish they could find in their own spouses.

It was yesterday when Carl and Olga made the trip to Crookston to attend a dinner where they were recognized as Pennington county's valley farmer and homemaker for 1980. The event was one of the annual highlights of the Red River Valley winter shows.

Coincidentally, Carl is a cousin of Clarence Swanson who was honored at the Red River Valley dairymen's association banquet this year as Pennington county's honor diaryman. The Swansons and Lindbloms attended the Minnesota state fair together last fall, the first time either Mrs. Swanson of Mrs. Lindblom had been to the exposition and the first time for Carl and Clarence since they were 4-H club members in the 1930's.

Eager to take in a grandstand performance, they bought tickets without checking the program and wound up sitting through a rock music concert. Carl maintains that a couple of the bands, although excessively loud, "weren't too bad" while Olga isn't quite to charitable. "They were terrible," she asserts. "Uff da!"

But the Lindbloms, like they have done over the years, accepted the experience as another memory-maker and filed it away in their minds for future reference. In later years they may bring it forth on recall and laugh together over the results of a hasty decision.

Carl was born in Bray township of Pennington county southwest of Thief River Falls. His grandfather, Peter Lindblom, had homesteaded there and Carl's father, Arthur, farmed the land until his death when Carl was 12 years old. Carl helped with farm work and continued his education, graduating from the St. Hilaire high school in 1934.

After working at a number of jobs and following high school, primarily on farms around the area, he entered the army on Sept. 2, 1942. From December of 1943 through January of 1946 he served in New Guinea with the army signal corps. Following his discharge he again worked at several jobs in this area, including electric motor winding for Emil Horejsch at the Horejsch Electric building on First street.

Marriage to Olga Waale took place in 1947 and in March of 1948 they moved to the former Halvor T. Waale farm in Kratka township about 17 miles southeast of Thief River Falls. Olga's father had homesteaded the farm when Red Lake Indian reservation land was opened for settlement in the early 1900's.

Although they caught the post war upswing in the

Caucuses Give Support To Carter And Reagan

Pennington county people attending precinct caucuses in good numbers last night gave overwhelming support to the Carter-Mondale ticket among Democrats and Ronald Reagan among Republicans in indications of Presidential preference.

Republicans held a straw vote at caucuses held in the Thief River Falls city auditorium, Goodridge school and St. Hilaire school. There were about 70 people in attendance in Thief River Falls, eight at Goodridge and 12 at St. Hilaire. The straw vote was held on a state-wide basis.

Ronald Reagan captured 32 votes in Thief River Falls, six at Goodridge and five in St. Hilaire for a total of 43 in the county. George Bush trailed with 16 Thief River Falls votes and two at St. Hilaire for a total of 18 while John Connally received four at Thief River Falls and two at Goodridge to total six for a distant third place position. Howard Baker received five Thief River Falls votes, John Anderson received four and Robert Dole one. Several voters were undecided.

Apparently spurred on by the local legislative race, 298 people turned out for the DFL caucuses held at the Lincoln high school cafeteria, Bray town hall and Highlanding town hall. Attendance totaled 215 at the Lincoln cafeteria, 43 at Bray and 40 at Highlanding.

Delegates elected to the DFL county convention were polled and with 20 of 28 precincts compiled this morning, the Carter-Mondale team appeared to have about 73 per cent of the delegates. Sen Edward Kennedy attracted only two per cent of the delegates with about 25 per cent uncommitted.

Tally was also made of delegate perference at this time for the two announced DFL candidates for the legislature from District 1B. Leroy Stumpf led with 66 votes to 46 for Jim Kremer with 11 uncommitted in the incomplete total.

Delegates elected at the DFL caucuses will be delegates to both the county convention to be held March 16 at Lincoln high school cafeteria in Thief River Falls and the legislative endorsing convention to be held for District 1 at Greenbush on March 28.

County convention for the Independent - Republican party will be held on the evening of March 10 at Lon's restaurant in Thief River Falls. Speaking briefly at the I-R caucus session at the city auditorium were Clyde Christensen of Thief River Falls, announced candidate for Representative from District 1B, and Mark Skogerboe, also of Thief River Falls, who plans to announce district-wide soon his candidacy for the state Senate from District 1.

A number of resolutions were presented at the three I-R caucus sites and will be referred to the county resolutions committee meeting to be held at 7:30 p.m. Thursday at the Hanging Gardens restaurant in Thief River Falls. All resolutions adopted at precinct caucuses will be presented at the county convention, with the resolutions committee to consolidate similar resolutions and clarify others.

Resolutions presented at all I-R caucuses were in favor of initiative and referendum, spending limit on state government and creation of a bipartisan reapportionment commission. These are part of Gov. Quie's legislative

During this phase of the evening's activities, county chairman Ev Ault was outlining procedures to be followed at the forthcoming county convention. Attendance at I-R caucuses totaled approximately 90 people.

Library Stocks Up On Public Input Requests

Last fall, a new form appeared at the circulation desks of Northwest regional's community libraries. It is called a public input suggestion form, and reads, "I would like to recommend the following service(s) and-or materials (books, magazines, etc.) for consideration by Northwest regional library."

Since we started this channel of suggestion (by the way, it's easy. . . just fill out a form and drop it in the box at the desk) we have had input from the citizens of the region for more of the following subjects:

Values of old books, model railroading, taxidermy, field dressing, coins, stamps, Scott's Catalogues, antiques, recreational therapy, Stella Standard, cookbooks, hunting, outdoor recreation, ammunition reloading, trade school circulars, trivia, dog sledding, home slaughter and butchering of meat animals, football for youngsters, elk, more westerns, poultry breeds and origins of breeds, firearms, grouse, travel books, Dracula books, competition swimming and diving, calligraphy, raising tropical fish, geese, deer, snowmobiles, dog training, motorcycles and motorcycling and roller skating.

"We have checked our collection in these areas and have purchased or will be purchasing materials in all the subjects where we need more — and that's the marjoity of those above. Thanks for the input!" states Wayne Alfveby, librarian.

EMBROIDERY is one of the hobby interests of Mrs. Carl (Olga) Lindblom, who with her husband was selected as valley farmer and homemaker for Pennington county this year. A quilt Mrs. Lindblom has made is in the foreground of the photo.

Kalbakdalen-Thode Vows Said In Red Lake Falls

Nine-branch hurricane candelabra decorated with holly and red ribbon bows, graced the chancel at St. John's Lutheran church on December 29 for the 7 p.m., wedding of Miss Kathy Jean Kalbakdalen and Lonnie Ray Thode. Bouquets of red carnations formed the altar setting and red ribbon bows marked the pews.

The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Kalbakdalen of Red Lake Falls. Parents of the groom are Mr. and Mrs. Fred Thode, also of Red Lake Falls.

Rev. Roger Raebel officiated at the double ring ceremony. At the organ was Polly Schmitz, a friend of the couple. During the ceremony Pam Huot and Judy Cota sang "Wedding Song," and "Beatitudes."

The bride was given in marriage by her parents. She was attired in a gown of white satin fashioned with a fitted bodice with Queen Anne neckline and full bishop sleeves, trimmed with Chantilly lace. The flowing skirt with chapel-length train featured a lace overskirt, edged with matching lace. Her corresponding headpiece, accented by a cluster of red Sweetheart roses and babies' breath, held her lace edged veil of bridal illusion. She carried a nosegay of red sweetheart roses, stephanotis, holly and babies breath, complemented by red velvet ribbon streamers.

Nancy Vraa, a sister of the groom, was the bride's personal attendant.

Maid of honor was Sherry Cassavant of Red Lake Falls, a friend of the bride. Laurie Kalbakdalen, a sister of the bride, was bridesmaid. Their identical gowns, made by the bride's grandmother, Mrs. Melvin Kalbakdalen, were red velvet, complemented by matching jackets trimmed with white marabou. In their hair, they wore red feathered carnations and babies' breath. Their bouquets consisted of red carnations, holly, babies' breath and white velvet ribbon streamers.

Tim Pahlen, a friend of the groom, was best man; and Brent Cassavant, also a friend of the groom, served as groomsman. The ushers were Craig Amoit and Jeff Senn. All wore navy blue tuxedos with white ruffled shirts and red boutonnieres.

The mother of the bride wore a forest green, floor-length gown with a blouson bodice with capelet effect. Her corsage was of red Sweetheart roses, white carnations, babies' breath and holly. A similar corsage was worn by the groom's mother, who was also attired in a green, floor-length gown with matching capelet.

Special guests at the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Waldal, Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Kalbakdalen, grandparents of the bride; and Mrs. Rose Waldal, great-grandmother of the bride.

Following the ceremony, a reception was hosted in the church parlors by the bride's parents. Hosts and hostesses were Betty and Ronald Waldal, aunt and uncle of the bride, Lynette and Joe Dennis, friends of the couple.

Highlighting the serving table was a four-tiered wedding cake, baked and decorated with red roses by Edna Hyde of Plummer. It was cut and served by Joan Kalbakdalen, aunt and godmother of the bride; and Eleanor Casavan, aunt of the groom. Delyne Waldal and Mabel Srnsky, aunts of the bride and groom, respectively, poured.

The guests were registered by Ray and Kate Thode, brother and sister-in-law of the groom. Donna and Les Cota, sister and brother-in-law of the groom, served the punch. At the gift table were Janelle and Lisa Kalbakdalen, cousins of the bride. Waitresses were Robin Myhre, Kim Kalbakdalen, Lisa Benoit, and Cindy and Cherie Audette.

Relatives and friends attending the ceremony were from Milwaukee, Wis., Plummer, Lake Bronson, Bemidji, Grand Rapids, Crookston, Brooks, Mentor, Fosston and Virginia.

The couple is at home at the Oaks Mobile home court in Red Lake Falls. The bride is attending Lafayette high school, Red Lake Falls, and is employed at Hillcreast Nursing home. The groom is enrolled at the Thief River Falls AVTI. Photo, LeMar Photography, Crookston

Life In Japan Discussed By Mikaelsens

Rev. and Mrs. Nathan Mikaelsen and daughter Ruth were recently home from Japan on a three-month furlough. This was Mikaelsen's first term in Japan.

Mikaelsen and his wife Ingeborg, who was born in Japan, were married a year ago last May in central Japan where she had been working with the Lutheran Free church mission.

Son of Mrs. Pauline Mikaelsen of Thief River Falls, Rev. Mikaelson completed two years of schooling at Northland community college in Thief River Falls, and two years at Moorhead state university before attending the Lutheran seminary in Fergus Falls for four years. Following this time, he was involved in an internship program for one year at Vancouver, WA, before traveling to Japan three and one-half years ago.

The Mikaelsens, who are now stationed in Morioka, Japan, will be serving in a pastoral ministry in a congregation that is five years old and has a congregation of 30 members.

In a recent interview between Mikaelsen and David Rinden, editor of "Faith and Fellowship," a publication of the Church of the Lutheran Brethren, Rev. Mikaelsen discussed various circumstances in Japan. One of these concerned the inflation problem, which Mikaelsen stated is an "ever-present" problem. Prices are high in Japan; gas, clothes, food and furniture are double the U.S. price, but radios and cars are about the same, he said.

Mission work in Japan is "hard" he said, but "God's Word is powerful no matter where it is preached." There are many reasons for the difficulty in planting Christian churches in Japan, he said, including the pervading materialism similar to the West, the Buddhistic background of 95 per cent of the Japanese, the authoritarian control of parents over children, not permitting free choice of religion, and high prices of land on which to build churches.

Some of the customs, foods and attitudes were particularly striking to Mikaelsen, he said, especially some of the foods like sliced octopus, that he tends to "shy away from". Most of the Japanese customs he finds to be "quite sensible".

His work in Japan is similar to what he did when he served for a year as a home mission pastor in Vancouver, WA, he said. There is much visitation in the area and publicity work, but in Japan he is also field treasurer, husband and father, "so things have changed quite a bit!" He also teaches some English in Japan to make friends.

Mikaelsen's goals include "encouraging believers in Morioka to use their God-given gifts to an even greater extent and to see new souls added to the flock there," he said.

Changes in the Minnesota rail service improvement program which would merge the program with the federal rail service continuation program will be considered at the March 4 hearing.

March 5 hearing will consider proposed rules for the rail user loan guarantee program which would establish a program to aid rail users obtain credit for participation in contracts for rail line rehabilitation.

Both public hearings will begin at 10 a.m. in Room 125, State Capitol building, St. Paul and will be conducted before a state hearing examiner.

equipment operator.

Recommendation by fire chief Duane Noel for the progression raise to Neil Gillespie to receive top salary effective March 1 was passed by council members.

Recommendation to approve the proposed sign ordinance in Thief River Falls that was tabled at the February 12 city council meeting was passed following alderman J. J. Womack's introduction of the resolution.

"There is going to be some problems, but we have to have some base," he stated, in speaking of the ordinance.

Tax and assessments and finance committee recommendations involved an increase in hook-up charges from $7 and $10 to $8 and $12 for water and sewer. Following the introduction of a resolution by alderman Ambrose Wysoski, the adjustment was carried. It was indicated that the measures were taken to keep realistic with the inflation problem.

Paint striping agreement between the Minnesota department of transportation and the city of Thief River Falls for marking runways and taxiways at the Thief River Falls regional airport was accepted, following discussion of the expiration of the old agreement. Length of the agreement will include those days from November 16, 1979 to November 15, 1989.

City attorney Robert Wurst appeared before council members with the matter of the petition to annex 60 acres of land west of town.

"The township of North has filed an objection to the petition," Wurst said. "This is one of the first times that there has been an objection to annexing property. Annexations have always been desirable to the city."

It was resolved that the matter would be referred to the planning committee for a recommendation with the planning committee to report back to the city council members at the next regular city council meeting March 11.

Revised estimates of the city engineer's preliminary report for the 1980 project was discussed by Jim Walker, city engineer. The added amendment to the preliminary report has been prepared to correct, update or expand on the original report for several reasons, according to Walker. Reasons for this include construction costs that have increased since the original report that reach far beyond the rate of inflation used to calculate construction costs for the project. These increases had little effect on some project costs and increased others significantly, he said. Also, assessments were not included in the original report. And, the tax and assessments committee requested a breakdown on engineering costs billed to date and an estimate of engineering costs necessary to complete the design on various portions of the project.

Alderman Wysoski recommended another hearing to meet with people to illustrate the assessments made at which time the public could voice their objections if they wished.

"I think we are ready for the hearing to find out what the people want," he stated.

Hearing date was set for March 10 at 7 p.m. at which time there will also be figures available for water project improvements. Following the introduction of a resolution by alderman Wysoski, the revised estimates on the 1980 street and utility improvements were adopted.

Status of special legislation for the policemen's relief association was addressed to council members by Ray Bren, former police officer in Thief River Falls.

Increased benefits for recipients was discussed as well as the present Thief River Falls policemen's relief association bylaws. The resolution offered by alderman Penning requesting special legislation to permit benefit increases for recipients under the Thief River Falls policemen's relief association plan passed.

program and were suggested by his office to all county I-R organizations.

Other resolutions dealt with education, agriculture, energy and similar items.

At the DFL caucuses resolutions were presented on energy, education, ban the can, support of the Equal Rights amendment, transportation and raising the legal drinking age to 21, pro-life and pro-choice and a number of other issues. All resolutions presented at the county convention must have been introduced at the precinct level.

Caucus interest was so great this year that sub-caucuses were held at the precinct level for the first time in memory of county DFL party officials. Sub-caucuses at county conventions have not been uncommon in the past but have been virtually unheard of at the precinct level here.

economy and farm prices were generally good, earning a living farming was no easy task. The farm consisted of 160 acres at that time and they raised dairy cattle, poultry and some other livestock in a general farming operation. The farm now consists of 720 acres with about 530 acres open. It is farmed on a share basis with the Lindblom's oldest son, Duane, who is expected to eventually own the farm.

"I guess you would call this general grain farming," Carl said. "We had dairy cattle until seven years ago and milked up to 20 or more. Now we have a few beef cattle but mostly we raise wheat and barley, some Timothy and red clover for seed, and some flax if conditions are right."

While earning a living from their farming operations, the Lindbloms also raised their family on the farm. In addition to Duane, who now lives on the farm and helps operate it, the family includes a son Curtis, who is a design engineer on farm equipment for Sperry-New Holland in Pennsylvania; a son Kenneth, who is a design engineer on tractors for International-Harvester company in Chicago, Ill; and a daughter Margie, who is a speech therapist at Hutchinson. They also had a young fellow as part of their family for several years under a custodial arrangement a number of years ago.

Busy as it is operating a farm and rearing a family, the Lindbloms found time for community service. Carl completed 14 years of service on the board of the Pennington soil and water conservation district in 1978. He served on the community ASCS committee for many years, the Farmers Home administration board for a three-year term, Goodridge cooperative creamery association board, Tri-County nursing service board and as trustee of the Telemarken Lutheran church.

Ten-year service award was given to Carl as an adult leader in the Kratka 4-H club and he is also a recipient of the county 4-H club alumni award. He has been supervisor on the Kratka township board for a number of years and for some time was a member of the Good Hope Farmers Union local. He was also a member of the Pennington county crop improvement association and raised some certified and registered grain for seed.

Olga was an adult leader in the 4-H club program for nine years, is a past president and currently treasurer of the Telemarken Lutheran church women and has been a Sunday school teacher and superintendent. She supervises the farm garden and takes pride in her children having won state fair trips through county fair championships in the garden division.

The Lindbloms like to experiment with fruit trees and have a Haraldson apple tree which has been a good producer. Carl also likes to hunt deer and geese and to fish in the nearby Red Lake river or Upper Red Lake and Lake of the Woods. Olga enjoys quilt making and similar handicrafts.

They expressed surprise at being selected for the recognition but noted their appreciation for the selection. Their award plaque was presented at noon Tuesday at a dinner held at Trinity Lutheran church in Crookston.

Jan. Boardings On Airline Drop To 1,048

January boardings on Republic Airlines at the Thief River Falls regional airport remained high at 1,048 but fell off slightly from the 1,171 recorded for January of 1979, according to unofficial records maintained by the airline office here.

Three flights during January of this year were lost due to weather-caused cancellations, a local employee of the company said. Throughout the Republic system, January passenger boardings in total dropped from 887,577 in January of 1979 to 880,550 this year.

Graydon Hall, senior vice president of marketing, said the airline was adversely affected by weather conditions in the early part of January with heavy fog responsible for delays and cancellation of flights at many cities in the upper Midwest and southeastern United States.

Republic now serves 158 cities, more than any other carrier in the nation.

$279,732 Received For Energy-Saving

Inter-county community council has received grants totaling $279,732 from the state of Minnesota and the department of energy for the purpose of energy saving weatherization of homes owned or rented in Clearwater, Pennington and East Polk counties.

Inter-county has crews available to do the weatherization work which can include weatherstripping, insulating attics and walls, venting, glass repair, window and door repair or replacement and other minor home weatherization procedures. All of this is done at no cost or obligation to the consumer.

To qualify, a family's income must be no more than the following income guidelines: For a non-farm family of one, $4,250 and farm family, $3,638; family of two, $5,625 and $4,800; family of three, $7,000 and $5,963; family of four, $8,375 and $7,125; family of five, $9,750 and $8,288; and family of six, $11,125 and $9,450. For each additional family member in the non-farm family, $1,375 additional income is allowed. For each additional family member in the farm family, $1,163 is allowed.

This service is provided in an attempt to save energy and cut down home fuel consumption, not only within the four-county area, but state and nationwide. By having a home weatherized, the owner can save money, be more comfortable, and help stretch fuel supplies further, according to the Inter-county community council.

For further information, number for the Oklee office is 796-5144 or interested persons may write to Inter-county Community Council, Inc., P.S. Box 187, Oklee, MN 56742. Bagley office in the Clearwater county courthouse may also be telephoned at 694-6543.

Work Abroad Cuts Student Travel Costs

Now, more than ever before, students can reduce the cost of a trip abroad by living and working in another country. This summer, hundreds of U.S. students will find jobs in France, Ireland, Great Britain and New Zealand through the "work abroad" program sponsored by the council on international educational exchange (CIEE). In its tenth year of operation, the program cuts through the red tape that students face when they want to work overseas.

Participants must find their own jobs, but they receive help from cooperating student organizations in each country. In France and New Zealand, they may work during the summer; in Britain and Ireland, they may work at any time of the year for up to six months and four months respectively. The jobs are usually unskilled — in factories, department stores, hotels, etc. — but they pay enough to cover the cost of room and board.

Students must be at least 18 and be able to prove their student status. To work in France, they must be able to speak French. For more information and application forms, contact CIEE, Dept. PR-WA, 205 East 42nd Street, New York, NY 10017; or 312 Sutter Street, San Francisco, CA 94108.

Gov. Quie Says State Markets May Expand

A major breakthrough in international marketing of Minnesota agricultural and commercial products occurred last week when Minnesota businesses were asked to participate in a major products trade fair in Canton, China.

I am particularly pleased with this opportunity because the trade fair was one of the items I discussed with Chinese officials in Peking and Shanghai during my October 1979 trip to China. I discovered then that Chinese trade officials didn't realize they could invite U.S. companies to a trade fair in China without going through the U.S. government.

This invitation to trade with China comes at a good time for our agricultural economy. Because the President enacted a Soviet grain embargo it is vital that we secure other foreign markets.

Specifically, the trade fair organizers are interested in agricultural products relating to fish farms; hatcheries; hog, chicken and beef production; vegetable farming; fertilizers; seeds; feeds; farm machinery and farm technology. In the industrial and commercial are they are interested in communications, electronical components and medical supplies.

Truly, our Minnesota products suit the needs of the Chinese and they are eager to have us participate. Only seven other states have been invited to attend. This places Minnesota in an excellent position to develop trade with China.

State Commissioner of Economic Development David Printy and Agriculture Commissioner Mark Seetin are seeking further details about the major products trade fair which is scheduled for July 6 to 16. The Kwang Chow-Canton Trade Fairgrounds where the fair will be held is the site of the well-known spring and fall Canton Trade Fairs. Representatives from 28 Chinese provinces are expected to participate.

The Agriculture and Economic Development departments will coordinate state efforts and assist state business interested in participating in the fair.

Representatives of the departments and participating companies will attend a briefing seminar sponsored by the Canton Fair Authority in Chicago on March 18.

Minnesota agriculture and food industries interested in further details on the Canton major products fair should contact Commissioner Seetin by writing the Minnesota Department of Agriculture, 90 West Plato Boulevard, St. Paul, Minnesota, 55107; or by calling 612-296-9310.

High technology or commercial firms interested in participating should contact Ellie Winninghoff by writing the Department of Economic Development, 480 Cedar St., St. Paul, Minnesota, 55101; or by calling 612-296-2755.

Quie Proclaims EARTH Week In Minnesota

Governor Al Quie has officially proclaimed the week of March 3-9 as "Earth Week" in Minnesota. The week will be observed by over 900 members of EARTH in Minnesota's 27 affiliated local post secondary chapters.

The EARTH Week will officially open the fifth anniversary celebration of Minnesota environment, agribusiness, resources, technologies and horticulture (EARTH) association as the first state EARTH chapters were founded in Minnesota in 1975 and the first annual meeting was held in September of 1975.

EARTH is the organization for students preparing for careers in the industry of agriculture. Activities and award programs of the organization complement instruction in post secondary agriculture-agribusiness by giving students practical experience in the application of agricultural skills and knowledge gained in classes. A major emphasis of EARTH is the development of leadership skills and abilities to prepare young people for leadership roles in their agricultural careers.

Agriculture is more than farming. Vocational agriculture programs provide training in seven basic areas of agriculture. The EARTH has incentive award programs directly related to the instruction program in these instraction areas: Agricultural mechanics occupations; agricultural products, processing and marketing occupations; agricultural supplies and service occupations; forestry occupations; horticultural occupations; natural resources occupations; and production agriculture occupations.

Primary purpose of EARTH is to develop leadership, citizenship and the compatible skills of communication, safety, decision-making, attitude to learn, work ethic and personal and occupational responsibility.

State headquarters of EARTH is in the agriculture education unit of the state department of education, division of vocational-technical education, Capitol Square building, St. Paul, Minnesota 55101.

Members in this state are involved in a number of activities from community development projects to judging contests in career related areas. In addition, the state association and local chapters provide many opportunities for leadership development for our members. The things they are learning today will help assure that all of us continue to have a wholesome and plentiful supply of food in the future.

City, County Would Benefit From Gas Tax

Troubled city and county road budgets, which have been forced to draw on property taxes to keep abreast of maintenance needs, would be on the receiving end of 38 per cent of the revenues from proposed gasoline tax increases.

Minnesota's constitution calls for a 62-29-9 formula for distribution of highway user funds. It allocates 62 per cent to state roads, 29 per cent to county and county state aid roads, and nine per cent to municipalities with populations over 5,000.

Each cent per gallon brings in an estimated $20 million annually, of which the county portion is roughly $6 million and city share nearly $2 million. The estimated benefit of each penny increase to Pennington county is expected to be $44,210. The estimated benefit of each penny increase to Thief River Falls is $7,276.

"That's money that won't have to be raised through increased property taxes," said Robert M. Johnson, executive director of Minnesota Good Roads, Inc. (MGRI), a volunteer group supporting a 4-cent-per-gallon increase during this leislative session.

Representatives from urban and rural counties have, in recent weeks, pointed out that many Minnesota counties have increased property taxes during fiscal 1979 in order to keep pace with county maintenance needs.

Ken Paulson, legislative committee chairman for the Minnesota County Engineers association (MCEA) and Morrison county highway engineer, reported that a recent survey of counties indicates that property taxes have been increased approximately equal to a 2- to 3-cent-per-gallon increase in the gasoline tax.

In testimony before the House Tax Committee, Hennepin county commissioner Richard Kremer said, "Hennepin county needs increased funding from the state user fund or it will be necessary to increase property taxes and cut back needed highway projects and services."

Carver county director of public works and president of the county engineers association, Pat Murphy, said that the solution does not lie in continued increases in property taxes since "there's a limit to how much we can raise them. What's more, a property tax isn't as fair a source of road dollars as a gasoline tax, which is a user fee."

The need for increased road funding hit home with many Minnesotans last fall when Minnesota Department of Transportation (MN-DOT) commissioner Richard Braun announced deferral of 61 highway projects. The same thing is happening in cities and counties. The situation has resulted from decreased gasoline consumption — and the resulting drop in gas tax revenues — coupled with skyrocketing construction costs, said Johnson.

Minnesota Good Roads is an association of 1,500 citizens working together to insure adequate funding to maintain the quality of Minnesota's road system.

Census Office In Bemidji Is Opened Thurs.

At a ceremony Thursday, Mayor Doug Peterson of Bemidji cut a length of computer tape, officially opening the district office in Bemidji from which the 1980 census of population and housing will be directed in this area.

Carole Wilson is manager of the district office, which will be headquartered for census operations in Aitkin, Beltrami, Cass, Clearwater, Hubbard, Itasca, Kittson, Koochiching, Lake of the Woods, Mahnomen, Marshall, Norman, Pennington, Polk, Red Lake and Roseau counties.

With the official opening, the active phase of the census gets under way in this district. About 500 crew leaders and census takers will be hired and trained. Detailed arrangements will be made for the enumeration of people in institutions, jails, hospitals, colleges, and places other than homes, all in preparation for April 1 when the actual enumeration begins.

On March 28 the postal service will deliver a census questionnaire at each residential mailbox. Each household will be asked to fill out its questionnaire and hold it for the census taker. Census takers will begin making their rounds on March 31.

There are 23 other census district where this method of enumeration will be used. The Census Bureau estaimtes that about 10 per cent of the U.S. population lives in these areas. For the remainder of the population, most of whom live in large cities and their suburbs, there are 385 census districts. Householders here will receive questionnaires bearing their addresses on March 28. They will be asked to fill them out and mail them back on April 1 in the postage-paid envelope provided. Census takers will have to call at those households that have not returned their questionnaires within a reasonable time.

However, all districts are alike in one respect in that some households will fall into a sample and be asked to provide more information about each person and about the housing. In places of 2500 population or more, one-in-six households will be in the sample. In areas with populations of less than 2500, one in every two households will fall into the sample. This large sample in less populated areas is necessary in order to provide statistically adequate data for use as the basis for Federal revenue program allocations. Households not in the sample will receive the "short" form which has seven population questions about each person in the household and 12 housing questions about the dwelling.

The Census Bureau says that having the questionnaire in the home for several days enables the family to fill it out when all members are likely to be present at some time and can provide accurate information about themselves and about the housing.

Mylo Carlson Herd Tops In Dec. DHIA List

Jerry Hamre, supervisor of the Pennington county dairy herd improvement association (DHIA), places the following herds as top in the association for December:

In first place is Mylo Carlson, whose herd produced an average of 48.0 pounds of milk and 1.80 pounds of butterfat, followed by Duane Krohn, 45.7 and 1.73; Hanson Heritage farm, 42.0 and 1.51; Duane Vatsaas, 41.2 and 1.52; Marvin Koop, 40.1 and 1.54; Gordon Wetterlund & Son, 39.6 and 1.54; Knute Nesland, 38.9 and 1.43; Roger Walter, 37.9 and 1.44; Clarence Swanson, 37.5 and 1.50; Chester & Steve Gast 37.5 and 1.49.

Herd averages are affected by the number of dry cows in the herd. The amount of milk or butterfat produced is averaged out over all the cows. This gives the farmer a record of the earning power of the herd for the month. If many dry cows are included in the herd, the average for the month may be low, even though the cows which are milking are high producers.

There are 28 DHIA herds and four owner-sampler herds on December test for a total of 32 herds on tests. There were 34 cows which completed records over 600 pounds of fat in 305 days or less during December.

Senator Says Profits Tax Biggest Scam

"In recent weeks the country has been inundated with reports of 'scams' being conducted by the FBI. All the while we've read with interest and shock the accounts of what the FBI has uncovered, a major scam has gone unreported," states Sen. Dave Durenberger.

"This scam is so large that the numbers boggle the mind. This con job could cost the American public more than $1 trillion during the next decade. The FBI won't be investigating this scam because it's going on right in the halls of Congress. It's called the conference report on the windfall profits tax.

"When President Carter decided last April to decontrol the price of domestic oil, he created a $1 trillion burden on the American public. That's the amount oil prices will rise in the next 10 years with price decontrol," Sen. Durenberger said.

"Oil companies and the government have a huge stake in decontrol. In fact, we've already seen the impact on the profits of oil companies. And, the government's windfall profits from decontrol will be equally astounding. Governments are guaranteed at least $540 billion during the next decade from the higher income taxes, royalties and state severance taxes that will result from decontrol.

"The person left holding the lean pocketbook is the consumer," Sen. Durenberger added. "During four months of hearings and mark-up as a member of the Senate committee on finance and one month on the floor of the Senate I worked to correct that incredible inequity. As the 11th vote in a series of 11-to-10 decisions in the finance committee, I helped construct and pass a windfall profits tax that would be offset by $138 billion in tax credits and income assistance for energy savers and users.

"The full Senate upped this bill to $178 billion, keeping the important tax credits and assistance for the American public.

"The House-Senate conference committee on the windfall profits tax has undone most of this work with its tentative compromise," the senator notes.

"Tax credits that I helped design for the consumer who conserved energy or switched to alternative forms of energy have been traded off for special interest credits. Money that was going back to the consumer will now go to the U.S. treasury; and out of the $1 trillion burden of decontrol, the consumer, according to the tentative conference committee agreement, is guaranteed to get back no more than $5 billion.

"The scam of this compromise is talk of a tax cut, but no guarantee. It is talk of income assistance, but no guarantee. It is talk of energy conservation tax credits, but no guarantee. The only guarantees are for the oil companies and governments," he said.

"The windfall profits tax was the one way to return to consumers some of the money they will be spending on higher energy prices. All the conference committee compromise will do is empty your pockets and fatten the coffers of the oil companies and the U.S. treasury."

March 2-8 Is Named Save Vision Week

Healthy eyes don't necessarily see well, says a Minnesota doctor of optometry.

"Your eyes can get a clean bill of health and still have problems that blur your vision, make it difficult for you to judge distances or in other ways inhibit job performance, driving and recreational activities", said Dr. Burton Skuza, president of the Minnesota Optometric association in a save your vision week (March 2-8) message.

Common vision problems like nearsightedness, farsightedness, astigmatism and a loss of near vision after age 40 (presbyopia) are the major reasons why more than 110 million Americans wear glasses or contact lenses. It is estimated that approximately five percent of Americans suffer with eye health problems.

"After age 35, an annual eye health examination is important - but so is an examination of all aspects of vision", Dr. Skuza said.

He cautioned consumers about eye doctors who stress eye health but make light of total vision care, even to the point of suggesting over-the-counter magnifying eyeglasses for reading and other close work.

In the past few years, marvelous advances have been made in the production of lenses. By the use of computors, automatic machinery and a host of newly developed materials, lens development has become another scientific miracle. Because of these sophisticated improvements, lenses of all types used now, especially continuous vision lenses, make it possible for nearly everyone to experience vision comparable to a perfect pair of eyes.

"If you try to get by with less than the best vision your eyes can achieve, you're risking not functioning at your best in just about everything you do every day", Dr. Skuza said.

A complete, thorough optometric examination includes eye health, visual acuity, common vision problems, eye coordination and focusing ability. It should take from 30 to 60 minutes. A health history should also be taken or updated.

Republic To Pay Dividend Of 20 Cents

Republic Airlines directors declared a cash dividend of 20 cents per share of common stock, payable March 17 to shareholders of record March 3.

Hal N. Carr, chairman of the board, said, "This is the eighth consecutive annual dividend paid by the company. Continuation of dividends evidences Republic's strong position in the airline industry." For the 11 months ended November 30, the company reported a net profit of $11.2 million.

"Republic is in a growth environment, increasing its fleet at the rate of almost one jetliner each month," Carr said. "This additional capacity is being used to improve service on our existing system, as well as to implement routes that have been awarded to the airline.

"A large portion of earnings will continue to be reinvested in the company to provide for increased productivity and enhance future profit potential." Carr stated.

Farmland Is Topic Of UMC Meet March 13

Educational meeting on the various methods of buying and selling farmland will be conducted at the University of Minnesota Crookston ag research center by the University of Minnesota agricultural extension service March 13 beginning at 9:30 a.m.

"Taking part in a meeting on land value, finance and transfer could improve one's ability to deal with the many problems of buying or selling a farm," said extension farm management specialist Paul Hasbargen.

Speakers from the university and local financial institutions will help individual participants consider such questions as: what is land of different quality selling for in this area? what is the maximum bid price I can justify? what financing alternatives are available? will buying farmland cause problems with yields, cash flow, estate transfer or taxes? how can parents best transfer a farm to the next generation?

Hasbargen says the meetings will try to deal with the issues involved in land pricing that stem from a basic dilemma: "On the one hand land is almost always a good investment. On the other hand, the net income from cropping is almost never enough to cover land payments in the early years of the repayment schedule."

Participants will receive worksheets to help them estimate their ability to meet cash flow requirements when buying land under various financing methods.

For details on the land transfer meetings, contact your Minnesota county extension office.

Farm Earnings In MN. Down During 1979

Farm earnings in 1979 were sharply lower than in 1978 for most types of farms in Minnesota, according to an early analysis of farm records.

Records showing these results are those of farmers in southern Minnesota who cooperate with the agricultural extension service and the department of agricultural and applied economics at the University of Minnesota. Delane Welsch and Paul Hasbargen, extension economists in farm management, caution that these preliminary findings may change slightly as more records are analyzed.

Hog producers and cattle feeders show a 50 per cent drop in farm earnings from the record high of 1978. Crop farmers show a decrease in earnings of about one-third from their near-record high of 1978. Minnesota crop producers enjoyed their record high earnings in 1973 and 1974 when crop prices were at their peak.

Dairy farms appear to be the only major farm type group in southern Minnesota that did not suffer a drop in earnings in 1979.

The U.S. department of agriculture (USDA) estimates that 1979 farm earnings in the nation were about the same as in 1978. Hasbargen explains this apparent difference between the national and state situations as primarily due to the relatively greater importance of hogs and beef in Minnesota and to the relatively lower grain prices in the state due to transportation difficulties.

Minnesota ranks fifth in hog production and eighth in cattle feeding. Returns to both of these enterprises dropped sharply during 1979 with fourth quarter sales bringing less than production costs.

Prolonged Duluth strike, along with the Rock Island railroad strike and the Milwaukee railroad bankruptcy, took millions of dollars out of Minnesota farm earnings, Hasbargen says. Transportation tie-ups depressed country paying prices and farmers who were unable to sell grain had to continue to carry larger debt loads at very high interest rates.

Higher energy and transportation costs are also adding to the downward pressure on Minnesota grain prices. These higher costs and transportation problems have increased the price differentials on corn and soybeans to about three times the level of two years ago. In the fall of 1977, Minnesota farmers received about 10 cents a bushel less than the average U.S. farmer for both corn and beans. In November, 1979, they got 25 cents less for corn and 33 cents less for soybeans. In mid-December, the differentials were up to 35 cents and 42 cents.

Before 1979 Minnesota wheat and barley prices tended to be higher than the national average because of superior quality. However, Minnesota farmers were paid less for their 1979 small grains than the U.S. average.

Lower relative grain prices in 1979 had the greatest adverse effect on Minnesota crop farmers as compared with crop producers in other states.

However, since the farm earnings in the business analysis results discussed earlier include changes in grain inventory values during the year the above reported declines in livestock farm earnings were also partly due to the relatively lower grain inventory values at the end of the year.

Hasbargen adds that the January partial suspension of grain sales to Russia, plus the refusal by longshoremen to load Russian-bound ships, has caused additional back-up pressure on Minnesota grain supplies. The economist expects that these actions will impact more severely on the earnings of Minnesota crop farmers in 1980 than upon other groups.

Bike-A-Thon For CF In May At Newfolden

Diane Graham and Lorna Maurstad have volunteered to coordinate local volunteers in organizing a bike-a-thon to be conducted in May in Newfolden, according to Ron Swain, president of the Minnesota chapter of the cystic fibrosis foundation.

Cystic fibrosis (CF), a lung-damaging disease, is incurable. One in every 1,600 American children inherits this disease when he or she receives gene for CF from each parent. It is estimated that 10 million Americans are symptomless and unknowing carriers of the gene which can cause CF in their child. Through research funded by the cystic fibrosis foundation, a test to identify carriers is being sought and scientists are pursuing a cure or control for cystic fibrosis.

The bike-a-thon will help support these research programs and medical care to lengthen the lives of all lung-damaged children through over 120 cystic fibrosis centers in the United States. These CF centers specialize in the diagnosis and care of children with cystic fibrosis.

Citizens of Newfolden wishing to volunteer to help with the bike-a-thon can call the Minnesota chapter of the cystic fibrosis foundation at (612) 871-0462.

Concern For Truckers Asked By Stangeland

Congressman Arlan Stangeland requested recently that various financial institutions serving long distance grain hauling truckers in the district place a moratorium on any foreclosures of the truckers' vehicles for 60 days.

Congressman Stangeland stated that these truckers have encountered many crises during the past year that have been beyond their immediate control, such as the truckers' strike, the millers' strike at Duluth and the recent grain embargo coupled with the winter closing of the ports. In response, many truckers are desperately trying to seek alternative loads but their investments in hopper bottom grain trailers limit them to hauling grain.

"I am presently working with the economic development administration and the small business administration in an effort to assist these haulers through this critical period," Rep. Stangeland said.

"As soon as the portsopen, the elevators will need these truckers to move grain to market. Therefore, I hope every consideration will be given to may request."

Ordinance No. 40 2nd Series
An Ordinance Amending The Outdoor Signs Requirements In the Zoning Regulations Of The City Of Thief River Falls

THE CITY COUNCIL OF THIEF RIVER FALLS, MINNESOTA, ORDAINS:

Section 1. Subdivision 9 of Section 11.19 of the City Code of Thief River Falls, Minnesota, is repealed and the following regulations are enacted and substituted therefor:

Subd. 9. Outdoor Signs.

A. Purpose and Intent. The code creates the legal framework for signage regulations that is intended to facilitate an easy and agreeable communication between people. It recognizes the need to protect the safety and welfare of the public, the need for well maintained and attractive appearance in a community, and the need for adequate business indentification and advertising and communication. This code recognizes that aesthetics and design quality cannot be satisfactorily legislated, as individual opinions vary and general public opinions vary from one era to another. It is recognized, however, that a great percentage of that which is unattractive can be eliminated by sensible quality control, through adequate maintenance and inspection and by reasonable guidelines formulated to minimize clutter.

B. Definitions. The following terms, as used in this subdivision shall have the meanings stated:

1. Abandoned Sign: One which no longer advertises an existing business, lessor, owner, product and service.
2. Building frontage: The linear length of a building facing the public street, excluding canopies, marquees, or overhangs.
3. Advertising Sign: Any communicative device which is used to promote products, goods or services.
4. Area I. D. Sign: A free standing sign which identifies a neighborhood, subdivision, multi-family complex of three or more buildings, shopping center of five or more businesses, an industrial area or any combination on contiguous property.
5. Automatic Sign: An illuminated sign which electronically displays a public service message.
6. Bill-board: Any free standing sign advertising goods, products, or services located or sold not on site.
7. Business: Any establishment, occupation or enterprise where merchandise is manufactured, exhibited, sold or where services are offered for compensation.
8. Canopy and Marquee Sign: Any message or identification which is fixed to a roof like structure projecting over the entrance to a building.

Pirates Looking For First Win

Crookston Central, the No. 1 seed and carrying a tournament-best 16-3-1 record, will enter the 1980 Section 8 high school hockey tournament as the favorite. It's a new experience for the Pirates who have never won a single Region 8-Section 8 game since the current eight-team quarterfinal arrangement began in 1969. Prior to that just the four semifinals were considered Region 8 tournament competitors; the rest of the games were sub region contests.

Crookston will open the 1980 tournament Friday night in the Thief River Falls sports arena at 7 p.m. against either Brainerd or Bemidji. Those two will meet tonight (Wednesday) at Bemidji's tiny Nymore arena because the Lumberjacks' normal home ice — the John Glas fieldhouse on the Bemidji State University campus — is tied up for the U.S. national men's curling championships.

The Pirates will be expected to win Friday. If they do it'll snap a frustrating jinx that has seen Crookston lose nine straight first round Region 8-Section 8 tournament games: 1969, 1970, 1971, 1974, 1975, 1976, 1977, 1978 and 1979. The Pirates did not make the tournament field in 1972 and 1973.

Tournament experience is one area where host Thief River Falls will have an edge over the rest of the Section 8 field. Over half of the Prowlers' regulars (eight of 14) played a year ago when Thief River Falls reached the Section 8 championship game. The Prowlers lost that one to Roseau 4-2, but battled the favored Rams gamely before giving up an open net goal in the final minute.

With a tournament field as balanced as the 1980 group, any kind of edge, however small, just might prove to be the difference when two evenly matched teams collide. And Thief River Falls with the home ice and the tournament experience might have the edge.

But the Prowlers will have to take advantage of those opportunities. They had the home ice in 1971, 1972, 1973, 1974, 1975 and 1978 and four times failed to make it past the first round, losing to East Grand Forks 4-2 in 1972, Detroit Lakes 8-7 in 1973, 5-1 to Bemidji in 1975 and 6-2 to Fergus Falls in 1978.

Thief River Falls hosted the tournament for the first time in 1971 and beat Moorhead 10-1 in the first round before losing to Roseau 5-0 in the semifinals. The Prowlers reached the finals in 1974 with wins over Moorhead 10-2 and Warroad 4-3 before losing to Bemidji 2-0 in the title game. Thief River Falls then lost to Region 7 runner-up Hibbing 7-2 at Detroit Lakes in the last of the Region 3 back-door state tournament qualifying games.

TRF Swimmers Star At NIC Meet

Lincoln high school graduates Mark Storhaug and Dan Cork were both winners over the weekend in the 1980 Northern Intercollegiate Conference (NIC) swimming meet at Bemidji State University.

Storhaug, a member of the champion Bemidji team, had a hand in three first place BSU pool-record finishes while Cork, swimming for the University of Minnesota-Duluth, also set a pool record with a victory.

One of only three seniors on the Bemidji team, Storhaug won the 1,650-yard freestyle in 16:40.24, took the 500-yard freestyle in 4:48.73 and was a member of the Beavers' winning 800-yard freestyle relay team clocked in 7:08.31. Those were all pool records. He also placed second in the 200-yard freestyle.

Cork won the 100-yard freestyle in a pool record 54.18 and was a member of the Bulldogs' third place 400-yard freestyle relay.

Both former Prowlers will be swimming in the 1980 NAIA national swimming and diving championships March 6-8 at LaCrosse, Wis.

Bemidji was an easy NIC winner with 701 points. St. Cloud State was a distant second with 482 points while Duluth was fourth in the six-team field with 182 points. It was the Beavers' third straight conference title and their tenth NIC crown in the 18-year history of the meet.

Figured to be among the NAIA leaders, Bemidji will be trying to better a fourth place finish at the nationals a year ago. Realistically the Beavers will be shooting for a second place NAIA finish behind perennial champion Simon Fraser of Burnaby, B.C., a Canadian school allowed to participate in the U.S. competition.

Miscellaneous

+Section 8 high school hockey tournament this season might be rivaled for unpredictability by Section 7 heading into post-season play that began this week on the Iron Range. International Falls, Greenway-Coleraine, Grand Rapids and Chisholm are seeded into the Saturday quarterfinals, with potential Tuesday semifinals matching the Broncos against the Raiders at Eveleth and the Indians against the Bluestreaks at Hibbing. However, Chisholm has a troublesome quarterfinal encounter with Hibbing in the works Saturday. The Section 7 championship game will be played Thurs., March 6, at Hibbing.

Prowlers Play Detroit Lakes In First Game

It'll be No. 1 seeded Detroit Lakes playing No. 8 seeded Thief River Falls at 7 p.m. Tuesday in the opening game of the 1980 North Half Region 8AA girls high school basketball tournament, scheduled to be played March 4, 6, 7 and 8 at Detroit Lakes.

A seeding meeting was held last night when coaches decided the No. 1 spot would go to the Lakers; No. 2 Moorhead; No. 3 Fergus Falls; No. 4 East Grand Forks; No. 5 Bemidji; 6. Crookston; No. 7 Park Rapids; No. 8 Thief River Falls.

After the Lakers and Prowlers start things Tuesday, East Grand Forks will play Bemidji at 8:45 that night. On Thurs., March 6, it'll be Moorhead vs. Park Rapids at 7 p.m. and Fergus Falls vs. Crookston at 8:45.

Semifinals will be played Fri., March 7, with the Tuesday winners playing at 7 p.m. and the Thursday winners going at 8:45. Championship game will be played Sat., March 8, at 7:30 p.m.

First round pairings in the South Half Region 8AA tournament will feature No. 1 seeded Little Falls vs. No. 8 Cold Spring-Rocori; No. 4 Melrose vs. No. 5 St. Cloud Tech; No. 2 Alexandria vs. No. 7 Sauk Rapids; No. 3 St. Cloud Apollo vs. No. 6 Brainerd.

The 1980 Region 8AA championship game matching the North and South Half winners will be played Fri., March 14, at the site of the North Half champion.

Region 8 Games Set For UND, St. Cloud State

High school basketball champions will be crowned this weekend in both Region 8A and Region 8AA.

The Region 8A event will be played at the University of North Dakota fieldhouse in Grand Forks beginning Friday when District 29 champion Bagley plays District 32 winner Lake of the Woods at 7 p.m. and District 30 titlist Mahnomen meets District 31 representative Warren in the doubleheader nightcap.

Consolation and championship games in Region 8A will be played Saturday beginning at 7 p.m.

The one-game Region 8AA championship playoff matching the North and South Half tournament winners will be played Friday when Moorhead from the North Half squares off with St. Cloud Tech from the South Half at 7:30 p.m. at Hallenbeck Hall on the St. Cloud State University campus.

City League Hockey Starts Playoff Games

Post-season playoff activity starts Sunday in the sports arena for Thief River Falls men's city league hockey teams.

First round playoff pairings Sunday will match Sullivan's vs. Hoard at 4 p.m.; Harger's vs. McDonald's at 6; Wennberg's vs. Johnson's at 8; and Sooline vs. Peterson Lumber at 10.

Activity continues next week when games will begin immediately following the Section 8 high school hockey tournament semifinal games in the sports arena. On Monday it'll be the Sullivan's vs. Hoard winner playing the Harger's vs. McDonald winner. On Tuesday it'll be the Wennberg's vs. Johnson's winner playing the Sooline vs. Peterson Lumber winner.

Playoff championship game will be played Wed., March 5.

In last week's regular season play, Harger's routed Hoard 13-3 Wednesday and then tied league runner-up Wennberg's 4-4 Sunday with a two-goal third period comeback before the game was called with 2:12 remaining because of roughness.

Section 8 Hockey Tournament Starts This Weekend In TRF

Sporting one of its most balanced fields ever, the 1980 Section 8 high school hockey tournament gets underway this weekend with quarterfinal doubleheaders in the Thief River Falls sports arena.

Top four regular season finishers in the Section 8 point standings — Crookston, Roseau, Thief River Falls and East Grand Forks — are awaiting second round sub section results tonight (Wednesday) that will determine their weekend opponents. Crookston will play Brainerd or Bemidji at 7 p.m. and East Grand Forks will take on Fergus Falls or Warroad at 9 Friday. Roseau will meet Mount St. Benedict or Moorhead at 7 p.m. and Thief River Falls will oppose Detroit Lakes or Alexandria at 9 Saturday.

Single semifinal games will be played Monday (the Friday winners) and Tuesday (the Saturday winners) at 7:30 p.m. Championship game will be played Fri., March 7, at 7:30 p.m.

The choice between the top four seeded teams is a narrow one. They're all potential champions, as is Warroad — providing the fifth place Warriors avoid a Fergus Falls upset bid tonight.

"I would have to say Crookston Central," offered Thief River Falls coach when asked to name a tournament favorite. "I feel the consistency they have developed over the last month has placed them at the top."

Crookston coach Mike Lundby won't back away from the favorite's role, and in fact seems to enjoy the position the Pirates find themselves in for the first time ever.

"We feel very good," said Lundby about the Pirates' tournament chances. "We're playing some of our best hockey of the year right now and I think we deserve to be there (No. 1 seed)."

However, both coaches are quick to point out the Pirates' status will certainly be tested.

"They definitely do not have a big edge over the other three seeded teams," said Grand. "Any one of them could certainly win it."

Again Lundby agrees. "I think it's going to be a wide-open affair. I don't think there's going to be a clear-cut favorite."

Crookston has a tournament-best 16-3-1 record and six-game winning streak. The Pirates have not lost since being upset by Bemidji 6-4 back on Jan. 31. They finished the year with an impressive 6-3 victory over East Grand Forks last week.

"Our game against East Grand Forks was one of our better games of the year," acknowledged Lundby.

Crookston's strength is its offense, headed by high-scoring Bob Clauson.

"Our strength," confirmed Lundby, "is moving the puck quickly with a lot of short passes; putting a lot of offensive pressure on our opponents. If we have a strike against us it's our lack of quickness."

While Crookston has come on strong of late, Thief River Falls has not. The Prowlers won just two of their final seven games to finish a disappointing 12-7-1.

"The month of February is important," noted Grand, "and we had a disastrous month. It seemed like everything that could happen to a hockey team happened to us in February."

Back problems experienced by goalie Bill Jury was the biggest blow to the Prowlers. But he played well in a 2-1 season-ending loss to Fergus Falls last week and is getting stronger every day. A full week off until Saturday's first round game will be helpful, too.

Second line wing Paul Drees, hospitalized because of illness, will miss the tournament. Sophomore Mark Harder, used as a fill-in throughout the year at both forward and defense, will skate with center Tom Bjorkman and wing Bob Fitzgerald.

On paper the Prowlers have a favorable first round draw. They'll be expected to beat either Detroit Lakes or Alexandria. Back-up goalie Jeff Mongoven shut out the Lakers 5-0 two weeks ago.

"We have to have a strong performance Saturday night; that's the key for us in the tournament," said Grand who would like a big win to supply the Prowlers with confidence heading into the semifinals. "We're optimistic about the draw," he admitted.

Detroit Lakes and Alexandria split this year, winning on each other's home ice. The Lakers took the first one 3-2 in overtime, with the Cardinals coming out a 2-0 winner the second time around.

While Thief River Falls faces a favorable first round draw, East Grand Forks doesn't. The Green Wave expects to face Warroad Friday and the Warriors whipped them 10-3 during the year. And Fergus Falls has an 8-2 victory to its credit against East Grand Forks.

Still, first-year East Grand Forks coach Tony Palmiscno is optimistic. "We have been playing very good hockey. I couldn't be happier with the way we've been playing the last could of weeks," he said. "We've been scoring a lot of goals and we seem to have tightened up defenseively."

Palmiscno follows suit when he says, "I think right now Crookston is the No. 1 team, but as far as an edge in the tournament, I don't know. Any team can win it." He said that includes East Grand Forks. "We have to be emotionally ready. If we are, I think we'll do all right."

Scoring Leaders In Section 8 Are Announced

Thief River Falls' Wade Hoppe had the distinction of sharing the Section 8 high school hockey scoring title this winter with both Eddie Christian of Warroad and Bob Clauson of Crookston, according to final regular season-ending figures announced this week by statistician Frank Fee of KROX radio in Crookston.

Hoppe and Christian shared the Section 8 (conference) scoring title with 44 points apiece as Hoppe scored 17 goals and collected 27 assists in 15 games while Christian scored 25 goals and added 19 assists in 14 games.

It was Hoppe and Clauson who were tied atop the overall scoring charts (all games) with 57 points apiece. Hoppe finished with 23 goals and 34 assists while Clauson had 34 goals and 23 assists.

Mark Tangen of Roseau was the top goaltender in Section 8 play, coming up with a 2.5 goals against average and a 91 per cent save figure in 13 games.

Brainerd's Paul Hennen finished with the top overall goaltending figures, a 2.3 goals against average and a 91 per cent save figure in 18 games.

Rams Are Top Target

Defending champion Roseau has a tradition of winning on its side, but the Rams are struggling with injuries and their three-year championship reign will be under fire this year when the 1980 Section 8 high school hockey tournament gets underway this weekend in the Thief River Falls sports arena.

Defenseman Mark Vatnsdal is out of the tournament with a broken bone in his leg, an injury he suffered here February 9 in a 6-2 victory over Thief River Falls. Forward Shawn Hallie is skating this week, but his availability for Saturday's 7 p.m. quarterfinal game against Mount St Benedict or Moorhead is uncertain after he suffered a cracked

Warroad, Roseau Will Honor Olympians Christian, Broten

Section 8 Olympians Dave Christian of Warroad and Neal Broten of Roseau will be honored this week with welcome home celebrations. Warroad will honor Christian Thursday afternoon at the arena and Roseau will plan a Sunday afternoon celebration for Broten at the high school.

Christian

Broten

Christian and Broten were members of the United States Olympic hockey team that captured the hearts and imagination of people everywhere with an unexpected gold medal winning performance in the recently completed XIII Winter Olympics held at Lake Placid.

Team USA went through the Winter Games unbeaten, posting upset wins over world hockey powers Czechoslovakia 7-3 and the Soviet Union 4-3 before coming from behind in the final period to beat Finland 4-2 Sunday to clinch the United States' first Olympic hockey gold medal since 1960.

Warroad schools will be dismissed early Thursday for the 2 p.m. program honoring Christian who will receive a key to the city and a plaque from mayor Dick Roberts, his high school hockey coach. Other guest speakers will include former University of North Dakota coach Rube Bjorkman, who now lives in Warroad; several of Christian's former youth program coaches; Cal Marvin, representing the Warroad Lakers; Rev. Paul Gustafson; and Dan McKinnon, a member of the 1956 USA silver medal winning Olympic team.

Dave's father, Billy, a member of that 1960 United States Olympic team, and mother, Carol, will also speak.

Sunday's activity for Broten in Roseau will start at 2:30 p.m. in the high school gym. Gary Hokanson, Oscar Almquist and several former youth program coaches will be part of the program, along with a presentation by Roseau mayor Milton Arneson.

Both events are open to the public, with an open invitation going out to all area hockey fans who have watched the two players through the Squirt, Pee-Wee, Bantam, high school and college ranks. They were rivals at every level, including last year when Christian's University of North Dakota Sioux won the WCHA title over Broten's Minnesota Gophers on the final weekend of the regular season, only to see Minnesota defeat North Dakota in the NCAA finals.

However, they were teammates for one of the most memorable Olympics ever.

Sub Section 8 Play Underway

Brainerd, Fergus Falls, Mount St. Benedict and Detroit Lakes were first round winners Monday in Sub Section 8 high school hockey tournament play.

The Warriors and Otters both picked up two-goal victories at Baudette as Brainerd eliminated Indus 5-3 and Fergus Falls ousted Lake of the Woods 6-4. In one-sided affairs, Mount St. Benedict routed Red Lake Falls 11-1 at Crookston and Detroit Lakes shut out visiting Hallock 10-0.

Second round games will be played tonight (Wednesday) with Brainerd visiting Bemidji, Fergus Falls at Warroad, Mount St. Benedict drives to Moorhead and Detroit Lakes travels to Alexandria.

The Brainerd-Bemidji winner will play No. 1 seeded Crookston Friday at 7 p.m.; the Fergus Falls-Warroad winner will meet No. 4 seeded East Grand Forks Friday at 9; the Mount St. Benedict-Moorhead winner will tackle No. 2 seeded Roseau at 7 p.m. Saturday; and the Detroit Lakes-Alexandria winner challenges Thief River Falls Saturday at 9.

Friday's winners will play in Monday's 7:30 p.m. Section 8 semifinal game, with Saturday's winners meeting Tuesday at 7:30. The 1980 Section 8 championship game will be a 7:30 p.m. affair Fri., March 7.

TRF YOUTH HOCKEY

MAHA district playoffs highlighted weekend TRFAHA action involving three Thief River Falls teams. There was good news and bad news, reports John Michael Anderson, who contributes the material for this column.

First the bad news, says Anderson:

TRF Eagles Pee-Wee A team lost to Roseau 6-4 and fell to East Grand Forks 9-2 in district playoffs at Crookston. Fergus Falls defeated Roseau 2-1 in overtime to win the tournament title, with Fergus Falls, Roseau and Bemidji all qualifying for regional competition at Virginia March 7-9.

Now the good news, writes Anderson:

TRF Bantam B team won the MSHA district tournament played in the Thief River Falls by defeating Moorhead 7-6 on Lon Aune's fifth goal of the game with just two seconds remaining in the championship game. Earlier wins came over Hallock 5-2 and East Grand Forks 11-1. Thief River Falls — coached by Dave Beverly and Bill Ramsey — and East Grand Forks, will move on the regional play at East Grand Forks March 7-9.

Thief River Falls finished second in the Bantam A MAHA district tournament at Warroad, beating Fergus Falls 9-4 and knocking off Roseau 4-2 before losing to East Grand Forks 6-3 in the title game. But East Grand Forks, Baudette and the Curt Geatz-coached Thief River Falls team will all compete in the North Sub State tournament March 8-9 at Cloquet.

Bantam A team will play in the District VFW tournament at Moorhead Saturday and Sunday to highlight this week's Thief River Falls youth hockey schedule.

In regular season play the Pee-Wee A team will be at Grafton Saturday for a 10:30 a.m. game and will visit Roseau Sunday for a 1 p.m. contest. The Pee-Wee B team will host Bagley at 1 p.m. Saturday in the sports arena, with the Squirt A team entertaining Crookston at 2:30 that afternoon in the sports arena.

Squirt B Tournament

First annual McDonald's Squirt B hockey tournament will be played in Thief River Falls Saturday and Sunday, using both the sports arena and the old arena.

Saturday's first round games in the upper bracket will be played at 8:30 a.m. with Thief River Falls vs. Red Lake Falls in the sports arena and Bagley vs. Hallock in the old arena. The losers will meet at 12:15 p.m. in the old arena while the winners play at 4:15 in the old arena.

First round games Saturday in the bottom bracket will be played at 10:15 a.m. with Crookston vs. Roseau in the sports arena and Fergus Falls vs. Wadena in the old arena. Losers will meet Saturday at 2:15 p.m. in the old arena while winners wait until Sunday to play at 11 a.m. in the sports arena.

Sunday's schedule also includes the seventh place game at 11 a.m. in the old arena; consolation championship game at 12:45 p.m. in the sports arena; third place game at 2:30 in the old arena; and championship game at 2:30 in the sports arena.

Huskies Use Free Throws To Win 45-38 Ball Game

Mary Jo Kiesow, the game's high scorer with 17 points, cashed in on seven of 10 fourth quarter free throw opportunities Monday to lead Goodridge past Strandquist 45-38 in a girls high school basketball game played at Strandquist.

Goodridge, trailing 21-15 at halftime, had a 28-27 edge at the start of the fourth quarter.

Both teams connected on 16 shots from the floor for the game, but the Huskies were given 23 chances at the free throw line and they made 13 of them. The Warriors were 6-for-14 at the line.

"Our free throws have pulled us through quite a few times," admitted Goodridge coach Susan Saudiff whose team shot just 23 per cent in the first half (5-for-22). "We weren't hitting too well," she acknowledged. "We were getting the good shots, but they weren't going in for us."

Peggy Poppenhagen joined Kiesow in double figures with 14 for the Huskies who finished their 1979-80 regular season schedule with a 13-5 record.

"That's better than I expected," said Saurdiff of the Huskies' finish. "But they have a lot of desire and they really want to win."

Marshall County Central limited Greenbush to just six points in the middle two periods Monday to win 56-31 on the Tigers' court, completing a 16-2 regular season schedule.

"I think that's better than what I expected," admitted Nordics coach Tom Mjelde. "I thought we might have a chance for a record like that, but I knew it would be tough. The girls came through, though."

Lisa Busch and Sue Olson had 12 points apiece in Monday's vistory as the Nordics built quarter leads of 15-9, 30-15 and 42-17.

Marshall County Central shot 32 per cent from the field (21-for-64) and went 14-for-36 at the free throw line. Greenbush shot 26 per cent from the field (12-for-46) and was 7-for-20 at the line.

LHS Follows MSHSL State Tourney Policy

At the request of all St. Paul hotel-motel managers, the board of directors of the Minnesota State High School League recommends that all high schools adopt similar policies for all students attending the 1979-80 state tournaments.

Lincoln high school will cooperate, said athletic director Russ Smith, and the following rules will be enforced:

+All students of Lincoln high school will be required "to possess tickets" for the tournament before they are excused from school.

+Each student that registers in a St. Paul hotel-motel will be required to voluntarily sign a statement of responsibility, listing school, principal, name of parent and home telephone number; and to carry an identification card from the hotel-motel in which the student is being housed for the tournament.

SKI REPORT

by Dr. Hugh Patterson

Ogden, Utah is a population of about 100,000 and supports two local but excellent ski areas. Just east of town and towering high over it is spectacular Mount Ogden. Just north of this mountain is rugged and beautiful Ogden Canyon. Traveling east up this canyon we came to a broad mountain rimmed valley with the above two ski areas.

On the mountain to the south side is Ogden Snow Basin, the first in this area, on the east side of Ogden Mountain. I skied it first in 1946. The upper end of this area flows out of a magnificent glacial circque. Here the granite walls are nearly straight up for hundreds of feet. Mountains ripple away to the horizon every direction. One of the northeast is especially white, and that is Powder Mountain.

Snow Basin is a fine friendly area for family skiing. The cafeteria is good, reasonable and serves ample portions. The same experienced people operate it as when I first skied there. Tow fees are reasonable. Snow dressing is excellent.

There is plenty of novice and intermediate, as well as expert terrain. The total vertical elevation is twenty six hundred feet. When skiing this area try the beginner or Becken Chair first for an easy warm up. Next, go all the way to the top. Upper Porcupine here is delightful intermediate skiing in a magnificent scene. Beware of one thing — the ramp from the chair is quite steep and he or she who hesitates to get off the chair is lost. The chair is also less crowded than those below. There are excellent runs as well from the middle area. Take Chicken Springs and Bear Hollow, then try Wildcat down the middle.

They have a fine ski school ski shop, and ski rental. Snow basin is largely patronized by local people but is worthy of such wider fame. We highly recommend it.

We head northeast across the valley east of Ogden, Utah. Here we see a high white mountain, called Powder Mountain.

You may feel after our accounts that ski areas are alike, and if you ski one you have pretty much skied them all. This is not the case. Ski areas vary greatly and so do their management and personalities. Though close together Snow Basin and Powder Mountain are very different.

At Powder Mountain the chairs take you to the top of the mountain and the view is spectacular in every direction. It is forested and gives you vast areas of fine Powder skiing. Hidden Lake chairlift gives more area for powder skiing than any other chair in Utah. Only Bannock chair at Grand Targhee gives you more.

Tow tickets are reasonable and the reason is from November to May you can ski from nine a.m. to ten p.m. for they have night skiing on the Sundown area. Ski school, ski shop, and rentals are available and the rustic cafeteria is excellent. The road up Wold Creek Canyon is fairly steep. Be prepared to use chains if necessary.

When skiing this area start on the Sundown area on the west side — This has excellent runs, the novice and intermediate skier will enjoy. Looking downhill and left there is a run that will take you over to the Timberline chair area. This serves novice to intermediate and expert areas. Further down the valley you come to the Hidden Lake chair lift that serves that vast powder area I spoke of. I ran this five times last yer. This is a fine place to learn and practice powder skiing.

This area is a great one and worthy of much wider patronage by skiers. It has been in operation about five years.

All-District 32 Team Selected In Basketball

An all-district high school basketball team was announced this week following the 1980 District 32 tournament completed Friday with a 70-44 Lake of the Woods championship game win over Roseau at Newfolden.

The honor squad featured Todd Robinson and John Koller of Lake of the Woods, Scott McKeever of Middle River and Bob Dostal of Badger, all repeaters from a year ago.

All-District 32 Team

Bob Dostal, 6-0 sr., Badger; Basil Emery, 6-4 sr., Greenbush; John Koller, 6-5 jr., Lake of the Woods; Kevin Kuznia, 6-3 sr., Karlstad; Ray Kvalvog, 5-6 sr., Marshall County Central; Clay Larson, 6-1 sr., Roseau; Darwin Larson, 6-2 sr., Strandquist; Randy Larson, 5-11 sr., Grygla; Scott McKeever, 5-8 jr., Middle River; Todd Robinson, 6-6 sr., Lake of the Woods.

collarbone in a 3-3 tie at Crookston a month ago.

And the status of all-state defenseman Mark Huglen is unclear, too. Bothered by an assortment of ailments throughout the year, Huglen is trying to play with a plastic piece inside his glove that protects a hand injury he suffered in that same game against the Prowlers that claimed Hallie.

But Roseau coach Gary Hokanson doesn't dwell on the Rams' health. "We've got 18 guys we can still play. Whoever is healthy will play for us," he said.

Struck by injuries at the start of the year, the perennially strong Rams are slow out of the block. But they put things together as the year wore on and put together a string that included wins over Thief River Falls 6-2, Warroad 7-2 and Iron Range power Grand Rapids 1-0.

Then came a surprising 5-4 home ice overtime loss to East Grand Forks last Tuesday and a 7-4 defeat at the hands of International Falls on the weekend.

But like the injuries, Hokanson seems unfazed by the two losses.

"In fact," he said, "those were two of our best games of the year. East Grand Forks was a strange game; the team that was playing well was always behind. They never touched the puck for seven minutes of the overtime and still ended up winning. Against International Falls it was up and down the ice. Mark Tangen (goalie) let us down in that one; he let three go through his legs. But that was the first time he let us down all year and I told the guys he owed us that one."

"We're playing as well as we have all year. I'm pleased," said Hokanson.

Unlike Wendell Grand of Thief River Falls, Mike Lundby of Crookston and Tony Palmisano of East Grand Forks, coaches of the three teams seeded into the quarterfinals along with Roseau, Hokanson doesn't give the tournament edge to the Pirates, who took first place in the regular season Section 8 point standings away from the Rams on the final day. He contends the Pirates' schedule doesn't match that of the Rams and Prowlers.

"In our section anybody can beat anybody else," noted Hokanson. "But who has Crookston played outside the section?"

Roseau has a history of state tournament trips, winning 21 titles in the 35-year-old history of Section 8 high school hockey. The Rams once ran off a string of nine consecutive titles from 1961 to 1969. Their 21 state meet appearances stand as a state record.

A CROWD OF young hockey fans sought Buzz Schneider's autograph when Minnesota and Wisconsin members of the gold medal U.S. Olympic hockey team landed at the U.S. Air Force Reserve terminal in Minneapolis Monday night. Schneider, 26, starred on the Gopher teams in '74 and '75, and was on the 1976 Olympic team that failed to win a medal. The Babbitt native played in obscurity on minor league hockey teams for the past four years. "This makes it all worth while," Schneider said, scanning the crowd of several thousand. "This is the happiest I've been in the last four years." (Photo by Paul Dienhart).

Replace Tree, Judge Orders

Something new in the enforcement of natural resource law was encountered by a state conservation officer last month when he arrested a women stealing a blue spruce tree from a Department of Natural Resources wildlife management area.

Officer Ken Erickson of New London apprehended Sheila Gates of Spicer after she had removed the tree. Following her sentencing to 30 days in jail, Judge Buchannan of Willmar placed her on probation for six months, but ordered her to plant a blue spruce at least three feet tall on the management area before May 10.

Rainy River Is 1980 MJCAA State Hockey Tourney Champ

Rainy River edged Mesabi 5-4 Sunday afternoon in the championship game of the 1980 Minnesota junior college athletic association (MJCAA) state hockey tournament played at Hibbing.

It was one of the most balanced tournaments in MJCAA history, featuring a pair of one-goal games and two others that were decided by two goals.

In Saturday night's opening round, Mesabi shaded Crookston 5-3 and Rainy River got by defending champion Hibbing 8-6. Crookston tripped Hibbing 9-8 for third-place honors Sunday afternoon.

Rainy River and Mesabi will both appear in the 1980 NJCAA national hockey tournament March 9-10 at Virginia. Mesabi, the MJCAA regular season champion with a 15-3 record, will serve as host for the four-team event. Rainy River finished third in the MJCAA regular season standings with an 11-7 record.

DNR Receives 9,613 Turkey Permit Cards

A total of 9,613 applications for turkey hunting permits were received by the Department of Natural Resources before the Feb. 6 deadline, it was announced recently.

Persons who wanted to enter their names in the drawing for one of the 1200 permits that will be issued for the spring hunt in southeastern Minnesota are required to have their applications postmarked by that date.

Most of the applications arrived at the DNR license center a day or two in advance of the deadline, said officials — who earlier had expressed surprise at the relatively few number of applications being received.

Some 11,000 applications were received for last year's hunt.

A computerized drawing was held Feb. 15 to select the 1,200 lucky applicants who will take part in the 1980 hunt.

This nation once boasted 400,000 square miles of eastern tallgrass prairie, stretching from Minnesota into Texas and as far east as Indiana. Today only one per cent of those prairies remains.

State Receives Wildlife Funds

Final apportionment of federal aid funds to the states for fish and wildlife restoration projects for fiscal year 1980 was announced recently by the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service.

Minnesota received $2,413,884 for wildlife restoration projects and $1,049,137 for fisheries projects.

Federal funds are derived from federal excise taxes on hunting and fishing equipment and are apportioned to the states using a formula which takes into account the number of license holders in each state and its land area.

More than $117 million was made available to the states during the year, an increase of $7.7 million over fiscal year 1979.

Under the federal aid for fish and wildlife program, states are required to expend their own funds on approved projects and are then reimbursed by the federal government for up to 75 per cent of the cost.

USEFUL SUGGESTIONS FOR SUCCESSFUL AUCTIONS

A Big Crowd Means More Bidders and More Bidders Mean Better Prices For Your Property.

You Only Have One Chance

Bear in mind that all your goods are going to be sold in ONE DAY, and on that day depends whether you make or lose perhaps several hundred dollars. A few dollars' expense is absolutely nothing at all compared with the importance of advertising your Sale RIGHT.

You Cannot Take Chances Scrimping on Your Advertising

— WE ARRANGE FOR ADVERTISING AUCTIONS. —

GET READY BEFORE SALE DAY

The importance of getting ready before sale day cannot be emphasized too much. Do this before sale day.

Helpful Sale Suggestions:

YOUR CATTLE
Should be carefully groomed. Number or tag every head. Have breeding and registry information on hand.

HOGS AND SHEEP
Should be graded if of different classes, not too many in a pen. All their surroundings clean and neat. Advertise average weights when practical.

FARM EQUIPMENT
Should all be clean, in good repair, and so arranged that each piece can be seen by the bidders and the auctioneer can see his audience at all times.

LAND
Give complete legal description of land and buildings. Be exact when describing terms.

HOUSEHOLD GOODS
Should be clean, in good condition and neatly arranged.

GRAIN AND FEED
Be accurate as to quantities for sale.

MISCELLANEOUS ARTICLES
Should not be left in the corners of the yard, barn or house, or under piles of rubbish. If they are worth selling at all, clean them up, get them ready and get every cent possible out of them.

DO JUST AS YOU ADVERTISE
Nothing can be more important. A suspicion of side-bidding will kill a sale, no matter how big the crowd. Make it an open sale and take your chances. If you want to advertise everything sold "as is," let us know.

BE SURE AND HAVE A LUNCH
Some auctioneers refuse to cry a sale without it. A full stomach makes a good bidder. Don't omit the hot coffee.

THE AUCTIONEERS
Get good auctioneers — the best to be had — those who are honest and reliable and whose statements can be relied upon. They must be men familiar with everything you may have to sell and be able to see and explain good points to bidders. Many reliable auctioneers are available in our area.

Reasons Why Our Bank Should Clerk Your Sale:

1. We guarantee collection of receivables.
2. We can arrange for the auctioneer(s) and reserve the sale date.

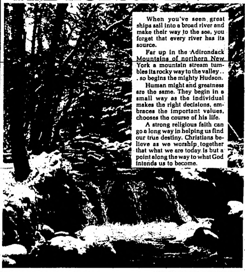
THE HUDSON RIVER



When you've seen great ships sail into a broad river and make their way to the sea, you forget that every river has its source.

Far up in the Adirondack Mountains of northern New York a mountain stream tumbles its rocky way to the valley . . . so begins the mighty Hudson.

Human might and greatness are the same. They begin in a small way as the individual makes the right decisions, embraces the important values, chooses the course of his life.

A strong religious faith can go a long way in helping us find our true destiny. Christians believe as we worship together that what we are today is but a point along the way to what God intends us to become.

PLAQUE POINTERS

Plaque is probably the biggest cause of tooth decay and eventual loss. What is it - how do we acquire it - and how do we control it?

Plaque is the sticky, practically colorless film that builds continuously on the teeth. The main inhabitants of plaque are bacteria - one milligram of plaque can contain a half-billion bacteria. Bacteria ferment sugars in the mouth (why not to eat sweets), changing them to acids which then eat away at tooth enamel. "Look, Ma - cavities".

As the plaque creeps below the gum line, it mineralizes and becomes razor-sharp deposits of tartar which is the catalyst of periodontal (or gum) disease - by far, the major cause of tooth loss in adults.

Plaque must be removed daily by "proper" brushing and the use of dental floss. Have your dentist or hygienist show you how to do it properly.

The best way, if not the only way, to remove tartar and long-established plaque is to have a professional cleaning. But, remember, it will start to reform the very next day. The only one who can remove plaque regularly is you.

State Third In Production Of Vegetables

Minnesota again in 1979 was the nation's third leading state in producing vegetables for processing into canned and frozen consumer products and was the seventh leading state in overall production of processing and fresh vegetables, agriculture commissioner Mark Seetin reported.

Gross farm value of Minnesota's 1979 commercial vegetable production was estimated at $58,616,000. That was an increase of $3,946,000 over the value of this state's 1978 vegetable output.

Commissioner Seetin said that Minnesota vegetable growers received an average of four cents a pound for last year's production and noted that this was about one half cent a pound higher than the 1978 price average.

Production last year totaled 732,110 tons, including 694,060 tons of processing vegetables and 38,050 tons of vegetables for the fresh market. Total was down by nearly seven per cent compared to 1978 due to a combination of reduced plantings and weather damage.

Minnesota again is the leading state in production of sweet corn, 562,280 tons or 23 per cent of the national total grown last year for commercially canned and frozen products. Farm value at 2.3 cents a pound was $26,258,000 for the state's 1979 sweet corn crop.

Green pea production was estimated at 111,690 tons, nearly a 35 per cent increase over 1978. Farm value, at 11 cents a pound, was $24,572,000. Minnesota again ranked third in green pea production, behind only Wisconsin and Washington, and accounted for 18.4 per cent of U.S. pea production.

Minnesota also harvested the seventh leading production of carrots, 30,400 tons valued at $2,957,000, and the eleventh highest volume of onions, 6,350 tons valued at $494,000.

These estimates are only for commercial vegetables and do not include farm and truck garden production marketed directly to consumers during the fresh vegetable season.

Pancakes Taste Different At Night

There's no rule, written or unwritten, that says pancakes and sausages are for breakfast only. Dressed up with dinner accompaniments — fresh spinach and mushroom salad, a pitcher of warm fruit syrup and a favorite dessert—Sausage-in-a-Blanket is an all-round family pleaser and a welcome lower cost change of pace. The pancake wraparound features buttermilk pancake and waffle mix, along with crushed bran flakes with raisins, as a substantial "blanket" for a sausage.

1 egg, slightly beaten
1 cup milk
1 tablespoon liquid shortening
1 cup Post raisin bran, crushed
12 cooked sausage links
Cranberry-Pineapple Syrup

Prepare pancake mix with egg, milk and shortening as directed on package, adding cereal to batter after beating. Bake as directed. Roll warm pancakes around sausages and serve at once or keep warm. Serve with Cranberry-Pineapple Syrup. Makes 12 pancakes or 6 servings.

Cranberry-Pineapple Syrup. Combine 1 cup Log Cabin syrup and 1/4 cup ground cranberries in a saucepan. Bring to a boil and simmer 2 minutes. Add one 8-oz. can crushed pineapple and a dash of salt. Serve warm.

Interpreting The Figures

You can read almost anything you want into the farm numbers report issued by the U.S. department of agriculture recently, according to Ed Curran of the USDA, who writes the column "Agriculture Today".

Curran points out that the report shows the number of U.S. farms declined 1.6 per cent from 2,370,050 in 1978 to 2,332,690 last year, and that the number will decline another percentage point in 1980 to 2,309,130.

One way to look at the figures — and it would be accurate — would be to perceive that farm numbers continue their gradual long-time decline. The more optimistic would point out that the rate of decline has slowed from 1.6 per cent to 1.0 per cent. That observation would also be accurate.

Delving deeper into the report, however, one finds that despite the overall decline, the number of farms will be unchanged in 15 states this year and that farm numbers will actually be up in 12 other states — including all of the new England states. That positive note must be offset by the knowledge that rate of decline must be greater in other states to cause the total one per cent average.

Granted, New England farm numbers aren't huge. Rhode Island increased from 690 to 720 farms, for instance, with other state increases in the East included Connecticut, 3,700 to 3,800; Main, 7,800 to 8,000; New Hampshire, 3,100 to 3,200; Vermont, 6,100 to 6,300; and Massachusetts, 5,000 to 5,200.

But USDA economists inject another factor into the figures. They say inflation has resurrected count for farms which have always been there. They point out that thousands of farms were "lost" when farms were redefined in 1975 as having agricultural sales of $1,000 or more.

Under the previous definition, a farm was a place that sold more than $500 a year in agricultural products if a large farm, or more than $250 a year if it was less than 10 acres in size.

Because inflation has boosted the value of product sold, the economists say, farmers which have been there all along are being counted again.

Minnesota has maintained agricultural stability over the past three years, holding farm numbers at 104,000 during that time span. Texas leads the nation in farm numbers with 159,000 (down from 161,000 in 1978). Iowa is second with 119,000 (down from 121,000) and Illinois third with 105,000 (down from 107,000).

As Curran points, out, you can read that story almost any way you want — there is an off-setting argument for any point someone cares to make. It's only a question of how you interpret the figures.

Calling A Tall A Leg . . .

Columnist John Lofton Jr. wrote the following article recently for a publication called "Battle Line":

Abraham Lincoln is said to have told a story about semantics and reality. If you call a sheep's tail a leg, he asked, how many legs would a sheep have? Five, somebody answered. Nope, said Lincoln. The sheep would still have only four legs, because calling a tail a leg doesn't make it a leg.

Well, the head of the U.S. Postal Service called a tail a leg the other day, and he seems to have gotten away with it.

In a talk in Los Angeles, Postmaster General William Bolger announced that in fiscal year 1979 — for the first time in 33 years — the Postal Service is in the black with a surplus of $469,863,000. This surplus follows multimillion-dollar losses in every year since 1946, including losses of more than $1 billion each in 1967, 1968, 1969 and 1970, before the old Post Office Department was transformed into a semi-independent postal service business at the start of the decade.

Bragging about the Postal Service's recent performance, Bolger said that "any fair-minded observer must agree that it is a noteworthy accomplishment." He noted that the service's improved financial status was due to a higher volume of mail and increased productivity. He said that productivity gains had been made possible by the modernization of facilities and an increase from 25 per cent to almost 75 per cent in the amount of mail processed mechanically, coupled with new rates designed to attract large-volume mail users.

Terrific. All of this deserves applause, and Bolger got it from his audience.

But, in his speech, which was widely reported by the print media and television, the postmaster general forgot to mention something: The Postal Service was able to report a '79 surplus only because it gets a federal subsidy of nearly $1 billion annually. Yep, that's right. I hate to be the skunk at the garden party, but this is true.

In fiscal year 1979, the Postal Service counted $18,175,000,000 as income and $17,705,000,000 as expenses. However, in fiscal 1979, as has been the case for every year since 1971, (and as will be the case through 1981), $920 million of the Postal Service's income was a federal appropriation. Thus, without this subsidy, in 1979 the Service would have been in the red to the tune of $450 million.

When I called the Postal Service, I asked Jamie Cain, general manager of news services, how honest it was for the postmaster general to be claiming a surplus without mentioning the federal subsidy. He replied that he had been told by his "financial people" that there is "no relation" between the two. Cain passed the buck to Van Seagraves, a media information officer in the service's public affairs office. Seagraves said:

"You could make the story about this subsidy, but the fact is that Congress made the subsidy for operating very small post offices and rural services, and that means we can't choose the facilities that we would otherwise close. If this wasn't so, then we'd have taken stops to offset the deficit."

Seagraves' explanation is interesting but, nevertheless, the fact remains that Postmaster General Bolger's claim of a postal surplus, without mentioning the federal subsidy, was, to put it charitably, disingenuous. Bolger called a tail a leg. But, as Lincoln noted, calling a tail a leg doesn't make it a leg.

Reapportionment Panel?

Following editorial appeared recently in the Minneapolis Tribune:

A bill to assign reapportionment of Minnesota's election districts to an independent commission came close to passage in last year's legislative session. A conference committee put together a version attempting to compromise Senate and House differences, but the session ended before both houses could vote on the committee report.

Why is prompt action needed? First, establishing a commission requires not only passage of a bill, but also a state constitutional amendment, which must be approved by voters. Thus legislative action — the sooner the better — is needed to get the question on this fall's ballot and to give voters time to become familiar with the issue. Second, legislative-and-congressional-district lines will have to be redrawn after this year's census. Thus a commission must be established this year, otherwise the job will fall to the Legislature.

What would be wrong with that? Legislatures have a built-in conflict of interest when they attempt to redraw their own district lines. Each party tries to gain advantages for itself; legislators are reluctant to put their colleagues' political futures in jeopardy by disturbing safe districts of forcing incumbents to run against each other. That's why federal courts had to intervene the last two times the Minnesota Legislature tried to redistrict the state. And that's why an independent commission is supported by groups like Common Cause of Minnesota and the League of Women Voters, legislators of both parties and Gov. Al Quie.

One potential snag is the question of what to do with state senators' terms. Senators elected next fall would not normally be up for reelection until 1984. But the state must be reapportioned next year on the basis of 1980 census figures, and House members must run from those new districts in 1982. If senators elected this year serve out their usual four-year terms, House members would represent one set of districts and senators another — with Senate districts no longer reflecting the state's population distribution. Such a situation, clearly out of line with the U.S. Supreme Court's one man-one vote standard, would never survive a constitutional challenge in court. Neither would an attempt to sidestep the problem by delaying reapportionment beyond the 1982 elections. And such a challenge, in either instance, would be a virtual certainty.

Senate agreement to accept shorter terms in 1982 would be a sacrifice. But such a sacrifice would be worthwhile if it gave Minnesota a reapportionment commission, and if it assured that the next reapportionment is fair, logical and constitutional.

THE AFTER-SCHOOL COOKIE

Cookies are a delicious reason for scurrying home from school. Among the varieties of cookies are those in the drop-from-a-teaspoon category—Coconutty Chocolate Gems, to be specific. Who can resist these scrumptious flavors of rich semi-sweet chocolate, peanut butter and flaked coconut? The recipe makes 3 dozen appetite-appealing cookies, well worth the small amount of time they take to make.

COCONUTTY CHOCOLATE GEMS

3 squares Baker's semi-sweet chocolate
1/4 cup peanut butter
1 cup sweetened condensed milk
1 teaspoon vanilla (optional)
1/4 teaspoon salt (optional)
1-1/3 cups (about) Baker's Angel Flake coconut

Melt chocolate in saucepan over very low heat. Add peanut butter and stir until smooth. Remove from heat; add milk, vanilla, salt and coconut and mix well. Drop from teaspoon onto well-greased baking sheets. Sprinkle with additional coconut, if desired. Bake at 350° for 10 to 12 minutes. Remove from baking sheets while still warm. Cool on racks. Store in a tightly covered container. Makes 3 dozen cookies.

Improving the Effectiveness of Government

One of the major problems this country faces today is the ineffectiveness of government. Citizens are becoming increasingly disenchanted with government and the bureaucracies it creates and it is for this reason that I have decided to cosponsor a bill to provide for the establishment of a Commission on More Effective Government. The bill was introduced by Congressman Richard Bolling (D-MO), Chairman of the House Committee on Rules.

During the past several years, I have noticed that Seventh District citizens are losing faith in government at all levels. To put it bluntly, a great many people do not believe government works anymore. A representative government, such as ours, is a fragile structure. It depends on the faith of everyone — the faith that governmental obligations and responsibilities will be met consistently and fairly. Once this faith is lost, the democratic society, as we know it, becomes endangered.

This bill is designed to establish an 18-member bipartisan commission on more effective government which will have the task of making a comprehensive study of all aspects of the federal government. More specifically, the commission would investigate the areas in which government operates effectively and those in which it does not, and report to Congress recommendations on how to make government work.

The commission would also be required to study the extent to which federal, state and local government contribute to the well-being of the American society and individual citizens. Primary focus would be on the manner in which these various units of government interrelate and, if necessary, recommend changes in the relationships to maximize the level and the quality of all government service to the people. Commission recommendations to accomplish these goals may include proposals for change in federal laws, regulations and administrative practices along with suggestions for action to be taken by state and local governments.

In addition, the commission would be required to recommend ways to promote economy, efficiency and improved service in all departments, agencies and other governmental elements.

Specific emphasis is to be given, to "defining and limiting executive functions, activities and services, eliminating duplication, consolidating those aspects of government which are similar, and abolishing those that are not necessary for efficient government operation."

Congressman Bolling, one of the best respected authorities on the operation of the House of Representatives, and I agree on the need for this commission. It has been 30 years since a comprehensive study of our governmental structure and its effectiveness has been undertaken. During that time the government has grown tremendously and we now have programs on top of programs, new agencies, layers of bureaucracy and departments which have flourished without any systematic, overall planning. There are problems with our government and we cannot continue to ignore their severity. Government is intended to work for the people and it is time we examine our current system and take action to insure people they are getting what they pay for.

AGAINST THE ODDS

George V. Smith, owner of the seventh largest black-owned business in America, knows — and shows — how success can be achieved.

Poor, black and uneducated, George V. Smith nevertheless managed to become a millionaire and the owner of the seventh largest black-owned business in America, the largest in Texas. Now, he hopes to help others do likewise.

The 53-year-old Smith heads three companies: Smith Pipe Testing Service Co., Continental Inspection Co. and Smith Pipe and Supply Co. The pipe they deal in is used mainly by the oil industry. In 1978 the companies grossed an impressive $24 million.

Smith has some 100 accounts. One of the major ones is the Sun Company. Smith Pipe is a key supplier in Sun's Minority Vending Program which helps Sun boost its volume of purchases from minority-owned businesses.

Smith points out that about half the Fortune 500 industrial companies have similar programs, and other black entrepreneurs can find them avenues to success.

One hundred million dollars is what Smith hopes his own three companies will gross by 1985, but his ambition is to reap more than mere profits. "My prime motivator is giving people opportunity," he says.

About 70 percent of his employees are black. "We need to quit talking about others hiring blacks and hire ourselves," he suggests. Smith employs high school dropouts and gives them incentives to better themselves. He volunteers his time to talk to troubled youths in poor neighborhoods and points out that he is an example of what can be accomplished against the odds.

FANCY THAT!
TEA

Tea bags were actually "invented" by accident. In 1904 a tea merchant sent samples of his blends to customers in little hand-sewn bags. When customers found they could brew the tea just by pouring boiling water over the bag in a cup, they ordered tea in the bags. Thus, tea bags were born.

Although tea is still sold in bags, these bags also serve up caffeine, now believed by many medical authorities to be harmful.

Individual bags containing herb teas, such as the Magic Mountain herb teas, contain no caffeine—just blends of herbs and botanicals infused with oils of mint, lemon and essential nutrients, all considered helpful in maintaining good health.

Anti-Inflation Plans Proposed For The 1980's

Americans are not saving as much of their earnings as they used to, and without adequate savings, the nation cannot invest in new plants and new technology. Without such investments, productivity declines. When productivity declines, consumers get less for their money. Inflation.

This sort of thinking currently is picking up momentum in the Nation's Capital, and it explains why so much is heard today about the low savings rate in the United States. Actually, we have had a poor record in this respect for the past decade, reports the U.S. chamber of commerce.

From 1970 through 1978 the rate of personal savings in the United States ranked at the bottom (6.6 per cent of disposable personal income) in a list of industrialized countries led by Japan (20.5 per cent).

Not surprisingly, the same list showed that in capital investment — the lifeblood of new plants, machinery, technology and jobs — we also ranked at the bottom of the list.

Similar problems confront both individuals and corporations. The combination of high inflation and higher taxes has undercut purchasing power and the ability of either to set aside earnings for investment.

But there are other pervasive if subtle reasons why savings are on the decline, and the government itself is the fault, the U.S. chamber charges. In recent testimony before the House Ways and Means committee, the chamber explained how our tax laws currently discourage savings and investment and why they should be changed to spur investment that will improve productivity and help restore the U.S. dollar.

Instead of continuing government policies designed to encourage spending, or consumption, the chamber favors use of tax laws to make savings more attractive.

As matters now stand, the chamber said, tax laws are biased against earnings from investments such as savings accounts, bonds and stocks.

"Other sources of income, such as wages or social security benefits, are better protected against inflation since they are adjusted or indexed for changes in prices," said Donald C. Alexander, a former commissioner of internal revenue, testifying as a witness for the chamber.

This "disparity" — as the chamber terms it — is illustrated by a chart submitted to the House ways and means committee.

The table shows how hourly earnings rose with the cost of living, although never quite catching up, of course, while earnings on investment income fell behind.

The chamber recommends tax relief for 1980 of about $25 billion, accompanied by significant cuts in federal spending, with approximately half of the tax relief directed to capital investment. It supports a proposal called the capital cost recovery act, which would accelerate tax write-offs to which business is normally entitled for its investments in new plants and equipment.

Other tax changes, benefitting individual taxpayers primarily, also proposed are:

Reduce the maximum tax rate on investment income from 70 per cent to 50 per cent, the same as for earned income; defer taxes on savings accounts by allowing the interest, dividend or gain to accumulate tax free until it is withdrawn; defer tax on up to $1,500 ($3,000 for joint returns) of stock dividends which are immediately reinvested in new stock of the same company. Capital gains tax would be paid when the stock is sold.

Also, allow employees tax deductions for contributions to an employer's retirement plan or an individual retirement account (IRA) and increasing limits for tax free contributions under IRA plans and Keogh plans; and add an exclusion for interest income to the present exclusion of the first $100 of dividend income.

The new approach for economic policy in the 1980s also has received endorsement from President Carter, who in his recent State of the Union message, said: ". . .a significant part of any tax reduction should be directed to the provision of incentives for increased investment, to improve productivity, expand capacity and adjust to higher energy prices." But he insisted now is not the time for tax reductions.

CHOICEST SEAT IN THE HOUSE

Nothing beats a warm room, a cozy chair, a functioning TV set and a tasty snack for viewing the Winter Olympic Games. The weather outside may be dreadful but you have a front row seat. The prospect of warm Orange-Nut Bran Bread spread with creamy butter and accompanied by plenty of fresh-brewed Maxwell House coffee is truly gold medal fare for stay-at-homes.

ORANGE-NUT BRAN BREAD

1 cup milk
1-1/2 cups 40% bran flakes
1-3/4 cups unsifted all-purpose flour
1 cup sugar
1 tablespoon double-acting baking powder
1 teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon grated orange rind
1 egg, well beaten
1/4 cup shortening, melted
1/3 cup orange juice
1/2 cup chopped pecans
1/2 cup raisins (optional)

Pour milk over cereal in a bowl; set aside. Mix flour with sugar, baking powder and salt; add orange rind. Add egg, shortening and orange juice to softened cereal. Add flour mixture; stir just to moisten all flour. Fold in pecans and raisins. Pour into greased 9x5-inch loaf pan. Bake at 350° for 60 minutes or until cake tester inserted in center comes out clean. Cool in pan 10 minutes. Remove from pan and finish cooling on rack.

Note: For easier slicing and mellowing of flavors, store bread overnight wrapped in wax paper, plastic wrap or aluminum foil.

THE VOICE of BUSINESS

by Richard L. Lesher, President
U.S. Chamber of Commerce

Teddy Kennedy, the senior Senator from Massachusetts, has worked himself into a real dither over inflation. Fancy that! After striving for years to swell the federal budget (and the deficit) with endless something - for- nothing schemes, Mr. Kennedy now worries Americans might not be able to pay their bills. Unfortunately, his concern for inflation has not chilled his love for Big Government.

While quick to criticize the Administration on inflation, Mr. Kennedy has one of the best records in the Senate for supporting Administration positions. During the past three years, while federal spending was shooting up a disastrous 40 per cent, one heard nary a peep of protest from Senator Ted. Indeed, the only time he really seemed upset was when the President got tough with information and proposed his barebones national health insurance plan. You remember: the President's little boondoggle will "only" cost us $24 billion its first year in 1983, whereas Mr. Kennedy's more "comprehensive approach" could run $60 billion. . .or more.

So how will the Senator get this horrible inflation beast back into its cage? No problem. In fact, it will be as simple as one, two, three. Listen to his magical plan: "The President should impose an immediate six-month freeze on inflation, followed by mandatory controls, as long as necessary, across the board, not only on prices and wages, but also on profits, dividends, interest rates and rents."

Rated on a scale of silliness, the idea of imposing an immediate freeze on inflation seems about on a par with commanding the tides not to come in. But there are disturbing signs Kennedy's proposal is gaining credence, because more and more economists who should know better are joining the call for mandatory controls.

If the country makes this terrible mistake again, then we will have learned nothing from the lessons of history which could not be more clear. In a fascinating book entitled, "Forty Centuries of Wage and Price Controls," Robert Schuettinger and Eamonn Butler examine the history of mandatory controls spanning 4,000 years in 30 countries. The authors write:

"While there have been some cases in which controls have at least apparently curtailed the effects of inflation for a short time, they have always failed in the long run. The basic reason for this is that they have not addressed the real cause of inflation which is the increase in the money supply over and above the increase in productivity. Rulers from the earliest times sought to solve their financial problems by debasing the coinage or issuing almost worthless coins at high face values; through modern technology the governments of recent centuries have had printing presses at their disposal. When these measures resulted in inflation, the same rules then turned to wage and price controls. . .when their efforts failed, as they usually did, governments then put the blame on the wickedness and dishonesty of their subjects, rather than upon the ineffectiveness of the official policy. The same tendencies remain today."

They certainly do. The President publicly disagrees with Kennedy; in reality, however, he has followed a policy of creeping controls since the outset of his Administration. After proposing the expansion of COWPS — The Council on Wage and Price Stability — he signed a bill giving the agency the power to subpoena wage-price information from business and workers. Then, after announcing "voluntary" across-the-board controls, he sought to "impose" them through the use of sanctions, blacklisting and threats against anyone who did not properly comply.

In one of his most unforgettable utterances, Mr. Carter claimed: ". . .the price constraints and wage constraints that we have imposed on a voluntary basis have had very beneficial results." Tragically, like Mr. Kennedy, Mr. Carter still does not understand there are only two ways to reduce inflation: Cut back on the production of new money, which means cutting back on government spending, and, increase the supply of goods, which means cutting taxes and regulations. Without these measures, we will inevitably experience increasing supply shortages, more calls for rationing of scarce products, and ultimately, long lines, bribery and black markets.

Nor will it end there. As Nobel prize-winning economist Milton Friedman has warned: "By encouraging men to spy and report on one another, by making it in the private interest of large numbers of citizens to evade the controls, and by making actions illegal that are in the public interest, the controls undermine individual morality. . .(and) threaten the very foundations of a free society."

TIPS ON BUYING A GOOD USED CAR

Check out the used car you're considering before you sign any checks.

More Americans buy used cars than new ones — by approximately 30 percent — and if you know how, you can make an exceptional deal on today's used-car market.

The experts on autos at the Sun Company have some suggestions on how to help yourself drive a great bargain.

For instance, would you believe that a cursory examination of a car's left front door can tell you a lot about the vehicle's history? If it doesn't close with a satisfactory "thunk," there may be serious problems. If a handle, either inside or out, is loose, beware. If the window rattles or doesn't roll up and down easily, watch out.

Any or all of these symptoms indicate frequent use — something you might expect from a very old car but not from one that's supposed to be two years old, or driven less than 5,000 miles.

Before you sit down, examine the driver's compartment. If wear seems excessive on the accelerator, brake pedals or the floor mats, consider this a sign of a long or hard life. Determine whether the seats feel firm. Seats don't normally sag before 40,000 miles or so.

Examine the odometer carefully. If the figures are even slightly out of line, consider that a warning they might have been tampered with.

Check the edge of the chrome for signs of painting. A late-model car should not require an entire repainting unless it's been in an accident or something else is wrong.

Check the tires for uneven wear. That's a sign of front-end alignment work needed.

Push down hard on all four corners of the car to check the shock absorbers. If the car bounces more than twice, they may need replacement. Make sure the car is level, or springs may need repairing.

Examine the fan and accessory belts. If they're worn, they may need replacing. Squeeze the hoses. Mushy ones mean new ones are necessary.

Pull the caps and make sure the plates are covered on the battery. Make sure the cables are tight and in good condition. Check the radiator for discoloration, which could indicate a leak.

Start the engine and look for smoking, which might also indicate a leak. Test drive the car, paying attention to the power steering. If it's stiff or noisy, something's amiss. The automatic transmission should work smoothly, with no hesitation.

After the test drive, put the car in park with the emergency brake on, and let the engine idle awhile. Then, step hard on the gas pedal. Look out the rear-view mirror for signs of excessive smoke, which could indicate a major engine overhaul is needed.

If you have any doubts at all, the car should be checked by a mechanic before you even give a deposit.

Heed these hints, and you may be able to get years more good use out of your "new" used car.

The Wisdom of Big Brother

The Wall Street Journal recently reported a story that should become a basic civics lesson for every child in America — and every politician as well. It seems the town of Westfield, Massachusetts, is involved with two, nearly identical sewer projects. There is, however, one minor difference. One project is locally financed; the other is being directed by the federal government.

The locally financed project has progressed so nicely that construction will begin in early spring. But the federal project is still bogged down in a bureaucratic maze, and has not even been granted approval for federal funding. For example, the government now wants the city to mail a questionnaire to every one of its residents, inquiring whether they use a septic tank or sewer line, and how effective it is.

As the government continues to dilly-dally, the delays are becoming more and more expensive. The cost of the original plan has already quintupled!

Latest Bulletins From The Energy Front

The Department of Energy is busy, busy, busy these days as its employees prepare draconian measures in view of forcing the public to conserve energy. Ironically, the building where all this activity is taking place has one of the nation's highest rates of energy consumption. According to the American Consulting Engineers Council, it takes more than 225,000 BTU's of energy per square foot to heat, cool and light the building for one year. By comparison, the average New York City building uses only 112,000 BTU's per square foot per year.

Meanwhile, down on the street the government's giant fleet of automobiles — the world's largest — is guzzling more gas than ever. Last year, government vehicles traveled 3.3 billion miles — 10.7 per cent more than the year before — and used 320 million gallons of fuel. The total mileage driven by the federal government's vehicles has been increasing more than 50 per cent faster than that of the general public.

A Politician Who Doesn't Like His Job Can Junket

Texas Congressman Ron Paul recently turned down what he termed a "14-day, all expenses-paid winter vacation to study alternative energy sources" in Capetown, South Africa and Rio de Janeiro, Brazil.

Spoilsport Ron was overheard telling the newspaper, Washington Weekly, "All the famous beaches and nightclubs along the route must be coincidences. When the average American can hardly afford to take a weekend away from home, thanks to all the Congressionally-caused inflation and energy problems, politicians will be getting tax-paid tans."

Tourists Are To Be Seen, Not Heard

A United States park ranger recently kicked about 100 teenage boys off the steps of the Jefferson Memorial in Washington, D.C., for singing — are you ready? — "God Bless America." The song was meant to be part of an American Legion Boys Nation program. However, the ranger said the boys' singing was disturbing the peace and disgracing the memory of Thomas Jefferson.

Whipping Inflation— It's Easier Said Than Done

The President wants to whip inflation, but he might do well to avoid emulating the example of Iran. According to the London Daily Telgraph, Iranian shopkeepers are being given up to 15 lashes in an effort to encourage them to reduce prices.

Unfortunately, many Tehran merchants have retaliated by closing their shops. As one angry shopkeeper complained to a housewife : "Why should we be lashed when the prices we have to pay are so high?"

Final Bulletin From The Energy Front

The Community Services Administration, the government's anti-poverty agency, has anticipated the worst. It has spent $75,000 printing booklets entitled: "No More Heat? A Self-Help Booklet." Among other things, it advises people whose heat has been cut off: "A paper bag wrapped (on your head) can keep you warm. . .cut eye holes in the paper bag."

Roofs: What You Should Know

Are you aware of the following facts about roofs?

1. The best time to replace your roof is long before trouble starts. If you have a leak, you may already have extensive damage in the deck beneath the roof. When your roof is really in bad shape, it may be too late to think of cosmetic features like color, shadowlines and texture of the roofing material.

2. A 15-year-old house may need a new roof. Why? The average life of the shingles used for most homes is 15 years.

3. More than 85 percent of the homes in the U.S. have asphalt-shingle roofs. The remainder are covered with cedar, tile and other materials.

4. The best way to tell whether you need a new roof is to call in a professional roofer and let him look for these telltale signs: shingles with curled edges that are obviously dried out; shingles bare of protective granules; lots of granules in drains and gutters; rusted out, or loose metal flashing in areas where roof and chimney, vents and other structures meet; dried out or missing caulking; loose nails and shingles; clogged drains.

5. Standard-weight shingles, which last about 15 years, protect against the elements at reasonable cost. For a longer-lasting roof, you might choose premium shingles, like GAF Timberline, that come in pleasing, natural earth-tone shades and interesting random patterns.

6. A good way to choose a roofing contractor is to look around the neighborhood for good-looking roofs and find out who did the job. Be sure to check his references and qualifications. Or check the Yellow Pages, under GAF, for a listing of reputable local roofing contractors.

Having this information at your disposal can save you years of grief — and many leaks — later on.

Hobby or Business? CPA Group Explain Viewpoint of IRS

Many people operate a part-time business after putting in a regular workweek at a salaried job. Although these "moonlight" businesses provide extra income, they are often outgrowths of hobbies or talents which provide a great deal of personal satisfaction. Sometimes these people hope to one day give up regular jobs and earn a living doing what they love most, reports the Minnesota society of certified public accountants.

A computer analyst liked to relax after his commute from the city by building a sailboat in his suburban garage. His boat was much admired on the water, and a fellow sailor asked him to build a boat for him. Now, our computer analyst was being paid for his "hobby." As his reputation as a craftsman grew, more and more orders for sailboats came in, his garage had become exclusively a "shop," and his hobby was making a profit. He eventually hired an assistant to help run what had grown from a hobby to a cottage — or garage — industry and then into a very busy and profitable small business.

These same circumstances can apply to the antique collector who is now a dealer; the homemaker who operates a babysitting service; the bus driver who is developing a peach farm; and the magazine editor who runs an editorial service from his home. There is sometimes no clear distinction between freelancers, hobbyists who sell their work, and full-fledged small business operators — and the various stages in between.

Many people fail to realize substantial tax savings, says the Minnesota society of certified public accountants, because they don't realize their hobby or sideline is actually a business. If the IRS decides that you are more interested in pleasure than profit, they may want to consider your activity a hobby. In that case they will tax the income from your hobby, but will consider any losses purely personal and therefore, not deductible as business expense.

A business that is as much hobby as anything else, the CPA society advises, will be allowed to deduct operating expenses, but only up to the amount of taxable income the operation produces. Operating losses, which an established company can write off against taxable income, even applying any excess to previous or future years, have no tax effect for the hobbyist; he must absorb them.

If your business spends more than it earns, you must be able to show that the activity is engaged in for the specific purpose of making a profit in order to claim deductions. What's more, you must have some justification for your hope of making a profit; your qualifications and experience must be such that the expectation is realistic. And finally, you must conduct the business as a hard-headed, profit-motivated person would — advertising, promoting, doing what you can to maximize sales and minimize costs.

A good starting point in establishing that a true business exists — and it is just a starting point, the CPAs tell us — is to actually show a profit. Rule is that there must be taxable income in any two or more out of five consecutive years. Then it will be presumed you are engaged in an activity for profit. Importance of adequate books and records cannot be over emphasized.

An editor who adds to his income with freelance editing work is simply moonlighting. However, if he operates an editorial service, it may qualify as a business, but it would be difficult to show where his regular professional work ends and his part-time business begins. His professional library, association dues and subscriptions could be necessities for either job. An electric typewriter, purchased exclusively for use in the editorial service, could be considered depreciable business equipment. However, it would be difficult to show that the editor never used the typewriter for his regular job, or simply for a freelance assignment.

Your business "premises" is another sensitive issue. Deduction for a home office was abused for so long that a few years ago Congress cracked down. To qualify as a business expense, an office at home must be used exclusively and on a regular basis as the taxpayer's principal place of business. If the antique dealer runs his service from the family basement — then he must show that the family does not use the basement at all. The dealer must be able to prove that customers visit the basement office to do business on a regular basis, and he must keep careful records of the dates of those visits.

A small business can also get investment credit for tools and equipment, new or used, purchased during the year. To qualify, items purchased must be useable over an extended period and they cannot include inventory or real estate, although certain building improvements do meet the requirements. The investment credit is a sort of rebate by the government of up to 10 per cent of the purchase price.

Rate at which a company depreciates or amortizes its fixed assets will affect its after-tax income. There are alternative ways of depreciating, with still newer ones now being considered by Congress.

Owners of a business can enjoy certain tax-favored benefits — pension and profit sharing, company-paid individual retirement accounts, and sick-pay plans, for example — usually allowable only if the same benefits are extended to other employees.

It's a rare company, however small, that prepares its own tax returns with no professional assistance. Individuals whose income is all from one source and who have no sizeable deductions often can and do fill out their own Form 1040 — their tax obligations are quite simple. For businesses, say the CPAs, taxes are never simple.

YCC Offers Summer Jobs For MN. Youth

Applications for jobs with the 1980 youth conservation corps (YCC) program will be accepted by Job Service offices throughout the state until March 17, the Minnesota department of economic security announced recently.

YCC is a federally administered work and education program which provides summer employment for youth in the conservation and ecology fields.

All Minnesota youth between the ages of 15 and 18 are eligible. Those selected will be paid $3.10 per hour for 30 hours of work per week. Each youth will also receive 10 hours of environmental instruction each week.

Work projects relating to forest management and wildlife habitat will be at Chippewa and Superior National forests, Tamarac National wildlife refuge, Voyageurs National park, Kabetogama and Paul Bunyan State forests.

Two types of YCC projects, residential and non-residential, will be operational in Minnesota during 1980. Residential youth will live at a camp near the work site. Non-residential youth will live at home and commute to the project. Applicants from throughout Minnesota are eligible for resident projects.

Applications may be obtained at any senior high school or from Minnesota Job Service offices.

Plummer Basketeer Nears Regional Record

Diane Fisher Hopes To Reach Two Goals In Tourney Performance

ELEVEN BROTHERS to go along with three sisters in her family have given Diane Fisher of Plummer a chance for competition at a very local level to help her develop her basketball prowess. "There always seemed to be enough kids around to get up a game," she recalls about her early introduction to the cage sport. A dairy barn on their former farm provided a hayloft practice court and helped introduce Diane to an activity which helped make school bearable.

by Marvin Lundin

When the Plummer girls basketball team takes the floor against Stephen Tuesday night, two goals will be paramount in the mind of forward Diane Fisher. One will be winning the game to advance in District 31 tournament play. The other will be an opportunity to become the top career scorer in the history of Region 8A girls basketball.

Fisher, who has been the mainstay of coach Rick Koivisto's team for the past three years, needs nine points in Tuesday's contest to surpass the present record of 1,287 career points held by Shelly Olstad of Fertile-Beltrami. Olstad graduated last year. Fisher has 1,275 career points through the regular season, including 33-point career high individual game performances against Strandquist and Middle River late this season.

Only twice in the last three years has Fisher been held below double figures in the scoring column. The Fisher Flyers stopped her with four points last season and Warren held her to the same number the year before. This year her lowest point production was 13 points against Alvarado in the last game of the season when she played in spite of being sick.

"If I were to single out her strong points," coach Koivisto said, "they would have to be her attitude and her ability to play defense. She loves to play the game and she is not a selfish player. She will give up a chance to score if she can set up a teammate for a better shot. But she's a talented athlete and we do have plays designed to take advantage of her ability."

The plays were evident when the photos accompanying this story were taken in a game against Warren, considered the team to beat in District 31 and possibly in Region 8A. Plummer grabbed an early 9-4 lead in that game, eventually losing 54-45.

In the early going Diane took a pass from the point, picked up a screen from forward Sandy Zimpel, took two dribbles toward the baseline and put up a 15-foot jumper that hit nothing but net. A short time later she cut through the lane to the left side, took another feed, used Zimple's pick again and canned another jumper.

By half-time in that game she had hit five of six field goal tries and four out of four free throws. She finished the night with 22 points, matching the performance of Warren's six-foot center Kim Brekke.

In a sport where 15 for 60 team field goal shooting is not at all uncommon, Fisher has always shot at a 40 per cent clip or better for the season. She developed her shooting touch while playing basketball with her brothers (she has 11 of them), either outdoors or in the hayloft of the family's dairy barn. Her brother Ray perhaps helped her the most; he was a stalwart on the Plummer boys team a few years ago.

Diane's brothers include Paul, 4; Johnny, 10; Gene, 12; Kenny, 16; Harvey, 19; Jerry, 21; Tom, 23; Dave, 25; Ray, 26; Jim, 28; and Charles, 29. Her three sisters are 14-year-old Bonnie (also a member of the Plummer team), Mrs. Paul (Clara) Everson of Indianapolis, Ind., and Mrs. Brent (Linda) Hemly of Plummer.

Diane's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Fisher, like to watch their daughter play basketball but sometimes alternate game attendance with staying home to care for four-year-old Paul. Fisher is in the home-sawed lumber business, giving up his dairying operation a short time ago.

Basketball has been a diversion which has made school bearable for Diane. "I really didn't like school very much," she admits. "Playing basketball is fun; I put up with school so I could play basketball. Now that I'm a senior it doesn't seem so bad."

Diane has been a starter since she was a freshman and the basketball program for girls at Plummer was a new sport. She hit double figures only twice in her first seven

ALMOST SURROUNDED by Warren Ponies players, forward Diane Fisher of Plummer chased down this loose ball and converted the recovery into a field goal by putting up a shot in heavy traffic. Fisher has scored 1,275 points through her four-year high school career and is well within reach of the Region 8 scoring mark of 1,287 as she goes into the District 31 tournament Tuesday.

Welfare Board Seeks Comment On County Plan

Pennington county social services department is invited public comment relative to the development of a comprehensive community social service plan in the county for 1981 and 1982, according to Gary Erickson, county director.

The plan is to be developed by the Pennington county welfare board and staff by May 1. Public comment may be submitted to the county welfare board at P.O. Box 340, Thief River Falls. A public meeting has also been called for March 13 at 1:15 p.m. in the county courthouse, at which time oral comment will be received.

Subjects addressed may include a number of social services with a view toward establishing service priority and determining the most effective means of delivery. Among subjects suggested for consideration are adoption, chore, counseling, developmental achievement, day care, housing information and referral, legal, money management, protection, educational assistance, employability, family planning, foster care, health, homemaking, residential treatment, social and recreational and transportation.

COUNTING BALLOTS cast by Pennington county livestock producers in the beef referendum held recently were Duane Vatsaas (left) and Harold Kalnes of the Pennington county ASCS committee. Kalnes is county ASCS chairman. They were joined in the count Thursday by vice chairman Olaf Olson and staff member Ruth Hanson. With 96 livestock producers registered to vote in the county, 80 cast ballots with only 13 in favor and 67 opposed. Nationwide the referendum, which would have permitted a check-off on each hundredweight of cattle sold to finance beef promotion, was soundly defeated.

Census Is Simple For Most Citizens

For most Americans, the 1980 census will be simple enough. A questionnaire will arrive in the mail on March 28. The recipient will simply answer the questions, which will not take long, and then hold it for a census taker to collect.

What may not be apparent to millions of Americans, as they answer the census in the privacy and convenience of their homes, is the fact that they are making personal contributions to an undertaking so vast, so complex, that the 1980 census qualifies as one of the largest peacetime efforts ever mounted in this country.

By the time the last American is counted sometime during the summer, the bureau of the census will have reached an estimated 222 million U.S. residents and 86 million housing units, and gathered more than three billion answers.

The 222 million residents, a nine per cent population increase since 1970, include some people who do not speak English, people with various political opinions, the rich and the destitute, the educated and the illiterate, members of all the earth's races. The census must also assess their housing — single-family homes, houseboats, condominiums, shacks, "abandoned" buildings, migrant worker camps, jails, school dormitories, at sea and overseas. The census is expected to count 28 per cent more housing units in 1980 than in 1970.

At the same time, never in the history of the census, which has been taken every 10 years since 1790, have census findings played as important a role in American life as they do today. Besides the Constitutional mandate to provide a basis for reapportioning seats in the House of Representatives, the census measures how well the nation is doing, from the block level to the entire country. Its findings are used in the private and public sectors to decide how billions of dollars will be spent annually.

Planning for the 1980 census, which has gone on since the early seventies, reflects this heightened need for the most complete count ever taken, especially of minorities.

In 90 per cent of the nation's households, people will be asked to take their own census, in effect, by answering the questionnaires and mailing them back in postage-free envelopes. Census takers will obtain the information from households that fail to mail back completed

1st Allocation Meeting Held By United Way

First allocation meeting of the Thief River Falls United Way was conducted Feburary 25. Campaign total to date is $72,757.72.

In order for the United Way board to do a successful job in determining which organizations should receive the funds, the board is divided into four committees with three board members on each committee. Each committee is then given eight to 10 agencies which have made a request for a specific amount of money. Committees research each agency, finding answers to United Way questions, then report back to the full board for the vote of approval or disapproval.

Requests granted February 25 include: Health Education for Living program (diabetes education center), $300; American Diabetes association of Minnesota, $600; Minnesota Medical foundation (kidney research), $2,500; I Can Cope, $380; Red Cross, $1,000; Friendship club, $450; Special Friends, $175; United Service organization (USO), $272; Minnesota Epilepsy league, $1,200; Child Abuse council hotline, $200; Inter-county nursing service, $200; and Cerebral Palsy research, $350.

In considering requests, the United Way board members ask the following questions:

(1) What does the agency do locally?

(2) What is the total budget (breakdown, if possible)?

(3) What is the least amount the agency needs?

(4) What is the request to United Way for (operating expense, equipment, etc.)?

(5) How is the agency generally funded?

(6) What will the agency do if it does not receive its full request from United Way?

(7) Does the agency do a good job? Who and how many people does it serve?

(8) If a local agency, consider visiting the agency or having a representative come to your meeting.

(9) What does the community derive from this agency (direct or indirect benefits)?

(10) What is your committee's recommended allocation for 1980?

(11) If no allocation is made to the agency, how will the community be affected?

Harbott And Sandsmark Marriage Vows Spoken

Miss Kathy Harbott and Wesley Sandsmark exchanged marriage vows recently at a three o'clock ceremony at St. John Lutheran church in this city.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Del Barbott of Thief River Falls; and the groom is the son of Milton Sandsmark of Grygla.

Rev. Barrie Henke officiated at the double ring ceremony attended by approximately 150 relatives and friends. Serving as organist and soloist was Mrs. Elaine Idso. She played "The Wedding Song," for the processional, and during the ceremony, she sang "God, a Woman and a Man," and "The Lord's Prayer."

The bride was escorted to the altar and given in marriage by her father. She was attired in a floor-length gown of white chiffonette fashioned with a fitted bodice with a pearl embroidered cameo yoke, outlined with a lace ruffle. Her bishop sleeves were of matching lace. Adding interest to her flowing skirt were tiers of corresponding lace. Her double tiered veil, edged with wide lace, fell from a matching lace headpiece, accented with pearls. She carried a bouquet of red and white roses, accented with babies' breath and ferns.

Rhonda Thomas of Grygla, a friend of the couple, was the bride's personal attendant.

Serving as maid of honor was Maureen Johnson, a cousin of the bride. Bridesmaids were Crystal Liden, a cousin of the bride; Jill Nelson, a friend of the couple; and Nancy Westerlund of St. Cloud, a friend of the couple. They wore identical light blue floor-length halter styled dresses with lace midriff-length jackets, trimmed with navy blue velvet. In their hair, they wore a cluster of babies' breath. Each attendant carried two white roses, accented with greenery and light blue ribbon streamers.

Kenny Thomas of Grygla, a friend of the couple, was best man. Groomsmen were the bride's brothers: Rick Harbott of Newfolden, and Hal and Doug Harbott of Thief River Falls. Serving as ushers were Rodney Anderson and David Sistad of Grygla, friends of the couple. All wore light blue jackets with navy blue trousers and vests. Their boutonnieres were white silk roses and babies' breath.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Harbott selected a navy blue floor-length gown complemented by a white silk carnation corsage with light blue trim.

Following the ceremony, the bride's parents hosted a ham dinner in the church parlors. Serving as host and hostess were Mr. and Mrs. Wade Harbott, brother and sister-in-law of the bride.

Mrs. Doug Harbott registered the guests as Mrs. Rick Harbott and Mrs. Hal Harbott served the punch. All are sisters-in-law of the bride.

Centering the serving table was a square three-tiered wedding cake, decorated with blue flowers. The cake was cut and served by Mrs. Sharlotte Baasen and Mrs. Sylvia Sorenson, aunts of the groom. Pouring coffee were Mrs. Elmer Berglund and Mrs. Eldon Harbott, aunts of the bride.

Waitresses were Barb Byrne, Vicki Hunt, Vicky Feragen and Marla Nelson, friends of the couple. Corey and Tiffany Harbott, nephew and niece of the bride, presided at the gift table.

Following a wedding trip through and Iron Range and along the North Shore Drive, the couple is now at home in rural Grygla. The bride is a 1974 graduate of Lincoln high school; and the groom is a graduate of Marshall County Central high school, Newfolden, with the class of 1972. Heart Fund Gets Generous Support In Co.

Although the heart fund "door to door" campaign will soon come to an end, contributions and memorials can be made at any time of the year, according to Cynthia Sillers, northwest regional director of the American Heart association, Minnesota affiliate in Moorhead.

Special events may be scheduled any time, she said. A number of people from Thief River Falls are active in this year's Heart Fund campaign in Pennington county, including, Darlene Shetler, county chairman; Myrtle Stromberg, residential chairman; Jean Hellie, First Northwestern state bank, treasurer; Mrs. David Drotts, memorial chairman; Neal Fox, business chairman; and Mrs. Charles Dicken, publicity chairman. District chairman is Ernie Hilkey, First National bank in Crookston.

Many Pennington county residents have been contacted and have given generously to the Heart Fund, according to Sillers, and many others will be contacted in the near future.

Heart disease is a number one killer and one out of every two Americans who die this year will die of heart disease. Contributions to the American heart association help fight heart disease through heart related research, and new educational and community service programs, she added.

Anyone interested in making a contribution to the Heart fund, or information concerning sponsoring a special event for the local Heart Fund, Heart association programs and educational materials, or general information about the American Heart association may contact Myrtle Stromberg, 348 Tindolph, Thief River Falls; Cynthia Sillers, Northwest Regional director, American Heart association, Minnesota affiliate, route 2, Box 180, Moorhead, MN, 56560; or the American heart association, Minnesota affiliate, 4701, west 77th street, Minneapolis, MN 55435.

Citizenship Test Evaluated At Newfolden

Evaluation of citizenship testing given to eighth grade students in the spring of 1978 at Marshall county central school in Newfolden has recently been made, according to David Kragness, principal at the school.

Test results and the reporting of them involve a continuation of the planning, evaluating and reporting (PER) project that began in the spring of 1977.

Kragness said the citizenship test was made up of four acreas including political knowledge, political attitudes, social attitudes and political education. Students at MCC showed strength in the areas of political attitudes (79.3 per cent compared to a national average of 72.9 per cent) and political education (87.5 per cent compared with 71.5 per cent).

"Our students were in the acceptable range on test items covering political knowledge and social attitudes where we averaged 4.8 per cent higher than the national average of 63.3 per cent and 87.7 per cent, respectively," Kragness added.

"The only area on the citizenship testing where we showed a need was in the area of participation in local, state and national government processes. We feel this may be attributed to the fact that not many 13 or 14-year-olds are actively involved in the political processes at any level of government."

Marshall county central school will be reporting next on the social studies testing results. The district board set forth its educational goals in January of 1977 and a community meeting was held May 19 of that year.

First undertaken for evaluation were basic literacy, reading, math and communications tests. Following those tests were criterion reference testing for grade 12 writing, grade 11 listening and grade 10 communications.

Test results were analyzed for program strengths and needs in writing, reading and mathematics in April and May of 1978. Writing workshop was held on June 12-16, 1978 and mathematics workshop on Jan. 5, 1979. Test result reports included basic literacy, August, 1978; Grade 8 reading, May, 1978; Grade 12 writing, August, 1978; Grade 8 math, March, 1979; and grade 10 communication, August, 1978. Retesting on writing skills is scheduled for the 1980-81 school year.

Morbens Join VFW Officer In Washington

Eighty-three Minnesotans join with state VFW commander Archie Pavek for a five day Veterans of Foreign Wars legislative seminar and conference in Washington D.C. this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest C. Morben of V.F.W. Post 2793, along with V.F.W. state commander Pavek of Prior Lake are meeting March 1-5 with the Minnesota congressional delegation to discuss priority veteran related legislative matters.

One of the first concerns of the group is to insure that the proposed new Veterans administration medical center (hospital) received the necessary appropriations to guarantee completion by 1984, and that there is no substitute for the present site.

The group will ask Congress to step up the search for Vietnam veterans who were exposed to the herbicide known as "Agent Orange". The V.F.W. "does not intend to allow this research to receive the same back burner delay that was given those who claim radiation exposure from nuclear testings," Morben said.

The Morbens joined with Commander Pavek in his concern for "the financial plight of the World War I veterans on meager pensions with the high cost of energy and skyrocketing inflation."

Commander Pavek added that the V.F.W. is keeping a watchful eye on the educational program for Vietnam veterans, and the V.F.W. isn't going to let the spiraling costs be passed on the young veteran going to a vo-tech school or college.

Pavek also noted that the V.F.W. is concerned over an adequate budget for the Veterans administration hospitals since four such facilities serve the veterans in Minnesota. He said the Minneapolis V.A. hopsital has been of prime assistance in the training available at the University of Minnesota medical school, since over half of the doctors trained at the V.A. stay to set up practice in Minnesota.

Census Simple Procedure For Most Citizens

questionnaires as requested.

The remaining 10 per cent, which will receive instructions to hold the completed questionnaires until census takers pick them up, are mostly in sparsely settled areas in the western half of the nation. In some cases, the census takers will ask additional questions.

Census questions seek basic information about people — age, sex, occupation, and the like — and about subjects such as housing, personal transportation, and energy use. Most people will be asked to answer a basic census questionnaire, which has 19 questions. About one of five households, chosen randomly, will be asked to anwer a longer version with 46 additional questions.

Federal law requires everyone to answer the census; it also protects the confidentiality of personal information. The only people who can see an individual's replies are census employees, who are sworn to secrecy under threat of a $5,000 fine and five-year prison term.

In the 50-year history of the modern census confidentiality law, not once has the bureau or one of its employees been formally charged with releasing census information about any individual. Landmark court rulings through this century have continually upheld the bureau's refusal to release such information, even to the Secretary of State, the Attorney General, or to corporations involved in litigation.

Moreover, the bureau designs its procedures to avoid situations that could lead to a breach of the confidentiality law. Names, addresses and telephone numbers are never allowed to enter any computer. Social security numbers are not requested by the census.

The 1980 census tabulations will yield a comprehensive statistical picture of the nation, and of every state, county and community. This data about social and economic characteristics will be used time and again in ways that benefit all strata of society, though the census bureau merely provides the data, and never applies it.

Being counted is crucial to full political representation as well. Census figures, besides their role in reapportioning the House of Representatives, are also used by most states to redistrict their legislatures and to adjust boundaries in municipal election areas.

American business firms, from local stores to multinational corporations, rely on census statistics when selecting new sites, evaluating product lines, and for other purposes that ultimately affect the state of the nation's economy.

Concern is often voiced about why particular questions are included in the census. For example, one question asks about plumbing facilities. Why? Because, for several decades, plumbing facilities have been an important indicator of housing quality. The adequacy of plumbing facilities is a key factor in determining which communities receive federal housing assistance funds.

Almost every question in the 1980 census is needed for legislative purposes and often provides valuable data for industry, local government and others. All census questions survived years of scrutiny and have been reviewed by Congress.

As the importance of census information has increased, so has pressure to assure that every U.S. resident is counted. An unprecedented effort will be made by the census bureau to obtain the fullest possible count.

For several years, advisory committees composed of Black, Hispanic and Asian-American leaders have worked with the census bureau to devise ways for improving the count of minorities. Similar meetings have been held with Native American leaders. A number of innovative methods will be used during the 1980 census to obtain the best possible count, such as double-checking households reported vacant and placing census takers in all night movies, taverns and on street corners in major urban areas to find the uncounted.

There has also been an unprecedented effort by the bureau to prepare a complete list of mailing addresses, to assure that every household receives a questionnaire on March 28. It is estimated that $2 million will be shaved from the cost of the census for every one per cent of the nation's households that promptly mails back fully answered questionnaires.

By law, the bureau must provide the President with the population totals for all the states by Jan. 1, 1981, for purposes of Congressional reapportionment. A new law also requires that the population of counties, cities and other political subdivisions be provided to each state no later than April 1, 1981, for redrawing district lines.

Conference On Grantsmanship Set March 20

Northwest regional development commission, in cooperation with the U.S. small business administration and Minnesota North Country of Bemidji has scheduled a one day Grantsmanship Conference for March 20 at the Best Western motel in Crookston. Registration will begin at 8:30 a.m. with the conference beginning at 9 a.m.

Commission is providing this conference as part of its planning assistance and grantsmanship program to the communities in Region I. There will be no registration fee, and elected officials, staff and other agencies and organizations are invited to participate. It is requested that participants register either by phone to 281-1396 or mail to 425 Woodland Avenue, Crookston, 56716 by March 10 so accommodations can be made.

This conference has been designed to help local governments and others to develop sound program planning, proposal development, evaluation design and program budgeting. Commission has engaged two professional grant consultants who will take the participants step by step through the process of writing a winning proposal, with many tips on what to do and what not to do, as well as how to research funding sources and make the necessary government contacts.

There will be representatives from the Northwest regional development commission, Minnesota North Country of Bemidji and the U.S. small business administration to answer questions in addition to Claire T. Olson, University of Minnesota, and Linda Jessen, independent grant consultant, Mound.

Land O' Lakes Sales Total $2.4 Billion

Land O' Lakes, Inc. reported sales in 1979 of $2.4 billion, a new high for the Minneapolis-based farm supply and food marketing cooperative. Net margins increased 25 per cent to more than $35 million. In 1978, Land O' Lakes' sales totaled $1.5 billion and margins $28 million.

Patronage equities paid in cash to members in 1979 totaled $16 million, equal to 64 per cent of the 1978 allocated margins. Included in this amount was a cash equity revolvement payment of $7.9 million, the equivalent of one full year of equity revolvement.

Commenting on the payment, Ralph Hofstad, president of Land O' Lakes, said, "A full year revolvement of equity is highly desirable. It is a goal cooperatives strive for but are rarely able to achieve."

Yearly financial report was made to the cooperative's membership February 27, on the opening day of the three day Land O' Lakes annual meeting at the Radisson hotel in Minneapolis. More than 3,000 farmer-owners and managers of member cooperatives from seven midwest states attended the meeting.

It was reported to the membership that Land O' Lakes' patronage refunds for 1979 totaled nearly $30 million, 84 per cent of the cooperative's margins before taxes.

To more efficiently serve members' increased farm production and marketing requirements, Land O' Laes in the past year spent $43 million for new additions, equipment, and for investments in interregional cooperatives.

Land O' Lakes, with assets of $590 million, is owned by 877 member cooperatives and 8,878 individual farmer stockholders. Over the past 10 years it has returned in cash to its member-owners in excess of $108 million.

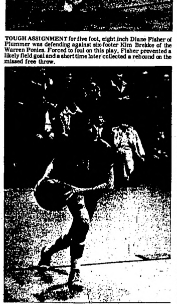
PLAYING DEFENSE is part of being a total basketball player and Diane Fisher of Plummer maintains her position in a zone defense against Warren in the photo above. Fisher has been a four-year starter at Plummer and this year has averaged just a shade under 24 points per game with 431 points in 18 regular season contests.

TOUGH ASSIGNMENT for five foot, eight inch Diane Fisher of Plummer was defending against six-footer Kim Brekke of the Warren Ponies. Forced to foul on this play, Fisher prevented a likely field goal and a short time later collected a rebound on the missed free throw.



BRINGING THE BALL upcourt after clearing a rebound, Diane Fisher of the Plummer girls basketball team shows her versatility. Although she accepts the responsibility of carrying much of the offensive load for her team, she is most pleased when the team wins and teammates share in the scoring.

games, then scored anywhere from 12 to 21 points in the next eight games. She finished that first year with 185 points in 16 games.

As a sophomore she scored in double figures for 15 of the 16 games she played, including 32 points against Red Lake Falls and 30 against Fisher. Her season point production was 264, bringing her totals to 449 after her first two seasons.

As a junior she increased her scoring pace, averaging nearly 19 points a game with 395 points in 21 games and increasing her three-year total to 844. Nine of those 21 games produced 20 points or more, including 27 against Alvarado and Sacred Heart and 26 against Red Lake Falls.

With Diane closing in on the magic 1,000 point mark in the seventh game of the current season, coach Koivisto made a decision which still has him shaking his head. Leading Red Lake Falls 52-29 at Red Lake Falls, Koivisto benched Fisher with 17 first half points and 998 career total. He wanted her to hit the 1,000 point mark before her home fans.

Red Lake Falls caught fire in the second half and Plummer came away with a 56-55 win. "I guess I would never have forgiven myself if we lost that one," he said.

Plummer fans jammed the gymnasium for the next game against Oslo, the biggest crowd ever to watch a girls basketball game at Plummer. Midway in the first quarter Diane Fisher put up one of those patented short range jump shots from the right side for an even 1,000 points and was awarded the game ball. She finished the night with 27.

Since the 1,000 point mark was attained, she has been on a scoring binge. She hit for 18 against East Grand Forks Sacred Heart, 29 against Alvarado, 25 against Red Lake Falls, 22 against Warren, 27 against Oklee, 30 against Mount St. Benedict, 33 against Strandquist, 22 against Argyle, 33 against Middle River and 13 against Alvarado. In 13 of the 18 games this year she has hit 20 points or more and her season total of 431 gives her an average of just under 24 points a game.

Co-captain of the team with Jodi Pahlen, Diane is hoping the Plummer team can beat a Stephen club that took an 11-point decision from the Cardinals earlier this year. Tuesday's match-up will be played at either Warren or Alvarado, depending on which teams win in games scheduled tonight. Location is arranged to avoid giving any team a home court advantage in the tournament.

"We'll have to play one of our better games," stated Koivisto, a 1974 Bemidji state university graduate who has been teaching at Plummer for six years. He took over the girls basketball coaching duties from Howard Hendrickson three years ago.

"And I sure would like to have Diane set a new regional scoring record. A kid that puts as much into the game as she does really deserves it."

Higher Gas Tax Needed

As the major oil producing nations impose higher prices on the product they sell on the world market, the price per gallon of gasoline goes up at U.S. service stations. Some, but not all, of the producing nations have boosted prices up by $6 a barrel. The U.S. refineries have financed the boost by raising the wholesale price of gasoline six cents a gallon.

The U.S. price for heating oil and other petroleum products will follow the same pattern. Still the Carter administration is talking about imposing an import fee on imported crude that would cause additional increases in gas and fuel prices. The administration says the users would get the money back by reductions in other taxes, but the intent of the import fee would be to decrease gasoline consumption.

The steady rise in gas prices over the last several months has already brought about a substantial reduction in consumption, to the point where the Minnesota Highway Department is losing so much in gas tax revenues it has been forced to cancel several construction projects scheduled for 1980. Gov. Al Quie has recommended a 4-cent increase in the per gallon tax so that construction and maintenance don't fall so far behind that there never will be time and money to catch up.

North Dakota is fast approaching the same situation. There was a 10 per cent decrease in gasoline sales in the three months of July, August and September. North Dakota gas tax revenues have decreased by about 10 per cent for the first nine months of 1979. So Gov. Arthur A. Link has followed Gov. Quie's lead and said a gas tax increase may be necessary.

Not only is the North Dakota Highway Department suffering, but cities and counties will also face the impact of less money from the state-collected taxes. The pressure for higher state taxes will be great in the 1981 session as higher gas prices force less traveling and a major switch to smaller cars or alternate transportation.

But as the gas price goes up and traffic declines, the need for a good road system doesn't evaporate. If people use their cars less, they will be asking transportation firms to run more buses. They will want commercial firms to deliver purchases to the small towns and farms. They will do a lot of mail-order shopping.

All of this means that the existing highways have to be maintained in summer and kept clear of snow in winter. If the gas tax money doesn't finance these jobs, then there will have to be heavier taxes on the cars, trucks and buses themselves. Gasohol will be taxed the same as gasoline. Electric cars will have to pay their share of highway maintenance costs.

The higher cost of energy is going to force changes in our lifestyle that few can appreciate at the present time.

Ownership Of Guns

In this election year there will again be considerable talk on campaign issues and comment about special interest legislation. It may be expected that one of the issues will again be what has been loosely defined as "gun control".

We have actively resisted such efforts in the past, not so much out of fear of being disarmed as a citizenry but beceuse we believe the government at any level has no business telling people what they can or can not own, buy or sell, or responsibly use or possess. We see efforts which would disarm the law-abiding as ridiculous as a crime deterrent and we believe proponents of such legislation are probably lacking in other areas of reason as well.

The following item from a sporting publication was submitted to us for consideration. We agree with the basics presented therein and hereby present it to our readers for their consideration:

The ownership of guns is a great privilege in the United States of America which is enjoyed by millions! It will continue because the majority of the people have at least one firearm.

The freedom of the United States was attained only through firearms; without them freedom would have failed. Freedom will be maintained only by continued ownership of firearms by the law abiding citizen. Those who proclaim registration of firearms have only one purpose in mind! They do not believe in the freedom and rights of you, the law abiding citizen, and intend to take this right away from you. In order to do so they must take away your firearms and then you will be at their mercy. Remember that when you vote!!

Since the majority of the voters are firearm owners they can elect whomever they choose and defeat those who are anti gun and represent the greatest internal threat to your freedom and your great government.

Individual ownership of firearms is the number one security for our government, yourself, home and property. Firearms also provide enjoyment for target practicing, hunting, collecting, investing and much more. Education will reduce fear for those who do not own firearms. Education helps overcome ignorance and abuse of firearms.

Be proud of your firearms, handle with care and enjoy the great American privilege.

Figures Don't Lie, But . . .

A learned statistician once observed that figures don't lie, but liars figure. Such an observation may be both mathematically and psychologically correct.

Consider Rep. Bill Frenzel's observation that the highlight of President Jimmy Carter's budget for the next year is a 12 per cent increase in spending from $550 billion to $620 billion. Because of inflation's effect on tax receipts and the anticipated windfall profits tax, the predicted deficit of $15 billion is about one-half of last year's deficit.

With inflation at 14 per cent annually, a 12 per cent increase is actually a decrease, Rep. Frenzel says, but he notes that the President missed a great opportunity.

"For instance," the Third District Congressman from Minnesota said, "the President's wage guidelines range from 7½ to 9½ per cent. If he could hold his own increases to what he asks of us, the deficit would be wiped out."

The Congressman's point is well taken, but it seems to us that such comments by Representatives and Senators have a hollow ring. When a person in such a position laments budgetary conditions, we must wonder why he doesn't do something to change them. The President makes a budget request; the Congress adopts the budget and appropriates the funds. If Congress says "no", the budget doesn't get funded.

It gets a little tiresome to hear holders of national legislative office complain about high budgets when indeed they are the only people in position to do something about it.

Play Games With Outlaws?

Following editorial was written by John Schneider in the Redwood Gazette:

President Carter's call for a worldwide boycott of the Moscow Olympic Games, or a switch of sites, seems to have generated considerable support at home. . . but not much from our "friends" around the globe.

Changing sites at this late date appears to be impractical but a boycott by the USA, even if we have to go it alone, has substantial merit.

It won't solve world problems or make Russian troops go home, but the absence of American athletes and media coverage would hurt the Russians. . . and these people need some hurting.

This has been an outlaw nation since its 1917 revolution. It has butchered thousands and thousands of people inside the Soviet Union and in Czechoslovakia, Poland, Hungary and now Afganistan.

It has never, not once, kept a promise or honored a treaty unless it was in its own interest to do so.

It has fomented trouble for the United States everywhere in the world, including 90 miles from Florida. It supports anti-American barbarism in places like Teheran.

It builds walls around the people it subjugated and shoots them when they try to get out.

And besides that, Russia cheats in sports, even trying to pass off a man as a woman on one sporting occasion. Its international sports judges are corrupt.

Domination of the world always has been and continues to be the long range goal of the Soviet Union.

We have to deal with these people as part of the world community. . . but we certainly don't have to play games with them under the guise of international sportsmanship.

They don't know what the word means.

Borrowed Nonsense:

Pondering over a crossword puzzle, the wife asked: "John, what's a three-letter word for a fuzzy, stupid, female critter?" "Ewe," he replied, and that's when the fight started.

CONGRESSMAN Arlan Stangeland recently received the Republican policy award for his efforts to "lower taxes, limit government spending, reduce excessive regulation and support a strong national defense." Awarding the Congressman a certificate for "support of these Republican principles during the First Session of the 96th Congress", was Congressman Bud Shuster of Pennsylvania, chairman of the House Republican policy committee. Accepting the award, Congressman Stangeland suggested that it was "time for the federal government to get its hands out of the taxpayers' pockets," and assured "the people of the Seventh district that I shall continue to fight to balance the federal budget, reduce taxes and strengthen our defense posture."

Legislative Report

Marv Hanson

District 1 State Senator

Last week was an active one for senate committees working to put bills in final form for full senate consideration. Legislation receiving committee approval ranged from a measure establishing new bonding authority to improve our railways to a proposal for a program of state grants to aid counties and local units of government in energy conservation efforts.

The energy bill endorsed in committee authorizes the state energy agency to make grants to counties and local units of government for use in monitoring local energy supplies, demands and costs; as well as to assist in local planning directed toward increasing energy efficiency. The maximum grant available under the proposal would be $50,000 and 55 per cent of the funding would be reserved for areas outside the metropolitan area.

The bill also calls for a 10-member legislative joint energy committee to develop energy policy. That body would look into energy supply and demand, alternative energy sources and improvements to energy conservation efforts. The bill is an important first step toward developing a state energy policy.

The rail bonding bill would allocate $53 million to the state rail service improvement account, a special account from which local governments can receive loans or grants to improve rail systems.

A related bill which received committee approval establishes a state rail bank for abandoned rail lines. Under provisions of the bill, the state could use funds from the rail service improvement account to purchase and hold for up to 30 years abandoned rail lines that may prove to be a vital transportation or energy resource in the future.

Another bill receiving committee attention is one on which I am a co-sponsor and it tightens restrictions on alien ownership of Minnesota farmland. In 1977, we enacted legislation which prohibits any person from acquiring interest in farmland unless they were a U.S. citizen or a permanent resident alien.

Permanent resident alien is a status granted by the U.S. immigration and naturalization service.

Subsequently, we learned that permanent resident aliens can be absent from the United States for an extended period of time and still not lose that status. There is no U.S. residence requirement unless the person wants to become a U.S. citizen. Then that person has to reside in the U.S. six months of every year.

The legislation considered by committee this past week would require a permanent resident alien to divest his ownership in agricultural land if he is physically absent from the United States for more than six months a year.

Some other measures receiving committee approval included one establishing a low-interest home-loan program for veterans and another establishing an experimental job-sharing program in state government.

If you want to contact me about these or any other matters, write to 23J State Capitol Building, St. Paul, Minn. 55155 or call 612-296-4835.

Conservation Plan Review Time Advances

The 60-day public review period of proposed U.S. department of agriculture soil and water conservation programs is half over, stated Phil Bergland, county executive director of the ASCS.

"To put it another way," he said, "the public has only about 30 days left in which to stand up and be heard concerning the future direction of the nation's conservation program.

"Actually we want public comment on the soil and water resources conservation act of 1977 (RCA)," Bergland said. "Comments are invited on not only conservation proposals, but USDA's process of carrying out the act, and the published documents."

The resource concerns and proposed alternatives are available at any USDA office in Pennington county.

"When the government starts talking about mandatory regulations for erosion control, I would think that people would get concerned," Bergland said. "We encourage the public to take time and fill out the questionnaire and send in their comments."

Written comments can be sent to the RCA Response Center, P.O. Box 888, Athens, Georgia 30603.

To the Editor:

I am an American citizen and view with alarm the condition of our once-free Republic. I might even say that I am afraid of our future.

I am not afraid of Brezhnev or the Russian people. I am not afriad of Castro of the Cuban people. I am not afraid of Red China, or of Tito, or any other communist leader in the world.

But, I am afraid of what my president, my senators and representatives, and the Supreme Court justices are doing to my country and want to do to me and my family.

No one but our president could agree to a unilateral disarmament plan.

No one but our senators could give our land to the United Nations, use my money to keep subversives in office, and give aid to our enemies.

No one but our Supreme Court justices could rewrite — even to the point of repealing — our Constition to please the U.N. world revolutionaries, without authority or permission from any legal source.

Anyone who says the enemy is 90 miles from our shores is mistaken as to who the enemy is. Your enemy is in Washington, D.C., and you had better know that.

To The Editor:

Residents of Thief River Falls are fortunate to have a variety of child care service options available to them. They include a child care center, a nursery school and a variety of group and family day care programs.

There are a number of differences among these options.

A nursery school and child care center must meet the same standards as set by the Department of Public Welfare. These include strict health and safety codes and licensing from the department of health for food service. Each center must provide 35 square feet of space for each child served and a large fenced in outdoor play area.

They must have a specific amount of supplies and equipment in variety of developmental areas; such as large muscle, both inside and outside, creative arts, books, puzzles, dramatic play equipment, blocks, transportation toys, games, etc., for the specific ages of children enrolled.

Each facility is licensed for a specific number of children and ages. Each center must meet ratios for the number of children to each staff member, which depends on the age of the child involved. Each center must have on staff teachers with educational background in early childhood education, assistant teachers with both experience and educational background and aides who have had inservice training in preschool education.

The facilities in Thief River Falls are non-profit organizations with a group of people from the community serving on the board of directors. The centers are licensed by a licensing consultant from the Department of Public Welfare who makes regular and conscientious visits to the center. A child care center operates for 10-12 hours a day, while a nursery school operates for a limited number of hours on specific days.

Family day care and group family day care homes are operated by private individuals out of their homes. The purpose of family day care is to provide a family atmosphere. Group family day care must have an assistant and can therefore accept a total of 10 children while family day care can accept five children.

MSU To Award Scholarships For Day Care

Scholarships for day care services will be awarded by the Moorhead state university alumni association this spring, making it easier for some young parents to attend college.

MSU alumni board allocated $675 for the scholarships, targeted at covering half the day care costs of spring quarter for about three families. Funds will be awarded on the basis of income through Children's House, a day care center on campus for university students.

"For some students, being able to afford day care makes the difference in whether that student will attend school or not," said Mel Schmitz, a member of the alumni association board who's heading the project. "It's a new approach to helping young parents with their education. We hope to make it a continuing scholarship program."

An estimated five to 10 per cent of the students who attend Moorhead state college are parents.

$12 Million In Dividends Paid To Vets In MN.

A record $12 million in dividends will be paid during 1980 to 92,887 veterans in Minnesota holding GI life insurance policies, the Veterans administration said.

Morris Nooner, Jr., director of the VA Center at Fort Snelling, emphasized that no application is needed. Policyholders who have kept their GI insurance in force from World War I, World War II or the Korean conflict will receive payments automatically on the anniversary dates of their policies.

He said that 74,400 state veterans holding current World War II GI insurance policies will receive dividends totaling $10.4 million, an average payment of $149. A total $378,000 in dividends will go to 1,903 World War I policyholders, an average of $298. The 12,789 Korean conflict veterans in Minnesota who kept their GI insurance policies in force will receive dividends totaling $666,000, a $62 average payment.

The $12 million dividend payout in Minnesota is part of a national record $566 million in 1980 dividends to 4.1 million veterans whose policies are still in force. Individual amounts will vary from the average, Nooner explained, depending on the type of policy, amount of insurance, age at issue or renewal, and the time the policy has been in force.

He said the 1980 GI insurance dividends, like other insurance dividends, are higher in recent years because the funds on deposit have been earning higher interest. Dividends on VA insurance policies represent a return of funds not needed to pay the cost of the insurance.

Benefiting most from the higher interest rates, he said, are those veterans who converted their insurance plans to permanent type policies rather than continuing the original term policies.

Death Toll In Home Fires Is 23 This Year

Through February 8 of this year, 23 Minnesotans lost their lives in home fires which points up the need to again remind residents of potential fire dangers, said commissioner John P. Sopsic of the Minnesota department of public safety.

In 1979 through February 11, the home death toll was 21. Many more of the fires reported this year were started by wood-burning appliances. Eighteen of the 23 were attributed to that cause, according to fire marshal Wes Werner. Total fire deaths in the state in 1979 was 91. In 1978 the number was 85.

Of 23 deaths this year, 11 were teenagers or children. Two victims were over 80. Most fires were started in late night or early morning hours when residents had little or no warning. Few of the homes had smoke detectors.

Commissioner Sopsic and fire marshal Werner ask that all the citizens of Minnesota please be alert to the potential disaster relative to ancillary heating sources and both suggest that contact be made with local fire officials to make certain that their homes and families are safe and free from this potential disaster.

SBA Requests Cooperation In Data Program

"The federal government spews out a lot of statistics. Some help make policy. But I don't see many figures on small business. Why?"

This question of Paul Jansen, district director of the small business administration, received the following reply:

You're right about Washington spewing out facts and figures. You're right that both the executive branch and congress use such figures to make policy and enact new laws. And you're also right about small business statistics; there aren't very many and they're not always up to date.

Some information now collected by the federal government is limited in value because different federal agencies use different definitions in measuring the size of a business. In addition there is no way to measure the relative contribution that small businesses make to our economy, because the data that is collected on economics, employment and price indices are not available by size of business.

Most importantly, however, is the refusal of small business persons to supply good information. Some of this attitude stems from their belief that their business is their own and the federal government has no right to it. Some stems from a fear of how the information will be used and some stems from the crushing load of paperwork required and the expense both in time and money to supply it.

Recently, the president directed the small business administration, and asked other federal agencies to cooperate fully with the SBA, in accelerating the establishment of a small business data base that will provide the information needed to guide effective policymaking for the small business sector.

When will such a data base be available? SBA feels it will require one of the biggest selling pitches ever made to small businesses, for small businesses will be asked to fill out more government forms for a short while to bring statistics up-to-date. This request is coming at a time when small businesses are demanding that government cut down on paperwork. But if small business will cooperate, the needed data base can be compiled — to the long-run benefit of every small business in the country.

Section 8 Hockey Tournament

A winter worth of hockey activity will be climaxed this week when the 1980 Section 8 high school hockey tournament semifinals and championship games are played in the Thief River Falls sports arena.

Close to 9,000 fans will probably crowd into the arena to watch the top four teams in northwestern Minnesota — Crookston, Roseau, Thief River Falls and East Grand Forks — compete for the Section 8 title and the coveted trip to the Minnesota state high school hockey tournament.

Fans have been waiting for this week all season. It was, they said, the best balanced Section 8 field in years. Anyone of a number of teams, they said, could win it. That number is now down to four and, yes, anyone of the four could be holding the championship trophy Friday night. There is no clear-cut favorite.

An argument could be made for No. 1 seeded Crookston, the top finisher in the regular season Section 8 point standings. The Pirates skated through the regular season with a 16-3-1 record that included wins over Thief River Falls 5-2 and East Grand Forks 6-3 and a 3-3 tie against Roseau. All three games were played at Crookston.

But fans outside of Crookston are still skeptical of the Pirates who have never before so much as appeared in the tournament semifinals let alone win a title. Despite the success against the other three semifinalists, the Pirates still have to prove themselves to most observers who weren't overly impressed with their showing in a 4-1 tournament-opening victory over Bemidji Friday.

East Grand Forks hasn't had a whole lot of Section 8 tournament success, either. The Green Wave made back-to-back championship game appearance in 1971 and 1972, but that's it. They lost to Roseau 8-1 in the '71 title game and fell to Bemidji 6-1 the following year. East Grand Forks made it to the state tournament in 1971 with a win in the old back-door Region 3 playoff game that matched runner-up teams in Regions 7 and 8.

Tuesday's semifinalists — Roseau and Thief River Falls — have had the most tournament success. And the Rams have a wide edge. In the 35-year-old history of Section 8-Region 8 hockey tournaments, the Rams have appeared in 26 championship games, winning 21 of them. They have made it to the finals the past five years and have made three straight state tournament appearances.

Thief River Falls has played in 15 Region 8-Section 8 championship games, winning six of them. However, everyone associated with the sport is well aware of the fact that the Prowlers have not added a championship prize to their trophy case since 1960. Roseau defeated Thief River Falls 4-2 in last year's Section 8 tournament championship game played at East Grand Forks.

By virtue of a coin flip (honest), it looks like East Grand Forks over Crookston and Thief River Falls over Roseau in the semifinals.

Lincoln Girls Face Tough Task

Someone suggested it would take a miracle Tuesday for Thief River Falls to beat heavily favored Detroit Lakes when those two teams meet at 7 p.m. in the opening game of the 1980 North Half Region 8AA girls high school basketball tournament on the Lakers' court.

Thief River Falls coach Sylvia Sjoberg didn't say whether or not she believed in miracles, but admitted, "We're the definite underdog. We'll have to play a near-perfect game," she said, to stay with the No. 1 seeded Lakers who handily beat the No. 8 seeded Prowlers 68-45 just two weeks ago.

To say Detroit Lakes is strong would be an understatement. The Lakers just competed their third straight 16-2 regular season and Detroit Lakes' junior varsity finished 17-1.

Detroit Lakes polished off its regular season schedule last week with a 73-36 rout of Pelican Rapids as senior center Lynn Peterson — a legitimate 6-2 — scored a school-record 32 points.

Brenda Peterson, a 5-9 junior forward who impressed everyone here with a 22-point performance against the Prowlers, missed Detroit Lakes' final game with a knee injury suffered in the Lakers' 54-37 win over Staples Feb. 22. But she practiced with the team last week and is expected to be in the line-up Tuesday.

Peterson sparked an impressive Detroit Lakes fast break against Thief River Falls, but her absence didn't slow the Lakers against Pelican Rapids.

"We got the running game going and we really haven't been fast-breaking consistently lately," said Detroit Lakes coach Steve Sundby after the game. "Pelican Rapids also used a couple of different types of presses and neither bothered us very much; that's also nice to see just before the tournament."

Miscellaneous

+While teams clamor for a Section 8 high school hockey tournament title in the Thief River Falls sports arena this week, their enthusiasm may be tempered by the thought of meeting Hill-Murray in the first round of the 1980 Minnesota state hockey tournament. The unbeaten Pioneers have to be the No. 1 rated team in Minnesotan all winter and are expected to be the Section 3 representative at the state meet. The Section 3 and 8 champions will meet in the second game of the state tourmament Thursday afternoon, March 13.

+Dan Cork is not a slow freestyler, but rather a fast butterflyer. Last week we mentioned that Cork, a former Lincoln high school swimmer, set a pool record in a first place performance as a member of the University of Minnesota-Duluth swim team in the NIC conference swimming meet at Bemidji State University. But we said Cork's 54.18 was in the 100-yard freestyle. It wasn't. It was in the 100-yard butterfly. Sorry. Cork and Mark Storhaug, another former Prowler who now swims for Bemidji State University, will both compete this weekend in the 1980 NAIA national swimming and diving championships at the University of Wisconsin-LaCrosse.

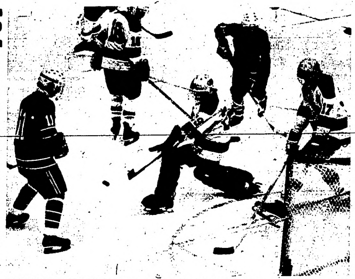
1980 Game, Fish License Now Available

Department of Natural Resources license bureau has announced that the 1980 game and fish licenses are now at county auditor's offices and available from most license agents.

"There licenses can be put on sale immediately," said Bob Wells, DNR license supervisor.

"This includes the 1980 Minnesota migratory waterfowl stamp," he said, "and if this stamp is purchased the same time as the small game or sportsman license there is no seperate issuing fee charged. In cases where some agents do not have these stamps, the DNR suggests you contact the county auditor's office to see where they are available."

The 1980 fishing laws are also available at this time said Wells, so when sportsmen purchase their license they should be sure to ask for a copy.



LENDING A HAND to goaltender Gary Vaudrin, Crookston's Tony Sprague (17) gave the Pirates double protection in the net Friday against Bemidji in the opening game of the 1980 Section 8 high school hockey tournament played in the Thief River Falls sports arena. Crookston, EGF, Roseau, TRF Reach Section 8 Semifinals

Top four seeded teams in the 1980 Section 8 high school hockey tournament survived first round weekend tests and all four figure they're legitimate title contenders heading into semifinal matches that will pit Crookston against East Grand Forks tonight (Monday) and Roseau vs. Thief River Falls Tuesday in 7:30 p.m. games in the Thief River Falls sports arena.

Two of the four quarterfinal games required overtime to produce a winner as East Grand Forks slipped by Warroad 4-3 in a double overtime contest Friday and defending champion Roseau overcame upset-minded Moorhead 3-2 in overtime Saturday.

Crookston started the first round with a 4-1 Friday night victory over Bemidji and Thief River Falls finished it with an 8-0 rout of Alexandria Saturday.

No. 1 seeded Crookston (based upon final positions in the regular season Section 8 point standings) will take a tournament-best 17-3-1 record into tonight's game against No. 4 East Grand Forks, 14-7. The Pirates beat the Green Wave 6-3 to end the 1979-80 regular season schedule for both teams, but the game came after the Feb. 19 cut-off date and did not count in the Section 8 standings.

"This one counts," smiled East Grand Forks coach Tony Palmiscno, obviously looking forward to the rematch.

It'll be Crookston's first appearance in the Section 8 semifinals after nine previous tournament ventures produced first round losses.

The Roseau-Thief River Falls confrontation will probably test the sports arena's seating capacity of approximately 3,000. The two age-old rivals met twice during the year and won on each other's home ice. Thief River Falls goalie Bill Jury — with plenty of defensive support — shut out the Rams 4-0 at Roseau back on Jan. 19. Then with Jury slowed by a back problem, Roseau broke open a 1-1 hockey game in the Feb. 9 rematch here by scoring on four consecutive long, well-placed second period shots en route to a 6-2 victory.

The No. 2 seeded Rams and No. 3 Prowlers will match identical 13-7-1 records.

The championship game will be Friday.

Crookston 4
Bemidji 1

Pre-tournament favorite Crookston looked less than impressive, but still came up a 4-1 winner over Bemidji Friday in the tournament opener.

"You've got to be satisfied any time you win; we're not spoiled," noted Crookston coach Mike Lundby, "but we've got to play better than that. We have a lot of trouble breaking out of our zone and we played lackadaisical hockey defensively."

First goal of the tournament was scored by the Pirates'

Warroad 3

On paper it was the most attractive first round draw of the tournament, and Friday's East Grand Forks vs. Warroad doubleheader nightcap lived up to its top billing as the Green Wave outlasted the Warriors 4-3 in a double overtime thriller.

It might have been one of the longest Section 8 games in the book. Regulation time ended in a 3-3 tie and after a five-minute rest the two evenly matched teams skated through a scoreless eight-minute sudden death overtime

Moorhead 2

Roseau coach Gary Hokanson called it a "heart-throbber" after watching his Rams squeeze out a 3-2 overtime decision over a Moorhead team determined on making headlines with an upset victory over the three-time defending champions. The Saturday opener was the best-of-the-quarterfinal matches.

"They surprised us," admitted Hokanson. "They skated a lot better than Moorhead teams in the past. It was a good game. I don't think

Alexandria 0

Troubled by a February slump, Thief River Falls found the beginning of March — and Alexandria — much to its liking as the host Prowlers breezed to an easy 8-0 triumph over the Cardinals in the final game of the first round Saturday night.

Wade Hoppe collected a three-goal hat trick and goalie Bill Jury recorded his third shutout of the year to spoil Alexandria's first-ever Section 8 tournament appearance.

It wasn't an overpowering performance by the Prowlers who got three goals out of its third line — two by Tom Ose — but after winning just two of seven games during the month of February, it was well received by the partisan Thief River Falls crowd.

"No complaints," offered Thief River Falls coach Wendell Grand. "I expected it. The most positive thing, I guess, was the fact that (Murray) Jorde's line scored three goals; that's a plus for us. The shutout, of course, helps everybody."

Taking an early shift on the third line, little-used Todd Bergland opened the scoring when he tapped in Jorde's rebound at 5:05 of the first period.

Tom Bjorkman slammed a rebound through goalie Rob Nyvold at 7:31 for a 2-0 game.

Hoppe and Ose combined for three second period goals and a 5-0 bulge. Nyvold tried to do a bit of stickhandling, but lost the puck and Hoppe slapped it back at him at 4:13; getting his second goal three minutes later. Ose put in a rebound at 11:43.

Ose got his second goal at 3:15 of the third period on a hard slap shot from the left side and Hoppe got his hat trick at 10:31 by lifting up a rebound.

Both teams were skating a man short when Jim Thompson completed the scoring at 13:26.

Alexandria, impressive in a 10-2 Sub Section 8 drubbing of Detroit Lakes Wednesday to gain their first Section 8 tournament berth, did not come close to matching that performance Saturday.

"We were really tight," admitted Alexandria coach

HE GOT BY fallen Alexandria defenseman Greg Bast, but Thief River Falls forward Murray Jorde was turned back by goalie Rob Nyvold in the second period of Saturday's Section 8 high school hockey tournament game played in the sports arena. Jorde collected two assists in the Prowlers' 8-0 opening round win over the Cardinals.

LHS Swimmers Beat Moorhead To Finish 7-2

Hulings Sweeps Sno Pro Race Titles Sunday

A Minnesota stop Sunday at Grove City closed out the 1979-80 Sno Pro professional snowmobile racing schedule for Team Arctic drivers Jim Dimmerman and Bob Elsner.

Brad Hulings dominated the winner's circle by winning all three events on a Scorpion.

Hulings took the 340 opener, followed by Dimmerman and Steve Thorsen on an Arctic Cat; won the 440 race, followed by Thorsen and Dimmerman; and claimed the 340-X feature, followed by Thorsen and Alan Decker on a Ski-Doo.

SKATING BY THE net after scoring Thief River Falls' second goal in Saturday's Section 8 high school hockey tournament quarterfinal game against Alexandria in the sports arena was the Prowlers' Tom Bjorkman (12) who watched the puck settle in the back of the netting at 7:31 of the first period. Alexandria goalie Rob Nyvold looked over his shoulder after failing to stop Bjorkman's rebound shot. The Prowlers beat the Cardinals 8-0 to advance into Tuesday's semifinal round against Roseau, a 3-2 overtime winner over Moorhead Saturday.

BSU Wildlife Program Set For March 7-9

What happens to the local deer population when a 40-acre tract of lowland cedar is cut for lumber? What happens to the other mammals living there — the weasles, rabbits, shrews and squirrels?

How many 40-acre lots can be cut in one locale before mammal habitat is permanently changed?

These are questions facing Minnesotans as the demand on land and forest resources grows. The wildlife has to be affected when trees are cut and land is cleared. How can the negative affects be minimized?

Experts in wildlife management from throughout the midwest and Canada will attempt to present some answers and cover the issues involved at the mammalian ecology and habitat management in Minnesota symposium to be held March 7-9 at the Bald Eagle outdoor learning center near Cass Lake.

The symposium is being sponsored by the Headwaters regional environmental education council, Bemidji State University, Minnesota Department of Natural Resources, the University of Minnesota, the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service and the U.S. Forest Service.

Specialists in mammal habitat management from all of these agencies will appear at the symposium to exchange ideas and current research concerning Minnesota wildlife.

Topics to be covered include population dynamics, predator management, aspects of wildlife disease and public health and species reports on microtines, muskrats, bats, red fox, deer, moose, cariboux, bobcats, coyotes, badger, black bear and grey wolf.

For more information contact the Bald Eagle Center, Cass Lake, MN (phone 218-665-2241).

Lincoln Girls Challenge Top-Seeded Detroit Lakes

Post-season play begins Tuesday for the Lincoln high school girls basketball team and the Prowlers will be facing a monumental task when they take the floor against top-seeded Detroit Lakes — the host team — in the 7 p.m. opener of the 1980 North Half Region 8AA tournament.

The 17-2 Lakers are the tournament favorites. They beat the Prowlers 68-45 two weeks ago in Thief River Falls with an impressive fast break offense headed by 6-2 senior Lynn Christensen and 5-9 junior Brenda Peterson.

"They really burned us on the fast break," acknowledged Thief River Falls coach Sylvia Sjoberg. "We're working on that; trying to prevent the outlet pass and dropping our point guard way back on defense."

Offensively, said Sjoberg, the Prowlers will try to attack the Lakers by working the ball to sophomore Tara Nicholson on the high post or high on the side where she can either shoot or drive to the basket.

Thief River Falls finished the 1979-80 regular season schedule with a 6-11 record and a last place No. 8 tournament seed.

Joining Nicholson in the Prowlers' starting line-up tomorrow night will be senior Roberta Engel, the team captain, juniors Ann Goodrich and Kim McFarland and sophomore LeAnn Paetznick.

No. 4 seeded East Grand Forks plays No. 5 Bemidji at 8:45 p.m. to complete Tuesday's opening night doubleheader.

On Thursday it'll be No. 2 Moorhead vs. No. 7 Park Rapids at 7 p.m. and No. 3 Fergus Falls vs. No. 6 Crookston at 8:45.

Semifinals will be played Friday, with the Tuesday quarterfinal winners meeting at 7 p.m. and the Thursday winners playing at 8:45. Championship game will be played Saturday at 7:30 p.m. All games will be played at Detroit Lakes.

The North Half Region 8AA winner will host the South Half Region 8AA representative in the 1980 Region 8AA championship game Fri., March 14, for a Class AA state tournament berth.

First round South Half Region 8AA pairings feature No. 1 Little Falls vs. No. 8 Cold Spring-Rocori; No. 4 Melrose vs. No. 5 St. Cloud Tech; No. 2 Alexandria vs. No. 7 Sauk Rapids; and No. 3 St. Cloud Apollo vs. No. 6 Brainerd.

Bears, Tigers Win Titles In 8A, 8AA

Region 8A and Region 8AA will be represented by first-time entrants this week when the 1980 Minnesota state high school basketball tournament gets underway in the Twin Cities.

Lake of the Woods won the Region 8A title and St. Cloud Tech took the Region 8AA crown last week to gain state tournament spots.

The Region 8A tournament was played at the University of North Dakota in Grand Forks Friday and Saturday. In opening round play District 32 champion Lake of the Woods handled District 29 titlist Bagley 64-50 and District 31 winner Warren knocked off District 30 representative Mahnomen 48-38.

Lake of the Woods then became the first District 32 team to earn a state tournament berth since Roseau did it in 1946 with a 40-37 championship game win over defending Region 8A champion Warren Saturday.

Bagley took the consolation crown with a 57-51 win over Mahnomen.

Lake of the Woods will play Region 7A champion Pine City at 8:45 p.m. Thursday in opening round Class A state tournament action at the St. Paul Civic Center. The Baudette ball club is 20-2 for the year.

First state tournament trip for St. Cloud Tech high school was the prize for a 57-53 victory over Moorhead Friday in the Region 8AA championship game played at Hallenbeck Hall on the St. Cloud State University campus.

The two teams, both 19-2 entering the game, advanced to the title showdown with earlier championship performances in North (Moorhead) and South (Tech) Half Region 8AA tournament play.

Tech will meet the Region 1A champion Thursday at 7:20 p.m. in first round Class AA state tournament play at the Met Sports Center in Bloomington. The Tigers have never made it to the state tournament. Old St. Cloud high school made it in 1929 and cross-town Apollo made it in 1973.

Middle River Girls Win First District 32 Game

Dawn Scramstad, showing no ill effects from an ankle injury that shelved her for the latter part of the season, poured in 34 points in three quarters of playing time Thursday to lead Middle River to a 77-32 romp over Humboldt in an opening round District 32 girls high school basketball tournament game played at Roseau.

Michelle Maertens finished with 12 points for the Skippers who built quarter leads of 18-4, 38-10 and 60-24. Lori Bakken led Humboldt with 14 points.

Middle River, now 9-10, will face Karlstad tonight (Monday) in a 7 p.m. quarterfinal game at Roseau.

Plummer finished its 1979-80 regular season with a 13-5 record.

Steel Shot Zones Proposed For 1980

Steel shot zones for next fall's waterfowl hunting season were proposed recently by the Interior Department's U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service. The proposed zones occur in portions of 29 States.

The proposal is part of a continuing effort to reduce lead poisoning in waterfowl. Birds frequently die of lead poisoning after eating spent lead shotgun pellets, which they mistake for seeds or grit. Steel shot is not toxic to waterfowl.

Areas are identified for steel shot use on the basis of high concentrations of lead shot deposited by waterfowl hunters and by the number of birds found to have eaten lead shot. About 20 per cent of the waterfowl harvest in the United States occurs within the zones that have been proposed for the next waterfowl hunting season.

The proposed steel shot zones for next fall are identical to the zones designated for the 1979-80 waterfowl season. Detailed descriptions of the zones will be listed in press releases to be issued by the Service's six regional offices. The States in which the zones occur are as follows:

Atlantic Flyway — Connecticut, Delaware, Florida, Maine, Maryland, Massachusetts, New Jersey, New York, North Carolina, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, South Carolina and Virginia.

Mississippi Flyway — Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Louisiana, Ohio, Michigan, Minnesota, Missouri, Tennessee and Wisconsin.

Central Flyway — Kansas, Nebraska and Texas.

Pacific Flyway — Nevada, Oregon and Washington.

The proposal was published in the February 11, 1980, Federal Register. Public comments are invited and will be accepted until March 31, 1980. Comments should be addressed to the Director (MBMO), U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, Department of the Interior, Washington, D.C. 20240.

In Minnesota, the steel shot regulations will be in effect in the following areas:

+All waters within the boundaries of all state wildlife management areas and federal waterfowl production areas and within a 150-yard zone of land adjacent to the margins of these waters. This includes lakes, ponds, marshes, swamps, rivers, streams and seasonally flooded areas of all types. Drainage ditches and temporary sheet water more than 150 yards from the water areas described above are excluded from the steel shot requirement. Controlled hunting zones of goose management areas are excluded from this provision, except the Roseau wildlife management area which is included.

+On the waters on Swan and Middle Lakes in Nicollet county, North and South Heron lakes in Jackson county, Pelican Lake in Wright county, Bear Lake in Freeborn county and Christina Lake in Douglas and Grant counties and within a 150-yard zone of land adjacent to the margins of the above lakes.

+Beginning at the intersection of the midline of the Mississippi River and U.S. Highway 61 at Hastings, thence southerly along U.S. Highway 61 to U.S. Highway 16 at LaCresent, thence southerly along U.S. Highway 16 to state trunk highway 26, thence southerly along state trunk Highway 26 to the southern boundary of the state; thence along the Southern and Eastern boundaries of the state to the confluence of the St. Croix and Mississippi rivers, thence along the midline of the Mississippi River to the point of beginning.

WARROAD WING Darin Olimb had plenty of net to shoot at, but East Grand Forks goalie Mark Pagnac came up with a save on the point-blank shot in Friday's opening round game of the 1980 Section 8 high school hockey tournament played in the Thief River Falls sports arena. Pagnac came up with 40 saves as the Green Wave outlasted the Warriors 4-3 in two overtimes to move into tonight's (Monday) semifinal round against Crookston.

Bemidji 1

Tom Johannson who showed a fine bit of stickhandling as he maneuvered his way through the Bemidji defense on a Crookston power play and slipped a point-blank shot underneath goalie Galen Nagle at 5:40 of the first period.

Just nine seconds after losing an apparent goal because of an early whistle, Crookston doubled its margin when Dan Hoff found an open corner on a close-in rebound at 2:13 of the second period.

Johannson had a breakaway stopped by Nagle a couple of minutes later, but took the rebound into the corner and fed high-scoring Bob Clauson in front. Nagle stopped Clauson the first time, but couldn't control the rebound and it was 3-0 at 4:38.

Junior Steve Johnson — the best player on the ice in the opener — tipped in a goal mouth feed from Hoff at the 14-minute mark for a 4-0 game.

Bemidji spoiled a shutout bid by Crookston goalie Gary Vaudrin, who enjoyed a strong performance, when Nelson Rotto lifted up a wrist shot from the slot with just 12 seconds remaining in the second period to close out the scoring.

"Gary (Vaudrin) played very well for us tonight," mentioned Lundby, "but that's nothing new. He's been playing well all year."

Bemidji plagued by the absence of a couple of front-line performers and battling sickness, put up a game fight, according to coach Bryan Grand. "I though we played as well as we could have under the circumstances," he said. "We had two or three good chances at some key times of the game that could have helped us."

A 4-2 winner over Brainerd in the final round of Sub Section 8 play Wednesday, Bemidji finished the year 7-15. The Lumberjacks upset the Pirates 6-4 back on Jan. 31 — the last time Crookston tasted defeat.

period. Then came a break as the ice was resurfaced before the start of a second overtime session — this one a 15-minute job.

East Grand Forks ended it at 4:54 when Tim Mishler's long hard slap shot while on the move on the right wing sailed past Warroad goalie Mike Haggen.

It was a come-back of sorts for the Green Wave who found themselves blessed with a 1-0 lead just 10 seconds into the contest when Dan Gasperlin poked a rebound between the post and Haggan's leg on the first rush of the game but then found themselves being outlayed by the scrappy Warriors who carried a 2-1 edge into the third period.

John Bjorkman, the Warrior's fine-looking freshman forward, tied it 1-1 by converting a two-on-1 break at 8:32 of the first period.

A power play slap shot from the right wing by Ken Thunder made it 2-1 at the 11-minute mark of the first period.

East Grand Forks made it a 2-2 game at 3:02 of the third period as Dave Swanberg let go with a high hard one from the right side.

An apparent go-ahead East Grand Forks goal at 6:18 was disallowed for playing the puck too high and with new life Warroad took the lead just 18 seconds later when Eddie Christian was given an open net in front.

Tom Mishler got the equalizer at 9:36; scoring on a near-identical shot that put Swanberg in the scorebook.

Rest of the game was a screamer. Tom Mishler missed the corner on a two-on-one rush with 2:22 left in regulation time and East Grand Forks dominated the first overtime period. Warroad came back to put pressure on East Grand Forks goalie Mark Pagnac in the second overtime before bowing out.

"I though we played well in the latter half of the game," said East Grand Forks coach Tony Palmiscno, recognizing the Green Wave problems at the start. "Late in the game Pagnac really came through when he had too."

Despite the tough loss, Warroad coach Jerry Pelkey said he was "very satisfied" with the Warriors' performance. "The kids gave everything we asked. The puck just didn't bounce our way. Their goalie made some excellent saves."

Warroad, a 4-3 Sub Section 8 winner over Fergus Falls Wednesday to qualify for the Section 8 quarterfinals, finished the year 14-6.

we played badly at all; they just played awfully well."

Sophomore Jay Ness won it for the Rams at 4:52 of the eight-minute sudden death overtime when Moorhead fumbled the puck away in its own end. Ness picked up the loose puck in the slot, came in alone on Moorhead goalie Kreg Korinek, waited for the netminder to go down on the ice and put the puck into a wide open net.

"We did what I thought we were capable of. We played well," said Moorhead coach Terry Shercliffe. "But I don't like the way we lost. We didn't clear the puck when we were above our own face-off circle. It was a big mistake on our part."

Korinek, a junior who has an unlikely hockey background from Omaha, Neb., deserved better fate. He was superb in a 42-save performance that included a busy 20-save second period when his fast-starting teammates faltered.

"What was his name?" asked Hokanson after the game. "He played a heck of a good game." Korinek played hockey in Omaha until he finished Bantams when he outgrew the program, said Shercliffe, and moved to Moorhead last year. "He's solid. His performance didn't surprise me at all."

Moorhead started the scoring at 5:18 of the first period when Jay Hass headmanned the puck to Gary Bergos, sending him in ahead of the defender for a close-in shot.

Steve Storo got his stick on a Jim Pederson slap shot from the point for a defelction and a 1-1 game at 13:09.

Roseau went ahead 2-1 at 3:54 of the second period, just five seconds into a power play. Mark Huglen, the all-state defenseman who found himself playing up front because of a season-long series of ailments and injuries, scored right from the face-off won by Brandon Shank to the right of Korinek.

Shawn Anderson tied it for the second time when he lifted a rebound up and over Roseau goalie Mark Tangen at 8:08 of the third period.

Moorhead, a big 13-4 winner over Mount St. Benedict in Sub Section 8 play Wednesday, finished the year 9-12-1.

SKI REPORT

by Dr. Hugh Patterson

Last year it snowed heavily all day when I skied Alta — our next ski area. This brings up the matter of light and the skier. When you are coming down those steep mountain runs you are each moment making many important adjustments. You need good light to see the bumps or moguls and to judge slope.

Flat light means everything looks flat and those bumps come out of nowhere, and skiing is an adventure in the unknown. One cause is heavy cloud cover or when it is snowing heavily, another cause is a white-out when brought sun shines on a light cloud cover near the ground. To be in heavy clouds in the mountain is a disaster. You cannot even tell if you are going up or down hill. I just mention these things that can complicate skiing.

Two miles east from Snowbird up Little Cotton Wood canyon near Salt Lake City is Alta, Utah. The scene is one of spectacular grandeur, but the terrain includes a good deal of fine novice and intermediate skiing. With it are areas of almost infinite expert skiing.

I wonder if I will ever realize my ambition to ski Alf Engen's High Rustler. There are large areas that are perfect for powder skiing. Alta is at the place where Little Cottonwood Canyon opens up on the south side to a series of beautiful bowls, especially Gerrania and Sugar Loaf but also others they hope to develop. It is one of the earliest of our nation's ski areas and still one of it's finest.

Alta is a very friendly ski area. Alf Engens ski school is world famous. Ski slopes and rentals are available. Food is excellent and served by skiers who love the mountain. We especially recommend the shallow shaft, a picturesque gourmet restaurant, and the low fees are very reasonable.

We enjoyed meeting Alf Engen, Max Lundberg and the manager Charles (Chic) Morton. We recommend this area to skiers of every skill. You will have fine skiing in a scene of dazzling beauty.

A MEMBER OF the gold medal winning 1980 United States Olympic hockey team, Roseau's Neal Broten was besieged by autograph seekers Saturday after being introduced to the crowd during the Section 8 high school hockey tournament played in the Thief River Falls sports arena. Broten was watching his former high school team play Moorhead in the Section 8 tournament quarterfinals. On Friday Mr. and Mrs. Billy Christian of Warroad, father of David Christian, another Olympian, were introduced to the sports arena crowd on the opening night of the tournament as they watched another son, Eddie, play for the Warroad Warriors.

Group Formed To Strengthen Outdoor Issues

Environmental and outdoor educators are a diverse lot. They come from public schools, state and federal agencies, private centers and even the zoo.

In Minnesota, as in many states, they have often been lonely voices raising issues of environmental awareness that go unheard, drowned out by bigger special interest groups.

But that is about to end in Minnesota. Minnesota association for Environmental — Outdoor education (MAEOE) is being formed to bring strength of numbers to issues these professionals think are important.

Dr. Ray Nelson, director of the center for environmental-outdoor education at Bemidji state university, has been the person behind the effort to organize a state association.

"It seemed obvious to me that we needed to have a forum from which environmental and outdoor educators could make themselves heard in Minnesota," Nelson said. "Our concerns are being ignored. Several other states have professional associations now and they have been successful."

States referred to by Nelson include Iowa, Wisconsin, South Dakota, Illinois, Ohio and Michigan in the midwest.

Nelson spent most of 1979 living up support for the association. First organizational meeting was conducted in St. Cloud in January with 28 persons attending from around Minnesota. Nelson said that potentially there are 400 or more professionals in the state who could qualify for membership.

Group agreed upon several basic purposes at the first meeting, including: to provide members with a forum where they can collectively speak out about and act upon environmental and outdoor educational concerns; to provide a vehicle for members to collectively take advocacy positions; to facilitate an exchange of services between exhisting agencies and organizations, and to enhance communications among members, public and private organizations, and the general public.

Scientists were puzzled at first when three white polar bears at the San Diego Zoo turned green. A check-up revealed that algae growing in the bears' pool had found a safe home inside the bear's hollow hairs, explains the National Wildlife Federation.

Save a place for Wildlife
March 16-22, 1980
National Wildlife Week
Join and Support the National Wildlife Federation and State Affiliates

POSTER FOR the 1980 observance of national wildlife week adorns public buildings and school classrooms as the March 16-22 National Wildlife Federation event nears. "Save a place for wildlife," is the theme of this year's national wildlife week.

Annual National Wildlife Federation Report

Quality Of Life In U.S. Is Unchanged In 1979

"Quality of life" in the United States — as measured by seven environmental indicators — remained virtually unchanged last year as the nation wound up a decade marked by the enactment of many environmental protection laws, the National Wildlife Federation (NFW) reported in its 11th annual study of environmental trends.

NWF, the nation's largest nonprofit citizens' conservation organization, found in its 1980 environmental quality index (EQI) study that four of the seven resources that go into the index — wildlife, water, soil and forests — remained unchaged in quality over the past year.

Another component of the EQI — air quality — improved in 1979, while two others — minerals and living space — declined in quality. Last year was the first time since 1970 that the majority of the seven natural resources did not register a decline on the EQI.

During 1979 there was "progress on a number of fronts," from pollution abatement and solar research to wetlands protection and wildlife management," explains the EQI report, which is published in the February issue of National Wildlife magazine. But while many past gains were consolidated, "at the political level, environmental programs and priorities suffered setbacks from which they may not soon recover," the report concludes.

The EQI is an analysis of the state of the nation's natural resources based on a combination of objective measurements and the subjective judgments of the NWF staff in consultation with government experts and academic researchers. Five federal agencies — the Bureau of Land Management, the Council on Environmental Quality, the Fish and Wildlife Service, the Forest Service and the Soil Conservation Service — now cooperate with the federation in the collection of resources data.

Summaries of the 1980 EQI reports on the seven resources follow:

Wildlife

No Change. For the first time in more than a decade, the EQ trendline for wildlife stopped going down in 1979. This was the result of years of hard work in wildlife management, habitat protection and pollution abatement. But conservationists worry about the future. Little was done last year to improve vast acreages of badly abused rangeland in the West. And in Congress, there was a fierce backlash against all environmental constraints on development.

There were other ominous conflicts between energy and wildlife in 1979: While congress debated relaxing air standards so more coal can be burned, acid rain containing pollutants from industrial smokestacks and car exhaust began showing up in Wisconsin and Michigan. Last fall, the Interior Department okayed oil exploration on the Georges Bank off Cape Cod, one of the world's most productive fisheries, while U.S. crews were mopping up a monumental leak from an offshore Mexican oil well.

Minerals

Down. Of the seven resources analyzed in the EQI, minerals are perhaps the easiest to squander and the hardest to retrieve. This underlines the seriousness of the fact that in 1979, the U.S. moved one year closer to the end of the petroleum era without a comprehensive energy conservation program. Instead of emphasizing conservation, President Carter proposed a massive and expensive program to develop "synthetic" fossil fuels, to locate and produce more domestic oil and to create an almost dictatorial "energy mobilization board" that could bypass many environmental safeguards.

In the year of Three Mile Island, gas lines and doubled fuel prices, all of the energy news was not bad. Energy efficiency in U.S. homes and apartments increased and industrial use decreased. Improved auto mileage last year produced the first drop since 1974 in gasoline demand, which accounts for 40 per cent of all oil used.

Air

Up. All across the country last year, millions of Americans were breathing air that was cleaner than it had been in a decade. Also last year, there was relentless pressure on the environmental protection agency (EPA) to lower its air standards, because many U.S. policy — and auto-makers claimed that antipollution costs are inflationary. What are the costs and benefits of air pollution laws? According to the president's council on environmental quality (CEQ), the U.S. spent $13 billion in 1978 to clean up the air. But, CEQ added, cleaner air may be saving Americans as much as $22 billion annually in damages.

Water

No Change. Many industries and communities are now moving toward, rather than away from, the clean water act's goal of "fishable, swimmable" waters by 1985. Industry is responsible for much of the cleanup progress that has been made. About 85 per cent of the nation's major industrial polluters are complying with the law.

But there are rising problems. Many environmentalists claim that conventional sewage treatment plants use too much energy and don't really get the water clean. Nearly 800 industrial polluters have failed to meet EPA's 1977 cleanup deadline and fewer than 200 have been taken to court. And every day, vast amounts of urban and agricultural poisons enter the nation's water supplies from "nonpoint" sources.

Soil

No Change. The outlook for America's hard used soil may be better these days. For one thing, erosion in many areas apparently isn't as bad as many experts once feared. For another, there's a good chance that the use of harmful pesticides can be drastically curtailed, due to a strategy called integrated pest management. IPM could reduce crop losses to pests more effectively than today's pesticides — without harming human health or natural ecosystems.

On the negative side, the massive runoff of fertilizer and pesticides into streams and rivers remains one of the nation's most stubborn pollution problems. And the conversion of cropland to suburbs continues unabated.

Living Space

Down. Even with a lower birthrate, the U.S. population is expanding rapidly (it passed 220 million last year), and the strain on living space is relentless. Despite the suggestions of an urban renaissance in many of the nation's largest cities, the 35-year-old migration to the suburbs continues, accompanied by development in scores of agricultural areas.

Fortunately, some states have passed their own land use laws, and last year Congress passed an omnibus parks bill, which designates two million acres as wilderness. But benefits from these efforts will be limited as long as the primary cause of the living-space crunch — population growth — continues.

Forests

Same. Last year the U.S. grew more timber than it cut (except in the West). The U.S. Forest Service proposed to set aside more than 15 million additional acres as wilderness, and to open up another 36 million acres to timber and other kinds of development. While some environmentalists said that was not enough wilderness, developers complained of a lockout. But the USFS's new five-year management plan provides for more public say-so on how forests are run. Most important, the plan gives higher priority to watershed protection, wildlife habitat and recreation.

But American forests may face increased pressure from the energy shortage. Spot shortages of firewood are already showing up in parts of the U.S.

Commenting on the report, Thomas L. Kimball, NWF executive vice president, warned that the existing "quality of life" is threatened by present trends in Congress. "As we enter the 1980's the overriding question is this: Will we let energy and inflation wipe out our environmental gains?" Kimball said.

Official Proceedings
Board of County Commissioners
Pennington County, Minnesota
February 21, 1980

Pursuant to adjournment the County Board met in the Commissioners Room in the Courthouse in Thief River Falls at 10:00 A.M., February 21, 1980.

Members present: Koop, Stenberg and Tasa. Members absent: Hoffman and Grabanski. Commissioner Hoffman was able to join the Board for the afternoon session.

A delegation from the St. Hilaire area appeared and discussed a problem that has arisen because of a letter that has been received from the State Department of Transportation indicating that the St. Hilaire Bridge program had been disapproved. The letter dated Feb. 11, 1980 was from the Office of Director of State Aid, Gordon M. Fay, and indicated that the bridge was not approved because of the alignment of the County Road (CR 55) that passes over the bridge between CSAH 17 and T.H. 32. The Board instructed the Engineer to set up a meeting with Mr. Fay at the earliest opportunity and to make provision for representation from the St. Hilaire group to be present. Engineer Olson indicated that Mr. Fay was not available until possibly the 2nd or 3rd week in March.

Howard Person then asked the Board for a decision on where a display case could be provided for display of the various awards received by the 4-H clubs. The Courthouse Committee was asked to meet and make a decision.

Moved by Stenberg seconded by Koop that the Engineer and Auditor be authorized and instructed to call for bids for sale of the old Goodridge Grader shed with bids to be opened at 2:00 P.M., March 20, 1980. Motion carried.

The Auditor presented a copy of a petition that had been left with him for presentation to the Board. The petition was addressed to (All Law Enforcement Departments of Pennington County) and expressed the thought that there were not enough arrests being made and not enough prosecutions of persons dealing in illegal Drugs in the County and petitioned all Law Enforcement Departments to GET TOUGH ON DRUG PUSHERS with more arrests and tougher sentences.

The matter was discussed with the Sheriff and County Attorney and was advised that possibly more help could be made available by Legislative action and that the petition should be forwarded to the Legislature to indicate that there is a concern in the area about the drug problem. The Sheriff and Attorney were provided with copies of the petition and the Auditor was instructed to provide copies to the Legislators.

The Assessor appraised the Board of a new Law relating to Wetlands that is still in the formative stage by which certain land that could be drained and isn't would be declared tax exempt and through an agreement process the landowner could be paid for not draining said land. The Law will be effective in 1981 and will require many additional processes for all concerned.

The Board reviewed the 5 year road construction program, as revised and the 5 year Bridge program, as revised and upon motion by Hoffman seconded by Koop called for a Public Hearing on the two 5 year plans so that the Public could have input into the programs. The Public Hearing to be held March 20, 1980 at 7:00 P.M. Motion setting up the Hearing was declared unanimously carried.

Moved by Koop seconded by Hoffman that the Engineer and Auditor be authorized and instructed to advertise for County wide graveling of roads and for a tilt trailer with bids to be opened April 8, 1980. Motion carried.

The Board was advised that a process of Law for annexation of Land to the City of Thief River Falls had been activated by the Township of North entering a protest and requiring appointment of two County Commissioners to sit as ex-officio members of the Minnesota Municipal Board in a Public Hearing to decide the annexation matter. Commissioners Glenn Tasa and Roger Hoffman were appointed to fill these two appointments. Hearing to be held in the City Council Chambers March 19, 1980 at 8:30 A.M.

Moved by Koop seconded by Hoffman that meeting adjourn to convene at 10:00 A.M., March 4, 1980. Motion carried.

$575,231 In Grants For MN. Okayed By Region Commission

Gov. Al Quie, commissioner and state cochairman of the Upper Great Lakes regional commission (UGLRC), recently announced eight grants totaling $575,231 for Minnesota projects to promote economic development, increased employment, community growth and tourism in the northern Minnesota counties.

In addition, two other projects were presented by Gov. Quie as regional projects totaling $165,000 which will share joint funding with Michigan and Wisconsin.

Grants were approved at Gov. Quie's request during the February 26 commission meeting in Washington, D.C. "The regional commission is a unique partnership that generates interaction between federal, state, local and private funding, "Gov. Quie said in announcing the grants, "and this interaction induced communities and industries to undertake new projects."

"The commission is a federal-state planning agency that helps the state determine where public investments can be made with the greatest possibility of success," the governor added. "The commission also helps the state determine what kinds of projects to invest in."

An $18,481 technical assistance grant was made to the Bemidji area vocational-technical institute to provide for the development of a timber harvesting program which will prepare students in the competencies to operate and maintain heavy equipment in the pulpwood and sawing industries. With the expansion of wood products industries in the area this project will fulfill the need to train people for the estimated 530 new technician jobs and 670 new plant jobs in Bemidji and provide for better forestry management.

A $24,000 technical assistance grant was awarded to the University of Minnesota agricultural extension service to continue the funding of a sawmill technician who will focus on the technical aspects of sawmill operations by providing on site assistance to sawmill operators. The grant is part of a $71,000 project. The sawmill technician will provide assistance to sawmill operators in realigning and adjusting the mill, demonstrating proper sawing practices and making the necessary improvements so that operators saw a quality product.

A $70,000 technical assistance grant was approved for the Minnesota department of transportation aeronautics division, to continue the regularly scheduled commuter air service between Minneapolis-St. Paul and Grand Rapids using seven to 15-passenger aircraft. Project will provide 15 jobs for the community of Grand Rapids.

A $48,850 supplemental grant was made to the city of Hinckley to provide water supply, streets and to extend water and sewer mains to the 100 acre industrial-commercial area east of Interstate Highway I-35 which is presently not served by the city water-sewer system and has inadequate fire protection. Grant is part of a $485,500 project. Industrial-commercial expansion will allow space for a $4 million reginal shopping center and will provide 75 new jobs over the next five years.

An $85,000 technical assistance grant was okayed for the Minnesota department of economic development to promote tourism in the Boundary waters canoe area. The grant is part of a $145,000 project. This project will undertake an intensive advertising campaign to promote the BWCA as a tourist area to offset the economic effects of the 1978 federal legislation on the nearby communities in northern Minnesota. These communities rely heavily on tournist trade for their economic stability.

Total direct tourism sales in the overall area associated with the BWCA are estimated at $27 million. Total employment of $,300 results. No funds were available in the federal legislation for tourism promotion.

A $100,000 supplemental grant to the city of Shafer to provide additional water storage for fire protection and sewer line extension to the 31 acre industrial park was approved. Grant is part of a $337,500 project. Funding of this project will allow for the expansion of the present industries and services to an area of 13 acres. These expansions will provide a minimum of 70-90 new jobs and generate an additional $650,000 in private investment.

A $184,000 supplemental grant to the city of Bemidji will provide extensions for municipal water and sewer, storm sewers, street paving, curb and gutter and street lighting to complete improvements to the 313 acre industrial park. The grant is part of a $920,000 project. In addition to providing additional opportunities for the 23 current occupants of the industrial park, new private investment in excess of $2 million will be generated which will employ 100 persons immediately with potential employment of nearly 400 persons.

A $44,900 supplemental grant will help the Staples area vocational and technical institute to develop and operate a small-medium farm fuel alcohol pilot production plant. Plant will be owned and operated by the central Minnesota irrigators' corporation, a non-profit corporation, on land provided by the Staples AVTI. The grant is part of a $224,500 project.

The plant will produce 500 gallons of 160 proof alcohol per day, at a cost of approximately $1.19 per gallon. Proposed plant will create five to six full time on-site positions as well as extra employment in plant fuel procurement. A result of this demonstration project will be the production and distribution of a layman level "cookbook" on the production of ethanol.

Olympic Hockey Win Inspires Norway Call

While millions in the United States rejoiced in the gold medal performance of the U.S. Olympic hockey team last week, the impact of that feat carried far beyond American shores.

Within an hour after the American team had won its last game to clinch the gold medal, the Harold Storhaugs of Thief River Falls received a telephone call of congratulations to the U.S. from Odd and Annie Hartloff of Evenskjer, Norway.

The Hartloffs (Odd is Harold's cousin) had apparently watched the game on television at their home 300 miles north of the Arctic circle and seemed very excited about the U.S. victory. Mr. and Mrs. Storhaug had met the Hartloffs in the summer of 1979 on a visit to Norway.

At that time, the Hartloff family knew much of Eric Heiden, the Wisconsin skater who captured all five of the other gold medals earned by the United States in the winter Olympic games. In the U.S., however, Heiden's speed-skating exploits had received little national attention.

THIEF RIVER FALLS Jaycees donated $200 to the Boy Scouts at the Jaycees meeting conducted last evening at the Elks club in Thief River Falls. Accepting the check from Jaycees president Randy Adamson (left) is district executive Tom Przybylski. Jaycees were presented a plaque from the Boy Scouts in return for the $200 donation. Thief River Falls is a part of the Voyageur Trails district which covers eight counties: Pennington, Polk, Kittson, Marshall, Roseau, Norman, Red Lake, and Mahnomen, and is a part of the Northern Lights council. Directors Elected For Hartz Board

Directors of L. B. Hartz wholesale, Inc., were elected for one, two and three-year terms at a meeting of members of the organization held recently at the Best Western inn of Thief River Falls.

The 12-member board includes L. B. Hartz, John Jaranson, Harry Simons, Sheldon Knutson, Marvin Lehr, Elling Iverson, Dwight Tangquist and Everett Ault of Thief River Falls, Gordon Lingle of Roseau, Clarence Gulseth of Blackduck, Joe Lueken of Bemidji and Clarence Offerdahl of Fosston.

At an organizational meeting of the board, Hartz was elected as chairman of the board; Sheldon Knutson, president; John Jaranson, executive vice president; Elling Iverson, first vice president; and Harry Simons, secretary-treasurer. By-laws provide for the election of six directors from within the company and six elected from among the approximately 400 member accounts.

President Knutson explained that L. B. Hartz Wholesale, Inc., is a type of cooperative comprised of stores served by the company. Stores may become members by having Hartz Wholesale as their primary source of supply and purchasing a stipulated annual minimum amount of merchandise from the company.

The present organization was formed after the Hartz family turned over its stock to the Hartz Foundation during the 1974 fiscal year. Since the government has ruled that the foundation can not operate the business, an arrangement was made whereby the member stores are purchasing the company through a 10-year purchase agreement.

Funds held by the foundation, including money received from the sale of the company, are invested and the interest income used for

It has been determined that all of the present terms of directors in Jobs, Incorporated have expired, according to president Robert D. Flynn, and election will be held of five directors for two-year terms and five directors for one-year terms.

County Receives Equipment Bids

With a limited number of agenda items and delegations facing the county board of commissioners Tuesday, much of the meeting of the Pennington county governing board was devoted to discussion on general problems and planning.

The board received 11 bids for equipment rental on such items as draglines, tractors and scrapers and moved to accept them all, directing the county engineer to use the bids as a basis for hiring equipment as available according to need, beginning with the lowest bid for the item needed.

Dragline rental varied from $25 to $45 per hour among six bidders, as an example, and other bids covered a number of sizes and types of tractors and scrapers.

Completion was accepted and final payment made for construction of a new motor grader shed which has been constructed at Goodridge. Total project cost was $25,500.

Commissioners also approve payment of $17,777.61 as the county share of probation and parole service expense for 1979 — an increase from $15,686 the previous year. A portion of the county share is reimbursable from the state of Minnesota.

Sen. Roger Moe of Ada requested from the board an opinion on the two-mill levy being assessed for the Red river watershed. The board suggested to the senator that the watershed district present

NCC Band To Rehearse For Spring Tour

Northland Community band will begin its spring rehearsals March 10 in the Northland community college auditorium with rehearsals scheduled to be conducted every Monday evening from 7 to 9 p.m. for 10 weeks.

The community band, as in the past, will again plan an annual concert tour with the Northland community college choir. Tentative plans are for the spring tour to make appearances in May at Brainerd and St. Cloud as well as at some area high schools.

"Although instrumentation in the 60-member community band is well rounded, any interested new musician is invited to become a member of this acclaimed organization," said Doug Engstrom, band director. Additional information concerning the Northland community band may be obtained by contacting Northland college at 681-2181.

Applications Being Accepted For High Rise

Approximately 50 applications for residency consideration have been received by management of the Riverside Terrace apartment building now nearing completion in Thief River Falls. The six-story apartment complex will offer 66 units for senior citizens and handicapped.

LeRoy (Buzz) Vandeventer and his wife Greta, who will be manager of the apartment building, have established an office in the Thief River Falls city auditorium basement and will receive applications there. They are also in the process of reviewing and making contacts from a list of prospective tenants (about 250 in number) who had registered previously with the local housing and redevelopment authority.

Vandeventer said that occupancy of the building is still being projected as about May 1, which would be about a month ahead of the original schedule.

To qualify for tenancy, applicants must be over age 63 or handicapped, Vandeventer said. Apartments on the ground level are reserved for handicapped tenants. The building is equipped with an elevator and 12 apartment units are located on each of the top five floors. The units have 525 square feet of floor space.

Favorite Food Show Saturday At Auditorium

Pennington county 4-H foods project members will hold their annual favorite food show at the city auditorium on Saturday from 1:30 to 3 p.m.

4-H members may participate in three divisions: A display of a favorite food, an informal demonstration or a display of an original recipe. Some of this year's displays will include snacks, ethnic foods, salads, desserts and main dishes.

The public is invited to view the displays and visit with the 4-H members about the preparation of their food.

SPECIAL GAMES sometimes help make learning easier for children, as Ruth Oen portrays with two of her second grade students here. Ruth, a special education teacher at the Plummer school was recently named teacher of the year for the Plummer district. Peggy Plante (left) and Alexis Easterbrook are aided in their addition and subtraction problems with the use of tiny bears, each representing a "ten."

Ruth Oen Is Teacher Of Year For Plummer School

RUTH OEN, special education teacher at the Plummer school, who was recently named teacher of the year, is ready to assist each student with questions that arise during assignments. David Johnson, fifth grade student at the school, seeks help from his instructor to answer a math problem. Since Ruth's classes are small, (the largest has four students) she has ample time to work with each child.

by Bonnie Reed
Times Reporter

To Ruth Oen, the most rewarding aspect of teaching is to see a child succeed at something. "When a child succeeds, his whole attitude changes," she said.

Ruth was recently named teacher of the year for the Plummer school district, where she presently teaches special education to kindergarten age children through grade six.

"I try to build on self-esteem," she said, "by getting every child to think of himself or herself in a positive way. All children should think well of themselves. Good self-concept is the key."

For the past five years, Ruth has been a special education teacher in Plummer. The six years prior to that time she taught under a combined program of Title one and special education, also in Plummer. A Title one instructor is specialized in a particular subject, such as reading or math, she said, whereas a special education teacher is one that is more advanced in the teaching field.

Ruth obtained schooling for her entire teaching background at Bemidji state university. She presently possesses a BS degree in elementary education, a Masters degree in education, and she is certified as a special learning instructor, with a concentration in reading.

Ruth enjoys the pleasant atmosphere and staff at the Plummer school, she said, and she has no great desire to teach elsewhere. She is also fond of her students, whom she described as "generally good children who need little discipline."

Discipline is rarely needed, according to Ruth. And, when her students occasionally do drift away from their daily assignments, Ruth talks with them. Talking sessions are good for children, she stated. "I like to have a relaxed atmosphere in my classroom."

She also offers her students various rewards when they succeed at something. One such reward is a special breakfast served to the students in their classroom. There are games, birthday cakes for birthdays, and she distributes her own graded report cards to the older students to illustrate to them their progress. Younger students receive satisfactory, unsatisfactory, or a "needs improvement" for their assignments.

Ruth's teaching job is unique in that she only works with small groups of children at one time. Her largest class is made up of only four students. Each grade meets for one hour sessions during the day, with kindergarten children meeting only for half hours, since their interest span is shorter, Ruth said.

"The kindergarten students move rapidly since we do more activities in the half hour," she said. When a special activity arises, and a

New Loan Rates On Farm Grain Are Announced

New loan rates for farm stored grain produced in 1979 have been announced by the Pennington county agricultural stabilization and conservation service (ASCS), according to Phil Bergland, county executive director.

The new rates include: Wheat, $2.57; barley, $1.65; oats, 98 cents; and corn, $2 per bushel. Any producer in Pennington county who has a regular nine-month loan on any of these 1979 commodities is eligible to borrow additional money at the new loan rates, Bergland said.

All eligible producers can request a 100 per cent loan on all grain in storage upon payment of a small fee for measurement service. They may call Lucille Haugen, loan program officer, at the ASCS office (681-1612) for details.

Bergland also noted that the county office is now paying a full year of advance storage for all wheat and oats which are under new or revised loan agreements. Farmers with 1978 or 1979 grain under loan and who want to place it in the reserve program may receive storage of 26½ cents for each bushel of wheat and 20 cents for each bushel of oats.

Farmers who have a reserve contract on any wheat or oats from 1976 to 1979 and agree to another three-year contract may also collect one year of advance storage at this time.

Sandra Faye Olson And Jack E. Miller Wed

Miss Sandra Faye Olson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Olson of Thief River Falls, became the bride of Jack Edward Miller, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Miller of Goodridge, at a recent afternoon ceremony at St. John Lutheran church in this city.

Rev. Barrie Henke officiated at the double ring ceremony attended by approximately 250 relatives and friends. At the organ was Sherry Hanson, a friend of the bride. She played "Jesu, Joy of Man's Desiring," for the processional, and accompanied the guests as they sang the congregational hymn, "How Great Thou Art." Mike Lehrer, a friend of the bride, sang "Wedding Song," during the ceremony, and "The Lord's Prayer," as the couple lit the unity candle.

Fresh flowers graced the altar. The pews were marked with plum colored ribbon bows accented with babies' breath.

The bride was given in marriage by her parents. She was attired in a gown of white qiana fashioned with a fitted bodice featuring an overlay of Chantilly lace embroidered with seed pearls. Matching lace edged the Queen Anne neckline, formed the long, fitted sleeves, and accented the flounce that complemented the skirt and chapel-length train. A corresponding lace headpiece, etched with pearls, held her veil of bridal illusion, edged with lace. She carried a cascade of dusty rose roses, white and plum colored carnations, babies' breath and stephanotis.

Shelly Wiggins, Bemidji, a cousin of the bride, was personal attendant.

Matron of honor was Christie Sunsdahl of Goodridge, a friend of the couple. Other attendants were Pam Pearson, Salol, sister of the bride; Shirley Verbout, Thief River Falls, a sister of the groom; and Kim Wiggins, Bemidji, and Joni Hanson, Thief River Falls, cousins of the bride. All wore floor-length polyester gowns fashioned of a dusty rose and plum colored print on a white background. The gowns were styled with rounded necklines, three-quarter length sleeves and elasticized waistlines with self belts. In their hair, they wore two pink daisies accented with babies' breath. They carried bouquets of pink daisies, white carnations and dusty rose roses and greenery.

Wearing similar attire and carrying identical flowers was the junior bridesmaid, Mary Olson, a sister of the bride. Junior groomsman was Steve Olson, a brother of the bride. Like the men of the wedding party, he wore a plum tuxedo with a white ruffled shirt and a white carnation boutonniere centered with a pink rose.

Attending the groom as best man was Gerry Sunsdahl, Goodridge, a friend of the couple. Groomsmen were Gary Miller, Goodridge, a brother of the groom; Donavon Verbout, brother-in-law of the groom; Brian Wells, a friend of the couple; and Dave Olson, a brother of the bride. The ushers were Kevin Tharaldson, Goodridge, and Jeff Bakken, friends of the couple; Bobby Miller, Goodridge, a cousin of the groom, and Dean Koropatnicki, a cousin of the bride.

The groom wore all white attire with a white peek-a-boo boutonniere. The fathers of the couple wore plum colored tuxedos with pink shirts and pink rose boutonnieres, accented with babies' breath.

The mother of the bride was attired in a plum-colored, street-length skirt and matching blazer. The groom's mother wore a plum colored, long-sleeved floor-length gown. Their corsages were of white carnations with pink roses. Their flowers, like all the flowers worn at the wedding, were of silk, made by Linda Helgeland of Thief River Falls.

Honor guests at the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. Otto Messelt, grandparents of the bride; Clara Olson, great-aunt of the bride; Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Nelson, godparents of the bride; Mr. and Mrs. Bert Coan, Mr. and Mrs. Morris Miller, grandparents of the groom; and Mr. and Mrs. Leon Iverson, godparents of the groom.

A reception in the church parlors followed. Hosts and hostesses were Mr. and Mrs. Alan Koop, brother-in-law and sister of the bride; and Mr. and Mrs. Gary Anderson, brother-in-law and sister of the groom. Roxanne Iverson and Jodi Waller, cousins of the couple, registered the guests as Marcia Coan and Rhonda Haugen, cousins of the groom, ladled the punch.

Centering the serving table was a two by four foot cross wedding cake topped by a three-tiered creation iced in white and decorated with dusty rose roses and apple blossoms. Topping the three-tiered section was a double bell and heart ornament, made by Sherryl Koop, sister of the bride. The cake was cut and served by Phyllis Koropatnicki and Judy Miller, aunts of the bride and groom. Ardith Hanson and Margie Coan, also aunts of the bride and groom, poured the coffee.

Waitresses were Sheila and Susie Johnson, who were in charge of the head table, Virginia Sorenson, Rebecca Sorenson, Denise Fridley and Heidi Tangquist, friends of the couple. Julie Hanson and Jodi Anderson were in charge of the gifts and Lori Hanson and Kristi Miller distributed the wedding programs. All are cousins of the bride and groom.

Following the reception, the bride's parents hosted a supper in the church parlors for approximately 110 relatives of the couple.

The couple is now at home in rural Goodridge. The bride is a 1979 graduate of Lincoln high school and is employed by Dwight's Market in this city. The groom, a 1979 graduate of Goodridge high school, is employed by Lone Pine Farms, Goodridge. Photo, Orvis Haugen, Grygla

TALK SESSIONS are good for children, stated Ruth Oen, special education teacher at the Plummer school who was recently named teacher of the year. "I like to have a relaxed atmosphere in my classroom," she said. Here she is speaking with Jason Slover, second grade student, during a regular learning session.

Drug, Alcohol Use Topic Of Parent Class

Back by popular request for the parenting class series is Ken Froschheiser, Thief River Falls chief of police, who will discuss the topic "Drugs and Alcohol Use — What Every Parent Should Know" Monday from 7 to 9 p.m., at the Washington elementary library.

He will review the drug situation in this area, examining the drug problems that law enforcement encounters and handles. Participants will view an extensive display of drugs and paraphernalia confiscated locally, including marijuana, LSD, cocaine and a variety of pills.

Many parents have questioned, "How can I tell if my child is using drugs and what can I do if he is?" Froschheiser demonstrates the kind of drug paraphernalia that may be found in the home. He describes symptoms and effects of drugs that can be recognized in a user and provides information about the avenues a parent can take in this area to help a child who is abusing drugs and alcohol. Question and answer periods are included in the session.

Pre-registration would be helpful for class planning. A $1 fee is charged. Contact Adult Education, Thief River Falls AVTI, 681-5424.

Home Sewing Meet Offered Here Friday

Sewing for the home is a good way to use one's sewing skills to create a new effect in decorating and often save money.

A homemaker leader training session, "Sewing for the Home", will be conducted by Deborah Matero, Pennington county extension agent and Jean Castle, area extension agent in housing, Friday at 1:30 p.m. at the courthouse meeting room.

"Many people sew to satisfy a creative need that they have", says Mrs. Castle, who has done extensive sewing for her own home.

She has identified 40 different examples of articles that a person might sew for the home. "Of course, there are hundreds of variations that make your projects individual," she concludes.

The meeting will feature a talk with slides and examples to illustrate both ordinary and creative ideas. This meeting is an educational project of the Pennington county extension service.

Ruth Oen Is PHS Teacher Of The Year

grade cannot meet, she will spend extra time with a kindergarten student, she said.

Ruth has no preference to one grade over another, she said. "I really like teaching all of them."

"You can get farther with the lower grades (kindergarten through third) since that is where you start working with the child and any difficulty he or she may have. After that (grades four through six) you give supportive help."

Ruth was selected teacher of the year in the Plummer district by the Plummer education association and she is sponsored by the women's auxiliary of the American Club. She has sent in her book filled with papers or recommendation, photos, her teaching philosophy, and other information concerning her personal life or her teaching career to Minneapolis where the Minnesota teacher of the year will be selected.

Ruth and her husband, Ray, have three children — Spencer and Scott, who are both students at the University of North Dakota, Spencer specializing in marketing management, and Scott in accounting, and a daughter, Shaun, who is married to Steve Muzzy of Thief River Falls and who is presently pursuing a career in bacteriology.

The couple also has a dalmation, a cat, and seven horses. Ray and Ruth are involved in farming as well as being the owners of Basswood Trailer court in Thief River Falls.

Owning and caring for horses is only one of the many hobbies that Ruth enjoys, she said. She has one Tennessee walking horse, one quarter horse, and five Appaloosas, one of which has been in several shows. Ruth a member, of Trinity Lutheran church, is also active in 4-H activities, and enjoys drawing. She is chairman of the negotiations for the Plummer school, secretary for the committee of continuing education, is active in publications for the school, and is involved with communications for government relations for Kramer-Brown Uniserv MEA, a governing body for all education bodies in Northwestern Minnesota.

In her philosophy of education, Ruth states the importance of individuality in each child.

"I believe that every child is a unique individual with very special needs. The whole child must be considered and that means his or her mental or emotional makeup, values, goals and self-concept. It is a child's very individuality that makes him or her so interesting and special," she said.

"The fragile feelings of children must be carefully considered and all issues and problems that we deal with as teachers must be tempered just right," she added.

Ruth believes that a very important aspect in the teaching world is for the teacher to have a sense of humor, she said. "Almost every day there is something to be tickled about and I believe that if we do not have a sense of humor in our makeup we are due for some sad times. Children are so naturally honest and so innocently funny and so accidentally and sometimes not so accidentally witty that it is just about impossible not to smile at times," she said.

Ruth also emphasized the importance of love of children, which she believes is an all prevailing force.

"It (love) is patience and understanding for all the strange and irritable and irrational behaviors children are so capable of displaying — behaviors caused by feelings of frustration and special needs they sometimes are so incapable of coping with in any other way."

And Ruth, just as any teacher, has frustrating days, she said. "There are days when I feel I'm not moving as fast as I should. But that's not too often, she said. "I enjoy my job very well. It is rewarding to see improvements from day to day."

benevolences. Member stores have five years remaining on their purchase agreement, Knutson said.

Under the arrangement, stores which qualify and become members of the corporation are issued a share of stock and entitled to one vote at stockholder meetings. Profits of the company are distributed to members on a percentage basis in accordance with the dollar volume of business done with the wholesale firm during the course of the year.

Knutson said that L. B. Hartz wholesale has never had a year which did not show an increase in business over the previous year, and that there has been considerable growth in the company since the ownership reorganization five years ago. He declined to release dollar figures because of the competitive nature of the business, but indicated that company growth has totaled approximately 50 per cent since control of the operation passed to the new organization.

In addition to its approximately 400 member accounts, Hartz Wholesale is a secondary supplier in specific areas of business to a number of other stores throughout its service area of Minnesota and North Dakota.

NCC Offers Language Class

Beginning Japanese course will be offered at Northland community college beginning on Tuesday, March 25 and ending on May 13. The eight session non-credit course will meet once a week from 7 to 9 p.m. in room B-37 with the course fee set at $12.

The course will begin with students learning the 46 Japanese letters referred to as the Hiragana language. Later these letters will be translated to Katakana. After the students have learned the various Japanese letters, translation to English will follow.

During the course students will also learn key sentences, new words, expressions and patterns. Drill exercises will be used rather extensively as a means of instruction.

Yoshiko Duke will be the instructor for this unique community service foreign language class. Mrs. Duke came to the United States in 1956 after her marriage to Ed Duke who is presently an agri-business instructor at the Thief River Falls AVTI.

"I have always wanted to teach a beginning course in Japanese," she said, "and I feel this is a great opportunity for people of all ages to learn a new language."

Older Workers Assisted In Job Seeking

Minnesota department of economic security (DES) and Minnesota Green Thumb have entered into a non-financial agreement to provide cooperative job placement services for older state citizens seeking employment.

DES commissioner Rolf Middleton and Green Thumb state director Paul Anderson recently signed the two-year agreement to provide senior workers 55 years of age and older with job placement assistance through balance of state CETA (comprehensive employment and training act) offices, area job services offices and Green Thumb field representatives.

Green Thumb personnel will staff rural Minnesota CETA offices to assist older job seekers. They will recruit seniors to register with job service and utilize its placement facilities. Representatives will also make employers aware of the potential benefits of hiring capable and experienced older workers, generally recognized as being an under-utilized and under-served segment of the labor force.

William S. Breidfjord, 78, Dies In Idaho

William S. Breidfjord, 78, of Council, Idaho and formerly of Thief River Falls, died February 15, at the Calwell Memorial hospital at Council.

Graveside services for William Briedfjord were held February 19 at 11 a.m., at the IOOF cemetery at Council with Rev. Dennis Neels, pastor of the McCall Lutheran church, officiating. Council area poet Gene Camp read a poem, and Donovan Elliot, Tacoma, Wash., a nephew, sang.

William Stein Briedfjord, a son of Einar Jonsson Briedfjord and Gudny Jonasdottir Briedfjord, immigrants from the Briedafjordur area of Iceland, was born July 14, 1901 at Swan River, Manitoba, Canada. He spent his childhood at Swan River and while still a boy, moved to Upham, N.D. He later farmed and worked as a police officer at Upham.

On June 23, 1941, he was married at Upham to Amy Thelma Severson. The couple lived in North Dakota, where he operated a service station, was in charge of the projector at the theater and served as chief of police at Upham. They later moved to Thief River Falls and he operated service stations here for many years. In 1961, the family moved to the Minneapolis area where he became a drill press operator for Griswold Industries. Ten years later, he returned to Upham and resumed the position as chief of police. He retired in 1976 and moved to Council, Idaho, where he had since resided.

He was a member of the Independent Order of Odd Fellows, the Sons of Norway and the United Commercial Travelers.

Surviving are his wife, two sons: Paul Einar Briedfjord, Council, Idaho; and Daniel Jon Briedfjord, Roundup, Mont.; two daughters: Mrs. Stephen (LaDonna Gudny) Backmeyer, Rock Island, Ill., and Mrs. Leo (Jule Von) Peurasaari, Council; eight grandchildren, and two sisters: Thura Olafson, Rapid City, S.D., and Freda Elliott, Santa Ana, Calif.

About one out of three acres harvested goes to foreign markets. That came to about 72 million acres in 1970 and 110 million this year. If we were exporting at the 1970 level today, some 40 million acres would have to find other uses. If we didn't export at all, we'd have to find a home for more than 100 million acres.

Jobs As Census Takers In Area Still Available

Full-time, temporary jobs as census takers in this area are still available, according to Carole Wilson, manager of the 1980 census office at Bemidji.

"We're counting on you if you can work a 40-hour week visiting households and interviewing the residents," Wilson said, adding that some evening and Saturday work will be required.

Census takers will begin work soon as part of the 1980 census of population and housing. They will attend a training session for which they will be paid a piece rate for the number of household interviews completed. In a few instances, pay will be by the hour. For all workers, pay will average $4 an hour or more.

Census takers must be able to follow printed instructions, do simple arithmetic, and read maps for which they will be tested before hiring. They should be able to walk a considerable amount, climb stairs, and have good eyesight and hearing. They should also have a home telephone and a car for which mileage will be paid. Census bureau is an equal opportunity employer.

Interested persons should call 751-0730 or take a test in the Thief River Falls city auditorium at 123 North Main at 2 p.m. March 5, 10, 12, and 17, or at 10 a.m., March 19 and 21.

Crew leaders who will supervise much of the local effort in the upcoming 1980 census of population and housing were appointed recently by Wilson. Each crew leader will supervise about 11 enumerators or census takers, she said. In their training session, crew leaders are learning how to recruit, train and supervise enumerators who will be hired in this area in the near future.

Crew leaders appointed include: Kristine Kremer, Thief River Falls; Leah Thompson, Thief River Falls; Veronica Knoll, Stephen; Katherine Rynning, Kennedy; and Thelma Haugen, Newfolden.

FU President Asks Earlier Seaway Season

Cy Carpenter, president of Minnesota Farmers union (MFU), recently called for an early opening of the 1980 shipping season on the St. Lawrence seaway.

Directing his request to the Minnesota congressional delegation, Carpenter asked for their leadership in clearing the way to opening this year's shipping season a week earlier than as scheduled for March 31. Duluth's terminal elevators still hold grain stored from 1979, which is ready to be moved immediately. An extra week added to the shipping season would make a lot of difference in the market for farmers and exporters of grain and other agricultural products, he remarked.

Last September, Carpenter and Stanley Moore, president of the North Dakota Farmers union, made a request to key lawmakers and federal authorities to extend the shipping season for one week to move some of the grain backed up by the Duluth grain shutdown. At that time, arrangements were made to extend the shipping season by several days, which helped relieve some of the pressure of the backlog of stored grain.

"This year's milk winter makes the request for an early opening of the 1980 shipping season possible," Carpenter stated. "And, if we are going to do this, the decision should be made as soon as possible to maximize the potential benefits to family farmers in the Upper Midwest."

Copies of the letter with Carpenter's request were sent to Vice President Walter Mondale and Secretary of Agriculture Bob Bergland.

Total investment by U.S. farmers now exceeds $820 billion. Their debt is more than $137 billion, government figures show.

Congressmen Propose Farm Legislation

"Farmers have a right to be upset" is the way Congressman Arlan Stangeland referred today to intense lobbying efforts by farmers participating in the American agriculture movement.

"I'm very sympathetic to the concerns and problems of the farmers of this country," said Stangeland. "As a farmer I know from first hand experience how tough it is for these people to make a liveable income. The farmers and the agriculture industry supply the backbone to our national economy by supplying our food and creating related industry which is particularly important to small communities like those of the Seventh district and the state of Minnesota.

"But today inflation and the cost of production have severely reduced their profit margins, if there is a profit, and farmers are faced with an economic disparity that is forcing them out of business and treatening the stability of the nation as a whole."

In order to help relieve hardships experienced by farmers, Stangeland further stated he has joined with Congressman Richard Nolan, also from Minnesota, in sponsoring two bills, the economic recovery act of 1980 and the emergency operating act of 1980.

The economic recovery act would establish a national board of agricultural governors made up primarily of farmers but including consumer, labor and business representatives. The board would establish and administer agricultural production and marketing programs, including: pegging farm commodity prices at parity or comprehensive cost of production, whichever is less; announcing annual national production goals consistent with conservation programs; establishing acreage allotments or marketing quotas subject to producer referendums; maintaining a system of grain reserves; and preventing cheap agricultural imports from entering the U.S. price structure.

The emergency operating loan act provides low-interest operating loans at 3.5 per cent with the amount not to exceed $110,000 per farmer, in order to finance 1980 crops and to purchase feed for livestock. The program would be administered through the county Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation service offices.

"The fact that the U.S. department of agriculture is predicting a 20 per cent drop in farm income in 1980 is proof enough that current federal programs and laws are inadequate and must be improved. This legislation is important in accomplishing this goal and it must be passed if the agriculture industry and the national economy are to be stabilized," Stangeland said.

Insurance For Flood Damage Is Available

Each year, the floods of winter and spring sweep across the United States, bringing loss of life as well as devastation that totals in the millions of dollars. The year 1979 was particularly brutal.

Snow melt raised the Red River to more than 48 feet, 20 feet above flood stage in the Grand Forks, N.D. area, causing $16.3 million in damage.

Some property owners in floods across the nation fared better than others. They had their property protected by flood insurance policies from the national flood insurance program (NFIP). NFIP paid 24,453 policyholders $108.7 million during the first six months of 1979.

Since then, the number of NFIP policyholders has increased from 1.5 million to 1.8 million as property owners sought to protect their homes, businesses and possessions from the dangers of flooding. NFIP now has $72 billion in coverage on policyholders' property.

"The unpredictability of flooding makes it most improtant for property owners to review their need for flood insurance before the danger of flooding occurs, since there is a five-day waiting period from the time of application and payment of premium until the flood insurance policy goes into effect," says Mrs. Gloria Jimenez, federal insurance administrator.

Current policyholders should review their coverage to make certain that the amount of insurance they have will be sufficient to permit them to rebuild. Because inflation has driven prices to unprecedented levels, flood insurance coverage that would have been sufficient even a year ago may not be enough today.

The national flood insurance program is administered through the federal emergency management agency (FEMA), by the federal insurance administration. Low cost national flood insurance is subsidized by the federal government, providing potential flood victims with the opportunity to purchase flood protection at reasonable rates.

In order for a community's residents to be eligible to buy national flood insurance, the community must participate in the national flood insurance program. To do so, the community's local government must agree to adopt required flood plain management measures to insure the wise utilization of flood-prone areas. Flood plain management, defined as the conscientious regulation of new development in areas that are likely to flood, is a major concern of FEMA.

To further control development in flood plain areas, federal law requires flood insurance of anyone who buys, builds or improves property in those areas of the community.

"Flood insurance may be obtained through any licensed property-casualty insurance agent," Mrs. Jimenez said.

More than 110,000 independent insurance agents and brokers, as well as those agents who are directly employed by one specific insurance company, are actively engaged in selling flood insurance for the national flood insurance program.

Quie Explains Grain Embargo Effect In MN.

Steps to be taken to Aid Minnesota Farmers During the Soviet Grain Embargo

In testimony before the U.S. Senate Agriculture Committee last week I told of the severe effect the Soviet grain embargo has had on our Minnesota farm economy and outlined steps I believe should be taken to assist farmers during this embargo.

My testimony was in conjunction with that of North Dakota Governor Arthur Link and Montana Governor Tom Judge, who were also representing the National Governor's Association.

Due to agreements signed in 1975 and 1979, farmers and agricultural businesses were preparing to meet the needs of the Soviet grain market when the President called the grain embargo.

And while I understand the President's reasons for wanting to exert pressure on the Soviet Union to withdraw troops from Afganistan, the consequences for our Minnesota producers are great.

Due to Minnesota's geographical location we are the last to see the benefits of a strong export market and the first to receive the detrimental effects of such actions as the grain embargo.

In the short term we have seen depressed crop prices, a cash flow shortage, acute credit needs, depressed sales of farm equipment and increased storage needs.

According to the latest USDA reports, only 22 per cent of our corn farmers and 42 per cent of our wheat farmers are eligible for existing federal loan and grain reserve programs. This may force some of our farmers to sell these commodities on depressed markets to meet overdue bills. The lower prices they receive for their grains will affect our entire economy.

To help divert this short-term effect of the grain embargo I have recommended several steps be taken. They include:

1. Extend emergency credit to all grain farmers impacted by the grain embargo.
2. Reduce the rate of interest in farm storage facility loans from the current 11 per cent to last year's 7 per cent.
3. Increase the release and call level prices.
4. Increase loan levels to allow for increased costs of production.
5. Aggressively pursue alternative markets.

The long-term effects of a continuing grain embargo will be more severe.

In the future it is doubtful that the Soviet Union will let itself become so dependent on the U.S. for grain. Embargoes lead to a lack of confidence in the U.S. as an international food supplier. Hopefully, the nature of this one will not result in such loss and non-aggressive nations will look to us for supplies. This is why our transportation system and the Duluth port are so important. Other consequences may be further erosion of our balance of payments and the deterioration of the soundness of the dollar in the international monetary markets.

My participation in the governors' testimony before the U.S. Senate Committee on Agriculture is a part of my continuing interest in a thriving agricultural economy for our state.

Agriculture is Minnesota's number one industry and we must do everything we can to keep it stable and growing.

Grygla Girls Move Into District 32 Semifinals

It wasn't so very well played, admitted winning coach Bill Radeunz, but at tournament time it's the final score that matters and Grygla moved into the District 32 girls basketball tournament semifinals with a 47-35 victory over Greenbush Monday at Roseau.

"We didn't play out best basketball," acknowledged Radeunz, "but we did win."

The triumph will match the 16-3 Eagles against Karlstad, a 46-39 winner over Middle River in Monday night's doubleheader opener, in Thursday's 7 p.m. semifinal contest at Roseau. The District 32 championship game will be played Friday.

Grygla opened a 15-7 first quarter lead that was never threatened by the Tigers who trailed 23-18 at halftime and faced a 31-25 third quarter deficit.

Both teams had three scorers. Jill Saurdiff led Grygla with 18 points while Sherri Anderson scored 13 and Lois Verbout had 12. Mary Sovde scored 11 points for Greenbush while Shellie Taggart and Karen Sovde collected 10 apiece.

Grygla shot 33 per cent from the field, hitting 17 of 52 shots, while Greenbush shot just 23 per cent, making 14 of 60 attempts. The Eagles were 13-for-22 at the Free throw line where the Tigers were a dismal 7-for-20.

Karlstad 46
Middle River 39

Karlstad doubled Middle River 14-7 over the final eight minutes Monday to break open a District 32 tournament quarterfinal game at Roseau that was deadlocked 32-32 at the end of the third quarter.

"We gave it away," said Middle River coach Tom Neibauer who watched his team lose a three-point lead on five consecutive turnovers at the start of the fourth quarter.

The Skippers also got themselves in trouble with fouls, collecting 23 of them that sent the Rabbits to the line for 30 free throws. They made 16. And the foul trouble forced Middle River out of a half-court press the Skippers had used so effectively earlier this season in a 38-37 win over the Rabbits.

"We picked up a lot of dumb fouls," admitted Neibauer.

Vicki Helling scored a game-high 24 points for the winners, getting half of them at the free throw line where she was 12-for-21. Patti Blazek and Becky Jesme had 12 points apiece for the Skippers. High-scoring Dawn Nelson collected three fouls in the game's first four minutes and was limited to 10 points.

Middle River out-scored Karlstad from the field, but went 7-for-17 at the free throw line.

The Skippers finished the year 9-11.

Four Marshall County Central girls reached double figures Tuesday as the Nordics began District 32 tournament play with a 67-34 win over Strandquist at Roseau.

Lisa Busch led the winners with 17 points, followed by Sue Olson with 16, Jill Johnson 13 and Rosalyn Knutson 10.

"We played a pretty good ball game," pointed out Marshall County Central coach Tom Mjelde. "I was really pleased. Everything went the way we planned."

Marshall County Central built quarter leads of 12-11, 33-15 and 52-27.

The Nordics shot 33 per cent from the field (24-for-72) and made 19 of 29 free throws. The Warriors shot 26 per cent (14-for-53) and made just six of 23 free throws.

Marshall County Central, now 17-2, will face host Roseau in District 32 semifinal action Thursday at 8:30 p.m.

Plummer 40
Stephen 30

Plummer will challenge unbeaten Warren Thursday at 7 p.m. in District 31 tournament semifinal play at Crookston following the Cardinals' 40-30 victory over Stephen Tuesday.

Diane Fisher of Plummer was a scoring show with a 28-point night, but coach Rick Koivisto was praising the Cardinals' defensive play after their tournament-opening win. "I felt we played out best defensive game all year," he said, giving special credit to Deb Koskela who held normally high-scoring Fran Kuznia to eight points as a special assignment on the match-up 2-3 zone.

Plummer led 8-4 at the end of the first quarter, maintained a 20-14 edge at halftime and kept it at 28-24 in the third quarter.

The Cardinals were 16-for-40 from the field for 40 per cent and 8-for-18 at the free throw line. The Tigers were 12-for-37 from the field for 32 per cent and 6-for-14 at the line.

Plummer is 14-5 for the year.

at 10:15 and Dave Swanberg put a long slap shot over the shoulder of Crookston goalie Gary Vaudrin at 10:38.

Crookston tied it again at 3-3 when Clauson fed Johannson the puck at the goal mouth at 3:55 of the second period.

A power play goal by Mike Williams, who rammed home a center pass from Tim Misher at the 12-minute mark, gave the Green Wave a 4-3 lead they never surrendered.

East Grand Forks picked up a big goal at the end of the second period when a beautiful passing display between Myles Hart and Kary Strandell on a 2-on-1 rush put Strandell at the corner of a wide open goal mouth with just two seconds remaining. And that came just moments after Crookston's Tony Sprague was stopped on a breakaway at the other end.

"The puck just didn't bounce right," sighed disappointed Crookston coach Mike Lundby. "The puck went in for them; it didn't go in for us. We had our shots, but they just wouldn't go in."

A centering pass from behind the net by Johannson set up Steve Johnson at 5:46 of the third period and gave the Pireates new life as they pulled within 5-4.

But the rest of the period was a distaster for Crookston. Williams stole the puck in the Crookston zone and scored at 9:57; Hart put a rebound through Vaudrin at 11:30; and Terry Mishler sent the fans home early when he scored on a slap shot from the point at 12:21.

It wasn't a good night for Vaudrin, a sophomore, who stopped just 14 of the 22 shots he faced.

"Some of those shots just kind of leaked through him," said Lundby of Vaudrin, "and it's a shame because he's been coming up with big saves for us all year."

At 5-4 following Johnson's goal, Lundby was confident the Pirates could come back. "We felt we had a very good chance," he noted. "We were applying a lot of pressure. But we couldn't get back in the lead. And when you work so hard, then have them come down and put the puck in the net it takes the breath right out of you."

Crookston finished its finest season ever at 17-4-1, reaching the Section 8 semifinals for the first time.

Section 8 Title Up For Grabs

Roseau coach Gary Hokanson was a gracious winner Tuesday after watching his Rams defeat Thief River Falls 5-3 in an emotional Section 8 high school hockey tournament semifinal game played in front of a boisterous Thief River Falls sports arena crowd.

"That had to be some hockey game for the fans," said Hokanson whose team won the evenly matched contest with a 3-on-2 break in the final minute to snap a 3-3 tie. The Rams added an open net goal in the final second. "It was one of the best games we've been involved in all year," he pointed out.

Hokanson was naturally elated with the victory, but said he could empathize with the talented Thief River Falls team dominated by 10 seniors. "If we had to beat somebody, I felt bad it was Thief River," offered Hokanson. "They have one of their best teams they've had in many years. Their first line (Wade Hoppe - Jeff Ulrich - Jim Thompson) is one of the best lines in the state."

Roseau managed to hold the Prowlers' top line to one goal — Hoppe's unassisted game-tying goal at 5:45 of the third period.

"That was the secret," mentioned Hokanson. "We felt if we shut them (Hoppe - Ulrich - Thompson) off we'd be all right. And we did."

That sets up Friday's 7:30 p.m. championship game matching the Rams against East Grand Forks.

"I would expect much the same kind of game," predicted Hokanson. "Thief River Falls and East Grand Forks are very similar. We hope to beat them in the corners."

East Grand Forks coach Tony Palmiscno feels confident heading into the title showdown. "We set a goal at the start of the year," he said, "to get to the state tournament. We have one more step."

Prowlers Swim In Section 3 Meet

Started in 1970, the Lincoln high school swimming program has made a habit out of qualifying swimmers for state meet competition. Since Doug Williams and Dave Borning broke the state meet barrier in 1974, no less than 18 Prowlers have competed in the Minnesota state swimming and diving championships held annually at the Cooke Hall pool on the University of Minnesota campus in Minneapolis.

Only in 1977 when the Prowlers fielded a very young team has Thief River Falls failed to advance any swimmers through sectional competition into the state meet.

That past success will be tough to match this weekend when ten Thief River Falls swimmers take part in the 1980 Section 3 meet at Bemidji State University. The Prowlers, with just four seniors on the team, are young. And they don't have the outstanding performers of the past that would form a northern Minnesota all-star team.

Top two finishers in each Section 3 event earn state meet berths. Thief River Falls' best bet — and realistically the Prowlers' only hope — for a state meet spot rests with its 200-yard medley relay team of Jon Pinkerton, Dan Schoonhoven, Keith Grochow and Steve Poissant. Pinkerton and Schoonhoven are seniors and serve as the Prowlers' co-captains. Poissant is a junior and Grochow is a sophomore.

The rest are looking for a top six finish in the finals or a top 12 place in the consolation finals. And really, that's a major accomplishment since there will be a possible 52 entries in each event.

Past Thief River Falls state swimming meet qualifiers include Williams, Borning (1974); Borning, Dan Heleren, Greg Omdahl, Dan Cork (1975); Cork, Heleren, Omdahl, Mark Storhaug, Jeff Carter, Kevin Murphy (1976); Murphy, Bruce Storhaug (1978); Pinkerton, Murphy, Dave Beito, Bruce Storhaug (1979).

Borning was a double event winner for the Prowlers in the 1975 state meet with a 22.178 in the 50-yard freestyle and a 48.342 in the 100-yard freestyle. He placed sixth in the 50 the previous year.

Only other Thief River Falls state meet place finish was by the 200-yard medley relay team of Cork, Carter, Mark Storhaug and Omdahl in 1976. They placed ninth.

Miscellaneous

+ Confidence. That's what the Grand Rapids high school hockey team has. Tom Rothstein, the Indians' co-captain, had all the confidence in the world when he told the Grand Rapids Sports Boosters, "We won't be watching the state hockey tournament on TV." Grand Rapids will be gunning for its seventh straight Section 7 title Thursday when the Indians play International Falls at Hibbing.

+ Looking at the teams in the North Half Region 8AA girls high school basketball tournament that got underway last night (Tuesday) at Detroit Lakes, coach Steve Sundby of the No. 1 seeded Lakers said, "The field looks real close and it would appear that any of four or five schools are capable of winning. We want to feel confident about our chances, but we don't want to be overconfident." First round games will be completed Thursday, with the semifinals set Friday and championship game planned Saturday at 7:30 p.m.

+ Freshman forward Todd Trickle of Thief River Falls scored 15 goals, collected 10 assists and finished with a team high 25 points in his first season of college hockey at the University of Wisconsin-Eau Claire. Trickle and freshman defenseman Brad Hanson of Bemidji, who collected 23 points, were the top two scorers for the Bluegolds who finished their third season of intercollegiate hockey with a 5-23 record.

+ Former Goodridge high school and Northland community college basketball standout Georgine Troska completed her first year with the North Dakota State University women's basketball team with a 2.4 scoring average. She appeared in all 29 games for the Bison who finished with a 14-15 record — their most wins ever. Shelley Oistad, a freshman from Fertile-Beltrami high school, averaged 10.8 points and a team-leading 9.5 rebounds per game for NDSU.

Rams, Green Wave Play For Section 8 Title

Roseau, shooting for its 22nd title, and East Grand Forks, going for its first, will be the combatants Friday in the 1980 Section 8 high school hockey tournament championship game in the Thief River Falls sports arena. Game time is 7:30 p.m.

The perennial champion Rams have the opportunity to extend their current three-year championship reign after knocking off host Thief River Falls 5-3 in a Tuesday semifinal game. The Green Wave eliminated No. 1 seeded Crookston 8-4 Monday.

East Grand Forks will be appearing in just its third Section 8 championship game. The Green Wave, 15-7 for the year, made it to the finals in 1971 when they lost to Roseau 8-1 and in 1972 when Warroad beat them 6-1.

Roseau is 14-7-1. The unusually large number of losses for the Rams includes a 6-5 overtime defeat at the hands of East Grand Forks back on Feb. 19. That loss — on Roseau ice — came on the final night of regular season Section 8-counting competition and dropped the Rams from first to second place in the point standings behind Crookston.

Friday's winner will move on to the 1980 Minnesota state high school hockey tournament at the St. Paul Civic Center March 13-15.

Roseau Defeats TRF 5-3

Roseau benefited from a break at the start of the third period and capitalized on a Thief River Falls mistake at the end Tuesday to come out a 5-3 winner before a standing-room only crowd of over 3,000 fans who witnessed the best hockey of the four-day-old tournament.

The two evenly matched teams were deadlocked 1-1 when the Rams got their break in the opening moments of the third period. Thief River Falls was working the puck around in the Roseau zone on a power play that carried over from the second period when Jay Ness, who was serving the penalty for tripping, dashed out of the box when the penalty expired and blindsided Jeff Ulrich who was teeing up at the blue line. The puck squirted free and the Rams' Andy Odegaard had himself a breakaway. He lifted the puck over prone Thief River Falls goalie Bill Jury at 1:11.

"When you get into a game like this, you need a break to win it," explained Thief River Falls coach Wendell Grand. "And they definitely got the break on that goal. That was a terrifically good goal for them."

Seventy seconds later it was 3-1 when Erick Grafstrom of the Rams came up with a super effort along the boards as he maintained possession of the puck after taking a hard check and carried it in front where teammate Perry Espe put it through a crowd, past Jury and into the net.

Thief River Falls proved its worth by striking back quickly to erase that two-goal deficit. Defenseman Scott Wiebolt did all the work as he carried the puck into the Roseau zone along the boards, fought off a defender to hold onto the puck behind the net and gave it to Murray Jorde who fumbled it briefly before beating Roseau goalie Mark Tangen from close range at 4:54.

A quick 51 seconds later it was knotted 3-3 as Wade Hoppe found himself in front of Tangen with the puck for an unassisted goal at 5:45.

It stayed that way until Thief River Falls' fatal mistake at the end when the Prowlers were caught inside the attacking zone and Roseau broke out for a 3-on-2 rush. Brandon Shank scored the game-winner on the play with a well-placed wrist shot from the left of Jury low to the stick side with just 43 seconds remaining.

"I had just told our kids to play a little more defensive-minded and not get caught in their end," noted Roseau coach Gary Hokanson. "I looked up and saw they (TRF) had five guys in."

"It was a clean 3-on-2 break," acknowledged Grand. "They moved the puck well and made a nice shot."

A shot from center ice by Billy Yon reached the open Thief River Falls net just as the final second ticked off the clock for the final two-goal margin. Jury was pulled in favor of an extra attacker after the Rams' go-ahead goal.

It was another frustrating tournament loss for the Prowlers who were trying to end a 20-year Section 8 championship dry spell. They started slowly, trailing 1-0 when Grafstrom won a face-off to the right of Jury, put a quick shot on net and then poked in the rebound when Jury, sprawled flat on his back, wasn't able to cover the puck.

But a strong Thief River Falls second period, produced a 1-1 tie when Dave Geatz picked up a loose puck in the slot and beat Tangen high on the stick side with a wrist shot at 5:55.

"The kids gave a good effort," said Grand. "We played very well in the second period. We came back and the momentum was going our way. I felt we controlled the play and had the better scoring opportunities. But close doesn't count in this game; you have to finish."

Thief River Falls finished the year 13-8-1.

FIRST GOAL SCORED during Tuesday's Section 8 high school hockey tournament semifinal game between Roseau and Thief River Falls in the sports arena was scored on this play when the Rams' Erick Grafstrom (18) put a rebound past Thief River Falls goalie Bill Jury at 8:36 of the first period. Jury made the initial save on the play, but couldn't cover the puck, which can be seen just to the top right corner of the net. Tangled up in front of the net were Thief River Falls defensemen Steve Olson (5) and Dave Geatz (4). The Rams edged the Prowlers 5-3 to move into Friday's Section 8 tournament championship game against East Grand Forks, an 8-4 winner over Crookston in Monday semifinal play.

EGF Wins 8-4 Over Pirates

East Grand Forks scored three goals in a 2½ minute span late in the third period Monday to turn a shaky 5-4 lead into an easy 8-4 win over Crookston Central.

Winning coach Tony Palmiscno said he put a lot of emphasis on defense heading into the game, and in the end it paid off offensively.

"We wanted to be tight defenseively, and we were," explained Palmiscno. "We were really worried about their big scorers and we tried to watch them."

The Green Wave strategy was effective as they blanked high-scoring Bob Clauson and surrendered just one goal to Tom Johannson. Those two ranked 1-5 in the Section 8 scoring charts this winter.

"We stressed being tight in our end," continued Palmiscno, "because we've had trouble in our end all year. It eventually created opening an offense for us."

Defense, however, wasn't on the menu in a wild first period. Crookston applied immediate pressure and scored just 21 seconds into the contest as Steve Biermaier took two swats at a rebound from point blank range.

The Green Wave tied it 1-1 on their first trip down ice as Myles Hart let go with a sailing slap shot as he crossed the blue line at 1:03.

Biermaier, who played in the shadow of linemates Clauson and Johannson most of the year, scored again at 5:30 on a scramble in front of East Grand Forks goalie Mark Pagnac.

But in the space of 23 seconds East Grand Forks tied it and went ahead 3-2 as Tim Mishler, battling a defender for possession of the puck on a 1-on-1 rush, scored Girls North Half Region 8AA Basketball Tournament . . .

Lakers Beat Prowlers 64-48

No. 1 seeded Detroit Lakes, as expected, handled No. 8 seeded Thief River Falls 64-48 Tuesday to open the 1980 girls North Half Region 8AA high school basketball tournament.

The host Lakers led throughout, opening a 17-6 first quarter lead, taking a 38-23 advantage into halftime and carrying a 51-35 edge into the final period.

"It was kind of like you would expect it to be," admitted Thief River Falls coach Sylvia Sjoberg whose club matched a 6-11 record against Detroit Lakes' 16-2 standing. "We didn't play too badly. We kind of did what we wanted to do, but it wasn't enough."

Four Lakers reached double figures as 6-2 Lynn Christensen scored 19 points, Brenda Peterson got 15, Patti Weldon 13 and Sonia Santwire 10. Thief River Falls captain Roberta Engel, the only senior in the Prowlers' line-up, matched Christensen's game-high 19 points.

Thief River Falls shot 39 per cent from the field by hitting 20 of 51 shots and made eight of 17 free throws. Detroit Lakes shot 38 per cent by making 25 of 66 shots and connected on 14 of 23 free throws. The Lakers built a 40-30 edge on the boards.

The out-come extended Detroit Lakes' winning streak to 11 games. The Lakers have not lost since absorbing an error-plagued 62-41 setback at the hands of Moorhead Jan. 15.

East Grand Forks edged Bemidji 58-56 in last night's North Half Region 8AA doubleheader nightcap. The Green Wave will challenge the Lakers in Friday's 7 p.m. semifinals.

The North Half Region 8AA championship game will be played Saturday at 7:30 p.m. at Detroit Lakes.

First round play will be completed Thursday when Moorhead meets Park Rapids at 7 p.m. and Fergus Falls takes on Crookston at 8:45. Those winners will meet Friday at 8:45 p.m.

In opening round South Half Region 8AA action, St. Cloud Apollo defeated Brainerd 62-48, Alexandria eliminated Sauk Rapids 60-32, Melrose handled St. Cloud Tech 35-23 and Little Falls crushed Cold Spring-Rocori 72-59.

Thursday semifinals at St. Cloud Cathedral high school will match Apollo vs. Alexandria at 7 p.m. and Melrose vs. Little Falls at 8:45. South Half Region 8AA championship game will be played Saturday at 7:30 p.m. at St. Cloud Cathedral.

The North and South Half champions will meet Friday at the site of the North winner in the 1980 Region 8AA championship game.

Swimmers Compete In Section 3 Meet At BSU

Ten members of the Lincoln high school swimming team will compete this weekend in the 1980 Section 3 swimming and diving championships at Bemidji State University.

Swimming starts at 1 p.m. both Friday (prelims) and Saturday (finals). Top two finishers in each event — along with the top four divers — will earn spots in the 1980 Minnesota state swim meet March 14 and 15 at the Cooke Hall pool on the University of Minnesota campus.

Prowlers who will be swimming Friday for a shot in Saturday's finals include seniors Jon Pinkerton, Dan Schoonhoven and Dennis Booth; juniors Steve Poissant, Mark Isaacson, Marty Pluth, Nate Gjovik, Tom Eckstein and Kevin Grochow; and sophomore Keith Grochow.

Thief River Falls swimmers will be facing a stiff challenge to reach the finals, warns John Kopari, the Prowlers' coach. "It's going to be tough," he admitted. "All the kids will have to swim well to make the finals. Nobody is a cinch to make it."

Top Thief River Falls entry is expected to be the Prowlers' 200-yard medley relay team of Pinkerton, Schoonhoven, Keith Grochow and Poissant. They may be in the running for a state meet spot.

The rest will be looking for a top six finish in the finals or top 12 finish in the consolation finals. Both are potential finalists in both the 200 and 500-yard freestyle races; Schoonhoven could reach the finals in the 100-yard butterfly and the 100-yard backstroke; Isaacson is capable of placing among the top 12 in the 200 and 500-yard freestyle events; Poissant and Keith Grochow could give the Prowlers two top 12 finishers in the 100-yard breaststroke; Pinkerton is a possibility in the 50-yard freestyle; and Keith Grochow might score in the 100-yard butterfly.

Defending champion Fergus Falls is a heavy favorite to retain its team title this weekend, with Brainerd and Bemidji expected to wage a second place battle.

Fergus Falls won the 1979 Section 3 meet with 257 points, followed by Alexandria 187, Brainerd 185, Fosston 149, Thief River Falls 127, Bemidji 123, Staples 61, Sauk Center 36, Little Falls 29, Park Rapids 16, Moorhead 15, Melrose 14 and Detroit Lakes 10.

Kopari expects the Prowlers to finish somewhere in the middle of the pack. "I think that's the best we can do this year," he acknowledged. "But I think the kids will be satisfied when they come out of there. All we can ask is for them to do their best. If they do that, then we'll be happy."

TRF Section 3 Swimmers

Peterson Lumber, a fifth place finisher in the regular season standings with a 5-8 record, knocked off No. 4 seeded Sooline 7-3 Sunday and upset league runner-up Wennberg's 6-5 Tuesday.

In other first round games Sunday Harger blanked McDonald 13-0 and Wennberg's defeated Johnson 15-2.

EAST GRAND FORKS goalie Mark Pagnac stretched across the goal mouth to thwart a Crookston scoring opportunity as players from both sides tumbled to the ice in the third period of Monday's Section 8 high school hockey tournament semifinal game played in the Thief River Falls sports arena. The Green Wave eliminated the No. 1 seeded Pirates 8-4 to move into Friday's 7:30 p.m. championship game.

Jury, Hoppe TRF Picks . . .

All-Section 8 Team Named

An all-senior line-up is featured this year on the 1979-80 All-Section 8 high school hockey team announced Tuesday by Don Olson of KTRF radio in Thief River Falls.

Bill Jury of Thief River Falls was named as first team All-Section 8 goalie for the second straight year and he's joined by Mark Huglen of Roseau and Eddie Christian of Warroad as repeat selections from the 1979 honor squad.

New picks were Wade Hoppe of Thief River Falls, Bob Clausen of Crookston Central and Matt Baab of Mount St. Benedict.

KTRF makes the annual All-Section 8 selections by polling the Section 8 coaches. Each coach is asked to name a goalie and five skaters that he feels would make the strongest team. He can not vote for members of his own team.

Jury, although injured for most of the year, still finished with a fine 3.1 goals-against average for the top goaltender post.

Huglen, too, was slowed by injuries much of the season but is still an impressive performer.

Hoppe is featured as the ideal play-maker who made the Thief River Falls power play one of the best in Section 8. He collected 57 points on 23 goals and 34 assists this winter.

Clausen was one of the biggest performers in the area with a strong shot that earned him 57 points on 34 goals and 23 assists.

Baab personally made the Blue Wave a threat in every game as he collected 56 points on 26 goals and 30 assists.

Christian, an excellent skater going both ways, finished with 50 points on 25 goals and 25 assists.

Thief River Falls' Jeff Ulrich and Dave Geatz were second team choices and the Prowlers' Jim Thompson was given honorable mention status.

Thief River Falls placed second in the District VFW Bantam A tournament at Moorhead by beating Moorhead 6-3 and East Grand Forks 5-3 before losing to Fergus Falls 6-5 in an overtime title game that gave the winners a berth in the state VFW tournament at Roseau March 20-22.

In regular season play the Thief River Falls Eagles Pee-Wee A team won a pair of games over Grafton and Roseau. Trailing 2-1 after two periods, Thief River Falls scored three times in the third period to beat Grafton 4-2. Jim Breiland scored twice in the win and single goals were added by Billy Desrocher, Al Erickson and Chad Bottem. Scott Novak had a hat trick in a 5-3 victory over Roseau. Erickson and Breiland added single goals as Thief River Falls improved its record to 9-19-1.

Thief River Falls Pee-Wee B team split a pair of decisions, beating Bagley 6-4 but losing to Red Lake Falls 5-3. Brian Dormady had a hat trick against Bagley, with Ron Glauque and Mike Hoff scoring one goal apiece. Keith Iverson, Glauque and Dormady scored against Red Lake Falls.

NEAR-MISSES are always the frustrating part of a hockey game, especially at tournament time. And Thief River Falls' Tom Ose (7) had a goal slip away in Tuesday's Section 8 tournament semifinal game against Roseau when he put the puck behind Roseau goalie Mark Tangen, but watched as it slipped through the goal mouth at the start of the second period. The Prowlers were trailing 1-0 at the time. The Rams won 5-3.

WORKING WITH THE alphabet is an important beginning step for a kindergarten student in learning letters and words, according to Ruth Oen, special education teacher at the Plummer school who was recently selected teacher of the year for the Plummer school district. Jeremy Bucta works with his teacher on the alphabet during his half-hour morning session spent with Ruth during a regular school day. Ruth, who works with each grade — kindergarten through grade six — throughout the day, feels that a rewarding aspect of teaching is to see a child succeed at something.

LOCAL WINNER in the Toastmaster's club speech contest is Donald M. Norway Images Portrayed At Library Thurs.

Images of Norwegian mountains and trolls will come to mind Thursday, at 7:30 p.m. when storyteller Lise Lunge-Larsen comes to the Northwest regional library.

Lunge-Larsen will tell a number of Norwegian tales which are represented in the exhibit, "Once Upon a Time: Illustrations of Children's Tales from around the World." The University gallery exhibit will remain on display at the library until March 10.

Lise Lunge-Larsen is a native of Oslo, Norway and remains a Norwegian citizen although she now considers Minneapolis her home. She is an instructor and PhD student at the University of Minnesota and studies and teaches English as a second language. She currently also serves at the guest curator for the exhibit, "Once Upon a Time."

Her delivery of Thursday evening's program "Tales Told of Norway" is designed to appeal to the child in all of us. The program is free and open to the public. Exhibit and related programs were made possible in part by a grant from the Minnesota state arts board with funds appropriated by the Minnesota legislature.

Top Herds In DHIA Listed For January

Jerry Hamre, supervisor of the Pennington county dairy herd improvement association (DHIA), lists the top herds in the association for January as the results of DHIA testing.

In first place if Mylo Carlson, whose herd produced an average of 50.5 pounds of milk and 1.95 pounds of butterfat, followed by Duane Krohn, 48.1 and 1.82; Myron Erickson, 45.2 and 1.75; Marvin Koop, 43.4 and 1.61; Duane Vatsaas, 43.0 and 1.64; Orlan Stolaas, 42.2 and 1.56; Hanson Heritage Farm, 41.8 and 1.44; Roger Walter, 40.7 and 1.57; Chester and Steve Gast, 38.4 and 1.46; and Gordon Wetterlund, 38.1 and 1.50.

Herd averages are affected by the number of dry cows in the herd. The amount of milk or butterfat produced is averaged out over all the cows, giving the farmer a record of the earning power of the herd for the month.

There were 28 DHIA herds and four owner-sampler herds on January test for a total of 32 herds on test. There were 24 cows that completed records with over 625 pounds of fat in 305 days or less.

An individual's answers on the 1980 census questionnaire are so confidential, by law, that even another Federal agency cannot get the answers to enforce other laws.

CPLT Begins Parenthood Discussions

Children and Parents learning together (CPLT) is starting a discussion group for teen, and single parents on Tuesday, March 11 at 6:30 p.m. in room 104 of Mark Twain elementary school.

The group sessions will give parents an opportunity to share, discuss and interact with other parents about the problems and joys of parenthood. There is no charge for the program. To register call 681-5670. Child-care will be provided at the center for those who have pre-registered.

CPLT is one of 36 pilot programs in early childhood and family education located throughout Minnesota and funded by the state legislature. The programs are coordinated by the Minnesota council on quality education. Invited to participate in the program are expectant parents or parents of a child aged birth to kindergarten and living in the Thief River Falls school district.

Seeks Uniform Law On Child Abductions

Sen. Dave Durenberger told two Senate subcommittees that "the illegal abduction of a child by the non-custodial parent has reached epidemic proportions." He urged immediate passage of legislation to make kidnapping laws uniform in all 50 states.

Durenberger made his comments in testimony before a joint meeting of judiciary and labor and human resources subcommittees. Durenberger's bill, the parental kidnapping prevention act, would require all states to enforce valid child custody determinations and would prohibit the intentional restraint of a child in violation of a valid state custody determination.

Durenberger said that in his first year in the Senate he has tried to assist several Minnesota families who have had a child kidnapped by an ex-spouse.

"I've met parents who have neither seen nor heard from their children for several years; parents who don't know the whereabouts of their child or whether that child is alive or dead. . .I've met families that have abandoned their careers and exhausted their financial resources in a futile effort to relocate a kidnapped child," said the Minnesota senator.

He said at least 25,000 cases are reported each year "and experts in child welfare believe there are three unreported cases for each abduction brought to the attention of the authorities."

Durenberger said the problem arises because all states do not enforce another state's custody decision. He said his bill "would ensure that custody and visitation decrees will be enforceable in every state. . .This is an essential requirement if we are to remain a society of laws and not of men.

"Today, a custodial order is little more than a right without a remedy. Because child kidnapping is not a crime, victim parents cannot enlist the assistance of federal law enforcement officials in locating and reclaiming victim children. Instead, they must rely on private attorneys and private detectives; their ability to enforce the basic right of custody is entirely a function of their personal financial resources.

"There are few rights more basic than the right to custody of a child. We cannot tolerate a system that makes that right contingent on personal wealth," said Durenberger.

Aging Council Meets Monday

Pennington council on aging will meet Monday, March 10, at 2 p.m. in the city auditorium.

U.S. agricultural exports in fiscal 1979 reached a record high of $32 billion, double the amount of imports.

Truckers Call Erskine Meet On Load Limits

Farmers and truckers concerned about announced cutbacks in load limits on state highways in the area have called a meeting for 8 p.m. Friday at the Erskine auditorium.

Cutback in weight to approximately 70,000 pounds per load will require one extra load for every seven loads hauled, according to a spokesman for the group. This will increase the cost of transporting grain to market by necessitating additional hauling trips.

The group organizing the meeting is calling for support and views on the question and encourages attendance at the Erskine meeting.

The state highway department announced recently that some restrictions normally in effect only during the spring will now be extended for longer periods. This will especially affect 10-ton routes which are reduced to nine-ton limits during the spring.

Other routes are being reduced by one to two tons per axle from about the middle of March until June 1. The state highway division office in Bemidji announced that maintenance crews will patch some sections of road in attempts to maintain their load-carrying capability at 1979 levels.

Redinger Says Crowds Large For 'Joni' Film

Walt Redinger, chairman of the local committee sponsoring the showing of the film "Joni" in Thief River Falls, noted that the response exceeded expectations and the group was unable to satisfactorily handle the large crowds coming to the theater to see the film.

Redinger said that reservations were taken only for groups of 15 or more, and for this reason some people who had been waiting to get into the threater were denied admission in favor of those large groups with seats reserved.

"We apologize for the inconvenience we caused so many," Redinger said, "but we just did not expect the turnout to be so great. The film is in such great demand that we were unable to hold it over, but hope to bring it back to the area in a few months."

Public Image Of Aging Is Changing

by Jeanne Hanson
'U' M News Service

Ever since Ponce de Leon's midlife crisis led to his unsuccessful search for the fountain of youth, America has had a youth-oriented culture and has disparaged aging.

Daniel Detzner, professor of social and behavioral science at the University of Minnesota, has traced the historical roots of our negative cultural attitudes toward the elderly. "Only now, as our population itself gets older, are we starting to come to terms with aging," he said.

Ponce de Leon had heard rumors from the Carribbean Indians about a miraculour fountain of youth. In 1513 he set sail to find it in Florida. He was 39.

He and his sailors spent eight months skirting the coast, drinking from and bathing in nearly every stream, river, lake and inlet, searching for the elusive waters. The Seminole Indians were no help. They revered their elders and couldn't understand a desire for eternal youth, Detzner said. Defeated, de Leon made it back to Puerto Rico in time for his fortieth birthday.

In the 17th century, the few elderly colonists were well-respected. Most political offices were reserved for men over 40, and a long life was seen as a sign from God that a person was blessed. But fewer than one per cent of the people lived to age 65. Most immigrants were younger and had come to America to start over in a new world. Consequently, it was a youth culture even in those days, Detzner said.

Through the 18th century, the frontier seemed boundless. It was shoved westward by a population whose average age was less than 20, Detzner said.

Most settlers had left their parents and grandparents in the old world, never to return, and were escaping the stratified, traditional European societies. Limits, tradition, history, ancestors and authority were devalued — and older people lose status along with them. "This is the destructive part of the frontier myth," Detzner said.

By 1900, an upwardly mobile younger generation had migrated to the new frontier and new cities began to emerge. Only about four per cent of the population was 65 or over and most of those were rural residents by necessity.

Older people who had moved to the cities were not allowed gradual retirement from the factories the way they had been on the farms, Detzner said. If they were without their families, the aged sometimes had no choice but the county poor farm.

"Honor thy father and thy mother" was the motto of the Townsend movement, organized in 1933 by a doctor, 66. The movement forced the country to pay attention to its old people for the first time, Detzner said.

With no social security and with a full-scale depression under way, Townsend lobbied for $200 monthly payments to anyone over 60 who promised to retire and spend the money within 30 days. Although Townsend's old age payments never materialized, the social security act was passed in 1935.

Aging became a mass media phenomenon in the middle of the 20th century, Detzner said. From lotion ads to soap operas and sitcoms, the images of old people were often conveyed as negative stereotypes. Even more often, older people were not presented at all. "People wouldn't stand for treatment like this of blacks or women," Detzner said.

Typical cultural images were the dirty old man, the grandmother, the crazy old lady, and the professional senior citizen, he said. The nadir of this ear was the "Don't trust anyone over 30" phase, he said.

"I'm definitely more optimistic now about the public image of the elderly," Detzner said, citing the fact that 11 per cent of the population is now over 65 and is becoming gradually more assertive about its rights.

Already, more older people are being presented on television, often as the "voice of experience," he said. Marcus Welby selling coffee and a mother teaching her daughter about laundry soap are examples. Elderly people are also more often shown as working members of families.

Detzner also reports that the courses on aging he and his colleagues teach at the University of Minnesota have become very popular with students of all ages, and "even doctors" are paying more attention to the needs of the elderly, he said.

But Detzner is concerned that older people may become "luxury items" in a society that is finding its limits and cutting costs. Some people are afraid that a glut of elderly people may slow down our society, a fear that have been labeled "gerontophobia."

Although acceptance of the aging process has come a long way since Ponce de Leon's day, we still have a long way to go, Detzner said.

Praise Mn/DOT For Winter Road Effort

Winter highway maintenance activities of the Minnesota department of transportation (Mn-DOT) have received high marks from a federal highway official, according to Mn-DOT commissioner Richard P. Braun.

Examination of Mn-DOT's ice and snow removal program was made by T. Reid Brown, deputy director of the federal highway administration's (FHWA) office of construction and maintenance, Chicago.

Brown visited the St. Paul and Rochester area maintenance districts and met with senior Mn-DOT officials and employees during his four-day visit to the state.

Brown's visit was part of the FHWA's monitoring of Minnesota's responsibility to maintain its part of the federal highway system.

Mn-DOT's practices on ice and snow removal drew the most attention from Brown who praised the department's well-developed program for clearing snow and ice from the state's highways with maximum speed and efficiency.

Wayne Murphy, Mn-DOT District 9 (St. Paul area) maintenance engineer, said the Minnesota program was found to be the most comprehensive winter maintenance program of 13 snow-belt states scrutinized during a three-year study completed in 1978 by the state of Utah.

Summarizing his assessment of Mn-DOT's winter maintenance operations, Brown said the department has a "very effective" snow and ice control program and lauded the performance and attitude of Mn-DOT employees.

"They (Mn-DOT) have good equipment, good facilities where this equipment is maintained and serviced to keep it in first class condition, but of more importance, they are blessed with good people," Brown said.

Is it odd to find these twenty-four words here in your newspaper? But here they are . . . centuries old, out of the enthralled mind of a man who looked at a mountain, at the rugged earth and the vast sky above, at time, at eternity.

Do his words belong among the headlines and datelines, the terse reports of earth-shaking events? Should they compete for our attention with all the goods and services we'd like to buy?

Well this man made a remarkable discovery: he did not simply arrive at the fact of Divine creation. Nor did he merely proclaim the existence and endless reign of God. He spoke to God! He knew Him!

Have our headlines yet reported a greater discovery?

Psalm 90:2

Before the mountains were brought forth
  Or ever Thou hadst formed
  The earth and the world,
Even from everlasting to everlasting,
  Thou art God!

Sunspots Studied By 'U'M Physicist

by Mark Canney
'U' M News Service

Few things in life are considered as stable as the sun, or so it seems from our vantage point 93 million miles away. But, according to a University of Minnesota physicist, certain areas of the sun will be anything but stable for the next few years.

"Sunspot activity is presently at its peak," said John R. Winckler, professor of physics at the university.

Astronomers have monitored the sun's activity closely for the past 200 years and certain patterns have emerged. A period of peak sunspot activity, called sunspot maximum, occurs every 11 years and takes five-and-a-half years to progress from maximum to minimum.

The reasons for this cyclincal formation of sunspots are not entirely understood, but changes in the magnetic fields just below the sun's surface are known to be responsible, Winckler said.

A mesh of strong magnetic fields in the sunspots trap the hot gasses that emanate from the core of the sun. As a result, the trapped gasses remain cooler than the surrounding area of the sun and are seen as dark blotches on the sun's surface.

Floating islands of electromagnetic storms, sunspots generate short-lived, violent discharges called solar flares. Thought to be escape valves that release unstable accumulations of energy, major flares may cover hundreds of millions of square miles. Some flares can spew forth up to 10 billion tons of gas at a speed of two to three million miles per hour.

The energy surge caused by the flares causes a shock wave that reaches Earth's radiation belt about eight minutes after the flare has been initiated on the sun. This shock wave causes short wave radio interference and is responsible for the auroral lights seen in the nighttime sky, Winckler said.

"Solar activity can disrupt long-range communications such as military communication systems, teletypes, undersea and underground communication networks, and can also cause overload surges on power lines which could result in the tripping of circuit breakers on long-distance power cables," Winckler said.

Sunspot activity does not affect FM and AM radio signals nor does it disrupt satellite communications, he said.

Visually, the effects of solar activity can be spectacular. The charged, energetic particles that are hurled at Earth as a result of solar flares excite Earth's upper atmosphere, creating the northern lights.

"The best time to see the auroral lights is between 10 p.m. and 2 a.m. in the winter night," Winckler said. "Those living in a metropolitan area should travel north of the city so the view of the celestial lights is not hindered by the glow of the city or the haze surrounding the city," he said.

Persons aboard night airline flights, especially those on the polar route, should get an excellent view of the lights, Winckler said.

Sunspots on the surface of the sun can be seen by the casual observer using a simple method. "The best way to observe sunspots is to point a pair of binoculars or a telescope towards the sun," Winckler said. "Focus the image of the sun on a piece of paper placed some distance behind the eyepiece of the binoculars or telescope. The sunspots will show up as dark blotches within the image of the sun on the paper."

The pinhole method that has been used for observing eclipses will not give enough definition for sunspots to be detected, he said.

Under no circumstances should the sun be observed directly, with or without telescopic devices, Winckler warned. The best time for viewing sunspots is when the sun is highest in the sky, he said. The blotches should show up as dark centers surrounded by lighter shadows.

Sunspots were first observed and recorded by a Greek named Theophrastis in 350 B.C. and the resulting northern lights were for many years thought to be a message from the gods portraying good or bad omens.

Recently, solar activity has been blamed for changes in the weather and the overall climate, but, according to Winckler, there is no convincing evidence linking sunspots to weather changes.

The energy given off by the steady outpouring of gas by the sun or the blast from flares is only about one-millionth of the sun's heat and light energy. Thus, the effects of the energy are small, but may act as a trigger to alter the high atmosphere and possibly affect long-term weather patterns.

Scientists at the national center for atmospheric research in Boulder, Colo., recently launched a satellite to study solar activity while the sun is in its active stage. They will be looking at exactly what happens before, during and after solar flares, why it happens and the sources of the energy for the events.

To Hearty Budget Meals

This delicious casserole will help you stay nourished and fit through the chilly winter months—and stay within your budget.

This year the wise homemaker will have an eye for economy and good food value, as well as convenience, in meal preparation.

Main dish meals like casseroles, which are a meal in themselves, are a great way to save on time and food costs. They can still be delicious, wholesome offerings if you team foods like lima beans, ham hocks and almonds.

Slivered almonds demonstrate their versatility as a delicious ingredient and an attractive garnish in Lima Casserole Almondine. The great flavor and texture of crunchy California almonds make winter casseroles like this one especially inviting.

Served as a company buffet dish or simple family supper, Lima Casserole Almondine has great appetite appeal and plenty of nutrition. Almonds are a rich source of riboflavin, vitamin E, phosphorous and magnesium.

LIMA CASSEROLE ALMONDINE

- 1 lb. large dry lima beans
- 5 cups water
- 1 can (1 lb.) pear halves or slices
- 1 ham hock (1 lb.) cut in 4 pieces
- 1 cup finely chopped onion
- 1 tablespoon brown sugar
- 2½ teaspoons salt
- 1 teaspoon finely chopped garlic
- 1 teaspoon dry mustard
- 1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
- ¼ teaspoon white pepper
- 1 can (8 oz.) stewed tomatoes
- ½ cup toasted slivered almonds
- Chopped parsley

Combine beans and water in Dutch oven. Heat to boiling and boil 2 minutes. Cover and set aside 1 hour. Drain pears, reserving ¼ cup syrup. Chop pears. Combine with reserved syrup and beans. Add ham hock, onion, sugar, salt, garlic, mustard, Worcestershire sauce and pepper; mix well. Cover and bake at 325 degrees 1½ hours. Stir in tomatoes and almonds, sprinkling a few almonds over top. Bake uncovered 30 minutes longer. Sprinkle with chopped parsley to serve. Makes 8 servings.

Views On Dental Health®

By Donald R. Goodrich, D.D.S.

WHAT IS ROOT CANAL?

Years ago, a badly infected tooth was doomed to be pulled. Today, that's a last resort. Root canal treatment consists of: 1) the removal of the infected pulp that lies within the root canals of the tooth, and 2) the sealing of the root ends to prohibit any further infection.

The pulp is the tooth's center core of soft tissue (nerves, blood vessels and fibers). When the dentist removes a "nerve" from a tooth, he really removes pulpal tissue that contains the nerve.

Removing the pulp from the tooth does not produce a "dead" tooth. It will be very much alive and functioning because it has a source of blood and nerve supply from the surrounding tissues that hold it in place. The tooth will have no sense of feeling because the nerve has been removed, but the tooth itself will be fine; it should last as long as your other teeth and could even be eventually used as an anchor tooth for a denture bridge.

A public service to promote better dental health. From the office of, DONALD R. GOODRICH, D.D.S., Professional Bldg., Thief River Falls. Phone: 681-4506.

Programs Subject to Change Without Notice

Senator Would Boost Aid On Weatherization

Senator Dave Durenberger has introduced legislation that will increase the number of low and moderate-income families eligible for federal assistance to weatherproof their homes.

Durenberger will introduce an amendment to the $2.2 billion federal weatherization program to make the eligibility requirements less restrictive than those in the present Senate bill.

"My amendment will correct the major flaw in the bill," said the senator. "Last fall we passed legislation that would provide income assistance to help offset rising heating fuel costs. For that assistance, Congress said a typical non-farm family of four could receive help with their fuel bills if their income was $10,960 or less.

"The weatherization bill is the companion legislation to the income assistance program. However, the present bill changes the eligibility standard so that a family of four can't earn more than $9,316 to receive assistance.

"The same standard should be used in both programs. Giving people the assistance to weatherproof their homes by adding insulation or weatherstripping will help cut fuel bills and reduce the need for future income assistance," Durenberger said.

The Senate weatherization bill sets the eligible income at 85 per cent of the bureau of labor statistics' lower living standard. Durenberger's amendment increases the requirement of 100 per cent of the standard, the same criterion used in the energy income assistance bill.

"Weatherization can make it possible for many families to become energy independent. Because energy costs are rapidly climbing out of reach, many families need income assistance immediately. But some of those families could make it on their own with the proper investment in weatherproofing their homes.

"It doesn't make sense to offer cash assistance to some families because we recognize they can't afford the high cost of energy and then turn around and exclude them from the weatherization program. All we're doing is assuring their dependence on federal assistance," said Durenberger.

Something Really Practical

We always knew if we waited long enough that the federal government would use our tax dollars in a truly worthwhile manner. One such instance recently came to light in a "self-help" booklet published by the U.S. community services administration.

The booklet shows people how to wrap themselves in newspapers to avoid death in heatless homes. Several diagrams demonstrate the best techniques (it is apparently assumed that the average citizen will not be as experienced in creating newspaper garments as a government researcher).

Despite the helpfulness of such practical advice, however, not everyone in the community services administration is fully confident of its effectiveness. Another CSA publication recommends that communities stage a "spring picnic" after the winter crisis is over.

"At this commemoration persons who died would be remembered," the publication explains. (Doesn't that sound like a jolly event?) "Outside dignitaries (e.g. the Governor) could be invited. Be sure to get media coverage for this event."

Minnesotans are definitely concerned about keeping warm in the winter and having the energy supply to be competitive in business. There are serious problems to be faced and government assistance will probably be a necessity for many.

It is certainly comforting to know that the nation's best minds are hard at work developing vital information and programs such as wearing newspapers and holding picnics to remember people who freeze to death. Every now and then something really practical comes out of Washington.

They Missed The System

Sports writer Dave Pedersen of the North Hennepin Post notes that the biggest story of the U.S. Olympic hockey team was missed by the television network carrying Olympic coverage. The story behind the players' motivation and development, he says, is that most were from a state whose people and programs along the way spearheaded the effort and success of today.

"The possibility of achieving success only comes when opportunity is given," he writes. "That is why the results of this attitude existing at all levels of organized hockey in the state are showing up in many ways during recent years. Several Minnesotans are playing and doing well in the National Hockey league, several national collegiate championships have been won by Minnesota and now the state is well represented in the Olympics."

Pederson said that the network failed to take a peek at the system. It would have discovered that the U.S. hockey players did not just appear or that most happened to be from Minnesota. They would have discovered, he said, that Minnesota has the best and most complete hockey program in the nation, starting with parental dedication and patience.

And then the writer makes a point which may too often be lost in the zeal of universities and colleges to boast winning teams. "The state also has the first major university that had the guts to stick with all local kids," Pederson said, "avoiding the temptation of inviting down Canadians in order to build success while denying local kids the chance to excel."

Comparative Prices

A newsletter called "Energy Briefs" from the Otter Tail Power company contained some interesting comparisons on the cost of electricity now and some 30 years ago. Here's what the publication states:

Today's consumer receives nearly twenty times as much electricity as compared to 1927. And even though the 1927 dollar wasn't worth much some 30 years later (just 29 cents in 1977), it is noteworthy that an average kilowatt-hour of electricity cost 6.8 cents in 1927 versus only 3.78 cents in 1977.

If today's residential electricity customer had to pay 1927 electricity prices and earned 1927 wages, it would take more than two weeks' earnings just to pay the monthly electric bill for today's usage. On the other hand, if the average residential customer in 1927 had been charged today's prices on his bill and paid today's wages, he could have earned enough to pay the 1927 average monthly electric usage in less than 15 minutes.

Carrying the history of electricity a step further, on a per capita basis, residential electricity bills amounted to 1.3 per cent of disposable person income in 1967. By 1977 this had increased to 1.9 per cent. But per capita residential electricity usage had increased by 80 per cent during the 10 years from 1967 to 1977.

The "Boatscam"

Following editorial is from the Ely Echo:

When the Federal Motor Boating Act was passed, some two decades ago, only a few voices were raised opposing the license proposals for watercraft. As one small voice of skepticism, we asked: "Why license fishing boats: The golfer is not rushing down to get his golf cart licensed. The skier is in no rush to get his skis licensed. Tennis players are not getting up petitions to have their rackets licensed. Fishermen and hunters already pay a fee just to enjoy their sport. Why add on another fee for the same sport?

However, we were out-shouted by various boating organizations and also spokesmen for the boating industry who pointed out that the "money collected would go to create more boating facilities." The millions collected from boat owners would make available just no end of boating opportunity. Furthermore, boat licenses would put an end to boat thievery. With every boat numbered, nobody could steal a boat any more. Sure. You bet.

The states were given the option of putting in their own boating law or accepting the taxable income, the states opted for their own laws. In Minnesota it was called a motorboat safety act. Of course, it was only a matter of time until the politicians recognized that there were also canoes, towboats and sailboats around which could provide more revenue. That these were not motorboats presented no problems to the legislators in putting them in a motorboat category. At the time these watercraft were included we received a direct answer as to why from the then Assistant Commissioner of the DNR: "We want the revenue."

As these things always do in the political realm, the emphasis now is in raising the fees to get more revenue. Thus there is now a bill before the Minnesota Legislature to raise canoe and small boat fees from $5 to $7.50, boats 19-26 feet from $10 to $20, boats 26-40 feet from $10 to $30 and boats over 40 feet from $10 to $40. The legislators are cute. By putting the biggest increases on the yachts, it is made to look like the little guy is getting a deal. Bird seed. There are relatively few of those big boats on the water and the guys that own them use a $10 bill to light their cigars. The thrust is to get some more moola out of the little guys with those thousands of little boats and canoes.

And what is the money needed for? Salaries. What the federal and state boating bills created was a whole new flock of administrative jobs which are so dear to the hearts of the politicians. The raise in fees is now needed, so the legislators say, to pay more salaries. Some of this goes to pay county sheriff's deputies to run boats around in the water and arrest people who forgot to get their boat licenses renewed.

And as for the big boon to boating? How many new boating lakes were built with boat license money? How many more now canoe waters were made with boat license money? As for preventing boat or canoe theft, that is a howler. The number put on at the factory. And if the serial number is ripped off? Anyone can register the boat or canoe anyway. It is even possible to register the same boat or canoe under a half dozen different names. The state would never know it. . . nor even care about it as long as the fee comes in.

And the boat license fees will go up. . . and up. . . and up. . . for more money for more salaries to administer the boat license law. But then, you can't beat progress.

Borrowed Nonsense:

Today's worst pun: The damsel in distress, about to be consumed by the fire breathing dragon, noticed the knight sent to rescue her was paralyzed with fear. "Don't just stand there!" she shouted. "Slay something!"

The businessman was so fed up with government forms, regulations, taxes, paper work and restrictions that he applied to the court to change his name to Cornwallis. "I want the change," he explained to the judge, "so I can officially surrender to Washington."

Federal Crop Insurance Is Now Available

Dollars invested in planting and producing crops have always been called the "riskiest dollars in farming". But with production costs going up from one week to the next and interest rates at the highest level in history, the risk is greater than ever, according to Wilmer Dufresne, St. Paul regional director of USDA's federal crop insurance corporation.

"This isn't to say that the likelihood of losing a crop is any greater than in past years but the financial impact of a loss is certainly far greater", Dufresne says. He points out that most farmers will have more money invested in each acre this spring than they have ever had before and if they should lose this money and have to replace it with borrowed dollars they will pay interest rates that have gone up almost twice as fast as the rate of inflation.

"What's more", the insurance expert adds, "any additional debt that is used to replace a lost crop investment represents a claim against the farmer's future profits. Very few farmers today can afford to earmark next year's profits to repay last year's losses."

Dufresne recommends that Pennington county farmers consider an all-risk crop insurance policy that in most cases can be bought at a fraction of what it would cost just to pay one year's additional interest on a lost crop investment. He notes that while the cost of borrowing money has gone up dramatically, the cost of insuring money has remained about the same and in some cases has declined.

The deadline to apply for insurance coverage on Barley, flax, oats, sunflowers and wheat in Pennington county is April 15. Information about the protection available and what it would cost can be obtained without obligation by writing to Amos Larson, 105 S. Division, USDA Building, Warren, Minnesota 56762 or calling (218) 745-4631.

THE VOICE of BUSINESS

U.S. Chamber of Commerce

Congressman Herb Harris is not one who fears adding insult to injury. At a time when inflation and taxes have risen to their most punishing levels in postwar history, the Northern Virginia legislator has dreamed up the ultimate cure for an ailing economy — a bill to significantly increase the size of the federal bureaucracy.

At first glance, the bill, (HR-4717), seems quite innocent. In fact, it's loaded with lots of reassuring rhetoric like "cost-effectiveness" and "personnel ceilings." But these are mere buzz words; in truth, the legislation would present the federal government with an almost irresistable temptation not to contract out with private firms for goods and services it needs.

As a federal reporter for The Washington Star matter-of-factly explained: "Those agencies that increased in-house activities would be rewarded as far as their personnel ceilings are concerned, while those expanding their contracting out functions would be penalized." Not surprisingly, the nation's principal federal union, the American Federation of Government Employees, is a strong supporter of the Harris bill.

One of the longest standing traditions of this country has been for government to rely upon competitive private bids for the goods and services it needs. President Carter put the issue in a nutshell when he stated in 1976: "When there's a choice to be made between the private sector and the government sector, my option would be for the private sector to assume the responsibility."

The reason this policy has endured so long is quite simple — it works. Take a look at the space program. When most Americans think of our space effort, they think only of NASA, the National Aeronautics and Space Administration. Actually, by the mid-1960's, some 20,000 companies were all working together on a least cost bid basis to send our astronauts to the moon and bring them back.

Nowhere in the Harris bill is there any affirmation that the government will continue relying upon competitive enterprise to supply needed goods and services. Instead, the bill could literally devastate small business while placing the country squarely on the road to socialism. One top official of the Office of Management and Budget, W. Bowman Cutter, publicly testified that it would add a new bureaucratic machine, generate enormous paperwork and provide subtle but clear incentives to agencies not to contract out in order to increase their staff.

And why not? Unlike private industry, where career progress depends upon one's ability to minimize costs while accomplishing objectives, a government employee's promotion often depends upon the size of his budget and the number of people who report to him. There are built-in disincentives to reducing the size of the bureaucracy. But the Harris bill would transform this bad situation into a dreadful one. Once a federal agency head knew he could acquire additional personnel simply by converting a project to in-house performance, and that he would risk losing personnel by contracting out a new project, guess which option he would choose?

Ironically, Mr. Harris argues his bill would help taxpayers, claiming government grows because of excessive contracting out; and contending federal employees can do the same work more cheaply themselves. He put the cart before the horse. The reason there is more contracting out is because people in Congress, especially people like Mr. Harris, keep voting to spend more of the public's money.

To contend government usually can do any given job more efficiently than private industry is truly to believe in the Easter Bunny or the Tooth Fairy, but not in tangible realities like free competition. Cities all across the country are saving taxpayers millions by contracting out for such services as fire protection, garbage collection and even limited police work. A recent study by the Rand Corporation concluded the Defense Department alone could save $1 billion a year by using private firms to perform work now done by 250,000 civil service employees. Scores of competitions between government and industry document the cost-effectiveness of contracting out.

Mr. Harris' bill represents one of the biggest federal employee relief bills ever. How your Congressman eventually votes on this bill will tell you a lot about where his or her priorities really lie — with those who pay most of America's taxes — or those who spend them.

California is home to more ex-military personnel, 3.3 million, than any other state. New York trails with 2.5 million veterans, while Pennsylvania, Texas, Illinois and Ohio — in that order — have between 1.5 and 1.7 million former armed service members, the Veterans Administration reported.

For Return Of Unclaimed Cash

Annual pre-spring, statewide effort to return monies to rightful owners is about to begin once again in Minnesota. According to state treasurer Jim Lord, the state's unclaimed property program has identified more than $1.8 million in monies belonging to 7,436 Minnesotans. These names will, under present state law, be advertised statewide during the first two weeks of March.

The money represents abandoned or forgotten savings and checking accounts in the state's financial institutions. In addition, uncashed checks, dividends, travelers checks and other instruments from insurance companies and corporations are included in the funds to be returned.

"Our task, now," Lord stated, "is to use all of the facilities available to my office to attempt to locate these more than 7,000 Minnesota citizens and see that their property is returned to them or their rightful heirs."

To help accomplish this task, Lord said the statewide advertising will include a special toll-free "800" telephone number to facilitate the staff of the treasurer's unclaimed property program in their efforts to locate and return property, valuables and monies.

Since Lord fostered a new, more aggressive approach to the long dormant unclaimed property law in 1975, more than $4,430,000 in abandoned property has been returned to individual citizens of the state.

Lord credits success in the program to recent changes in the law which shortened the time span from 20 years to seven years for an account to be declared "abandoned."

"Of equal impertance," Lord added, "has been the heightened public awareness of the program and its procedures as publicized by the mass media throughout the state."

State law provides that all holders of unclaimed or abandoned property must file disclosure reports with the state treasurer's office each year. The largest of these filings takes place in November and provides the accumulation of names and property accounting that must, by statute, be advertised in March of each year.

This year's list, like past years, will only include names of those with property or funds in excess of $25 in value.

Eyes of Medicine

Images Of Health

When are snoops, busybodies, and know-it-alls among your best friends? When they are x-rays and other imaging techniques used by radiologists. Today, the radiologist—a physician with extensive training and special skills—can make "pictures" of the inside of your body with many types of x-ray equipment, including the remarkable CT scanner. Nuclear medicine and ultramodern ultrasound are other methods of examination used by the radiologist to make a diagnosis.

All physicians — internists, pediatricians, surgeons, etc. — rely on radiologists to determine if you have an internal problem and, if so, where it is and exactly what it is. If your physician needs the professional consultation and unique diagnostic capabilities of a radiologist you are referred to this physician for examination, which may be done in a hospital, private office, or a clinic.

Assisting the radiologist will be radiologic technologists, who must complete advanced education programs. Another professional in the radiology department is the medical physicist, who develops and maintains instruments used by radiologists and is a guardian of quality assurance. This team is trained in the use and control of radiation. They carefully conduct examinations and select techniques designed to produce the maximum diagnostic information with the least radiation exposure to the patient.

One of the most common x-ray procedures is the chest examination in which the patient's chest is pressed against a panel that holds the high-speed x-ray film in a cassette. A tiny amount of radiation passes through the patient's body to expose the film. Thus, a picture (technically known as a radiograph) is made.

The differences in x-ray shadows cast by air (in the lung), watery fluids (in the heart and circulatory system), fat (in the tissues) and calcium (in the bones) are highly significant to the skilled eye of the radiologist. This physician can interpret these shadows and know if the patient has a health problem.

Sometimes radiologists have to use catheters (thin tubes) and contrast material (dyes) to make pictures of portions of your body. One of these informative procedures is called angiography, a visualization of the blood vessels. Angiography is useful in diagnosing heart defects and many conditions that alter the appearance of blood vessels.

The radiologist can insert a catheter into the vessels of nearly every organ of the body, inject a contrast material that can be seen in the x-ray picture, and evaluate the structure of that particular organ. These special radiologic procedures are among the "snoops" radiologists have perfected to study the kidneys, liver, gall-bladder, lymphatic system, and the heart and brain.

Recent advances make it possible to use the catheterization techniques for treatment as well as for diagnosis. For example, a catheter can be used to unplug a blocked artery or to stop internal bleeding.

The use of radiation is carefully and regularly monitored in radiology departments. The medical staff wears film badges to keep a record of the dosage. Machines are inspected regularly to prevent the release of unnecessary radiation during an examination, and rigid radiation protection guidelines are followed.

Many safety measures are taken to limit the amount of radiation used in any examination. For example, high-speed films are used because they require minimal amounts of radiation to make an x-ray picture. Each x-ray tube has an automatic collimator that confines the x-ray beam to the area of the body that is to be studied.

YOU DID IT!
WE DID IT!
Farmers Coop Creamery Association
Goodridge, Minnesota
You, your people, working together have accomplished something unique. Your cooperative has earned a place in the Land O Lakes-Felco Feed Champs Club.
Along with over 400 other cooperatives throughout the Midwest, you're taking part in a program that benefits the farmer and your community.
Of those 400 cooperatives, yours is special. Yours is one of an elite few to come out champions. Winners! It shows real dedication to your farmer members and to your community.
We're proud of you. Proud of what you've accomplished, proud of what you're continuing to do to serve the feed and livestock industry in your area.
As a manager of a cooperative, it's my job to see to it that things run smoothly. That our farmer members get all the attention and service they want and need. But I know that any business is only as good as the people who work there. In that case, this cooperative is the best there is.
That's because I've got the best people working with me. They work together. Put in extra effort, see to it that things go right.
The result? This cooperative is a winner. It's a member of a very exclusive club. The Land O'Lakes "Feed Champs Club". It means we've seen the need for a strong feed and livestock industry in this community. It means we've done something about it. Worked with the farmers. Provided the best. The best feed, the best service, the best people.
I'm proud of this cooperative, proud to be a member of the "Feed Champs Club", but most of all, I'm proud of the people who work here, for you and with you. I hope you are too.

Tips For Safe Winter Motoring

Driving in winter can be a chilling experience if basic safety precautions are neglected.

For a safer cold weather motoring season, CNA insurance offers the following tips:

- Slow down when ice and snow make driving conditions hazardous. Reduce your speed five or 10 miles per hour under routine winter conditions and more when necessary.
- Keep on the lookout for ice. A small ice patch on an otherwise clear thoroughfare is a major winter hazard. Bridges or overpasses, intersections, railroad crossings and building or tree-shaded areas are particularly treacherous.
- Be easy on the wheel. Sudden, sharp turns can easily produce hazardous skids. Be especially cautious in shopping centers where even a short skid can result in a collision.
- Be easy on the brakes when driving in slush, ice or snow. When your wheels lock during braking, release the brake pedal for an instant, and then apply light pressure gently.
- Maintain a greater interval between cars than usual so that when braking, you have enough room to stop easily. Remember, stopping distance on ice or snow increases as much as 10 times.
- Curtail passing. Your car can lose traction at a critical moment and skid out of control. You also may not be able to change lanes quickly enough.
- Maintain good visibility by making sure that all windows are clear of snow and ice before moving the automobile. Whenever possible, clear the area around the windshield wipers' sweep as well as side and back windows. Don't be afraid to use your windshield washer (containing antifreeze) or stop to wipe the dirt off your headlights. Shorter daylight hours mean greater dependence upon headlights for visibility.
- Know the temperature. Conditions at 32 degrees fahrenheit are more dangerous than at 0 degrees F, because ice and packed snow are more slippery at the higher temperature.
- Park with a plan. Back into a stall or driveway so that you can head out when the time comes. Don't try to squeeze into too small a space when icy or snowy conditions prevail. It's also convenient in case your battery needs to be recharged.

Most important: prepare your car for winter driving. Adjust the brakes for equal pull on all wheels (snow tires increase traction in snow by 28 percent). Check windshield wiper blades for tension, defroster and rear window defogger for efficiency; be sure the battery has clean terminals and a full charge, and be sure your exhaust system does not leak. Carry window scraper and brush, booster cables and traction material to slip under rear tires if necessary.

It's The Season For Grapefruit

If you think of fresh Florida grapefruit only in terms of a low-calorie snack or a breakfast fruit, think again. Grapefruit is a most versatile fruit and its tart-fresh flavor can turn meats, sauces or desserts into gourmet specialties.

Fresh grapefruit juice can serve as the basic ingredient for many tempting desserts, Grapefruit Meringue Pie, for one — an elegant dessert with the light texture that's so welcome after a good meal.

Grapefruit Meringue Pie

6	tablespoons cornstarch
1 1/4	cups sugar
1/4	teaspoon salt
1/2	cup cold water
2	cups fresh Florida grapefruit juice (juice of 3 medium grapefruit)
3	egg yolks
1	teaspoon grated grapefruit rind
1	tablespoon butter or margarine
1	baked 8- or 9-inch pastry shell

Mix cornstarch, sugar and salt in large saucepan. Stir in water and grapefruit juice. Cook over medium heat, stirring constantly, until mixture comes to a boil. Cook 5 minutes, stirring constantly. Remove from heat. In small bowl, beat egg yolks until well mixed. Gradually stir in a small amount of hot grapefruit mixture. Then stir egg yolks into remaining hot mixture with grapefruit rind and butter. Cool for 10 minutes. Turn into pastry shell. Top with Meringue* and bake in 350°F. oven 12 to 15 minutes, until lightly browned.

YIELD: 6 to 8 servings.

*Meringue

3	egg whites
1/4	teaspoon cream of tartar
6	tablespoons sugar

Beat egg whites with cream of tartar until frothy. Gradually beat in sugar, 1 tablespoon at a time. Beat until stiff enough to hold sharp points. Spoon over grapefruit filling in pastry shell and spread so that it touches inner edge of crust all the way around.

Lifestyle Change May Alter Method Of Filing Taxes

Filing income tax the long form way always seems so tedious, even with a professional tax advisor to help, notes the Minnesota society of certified public accountants. There are all those records to keep, bills and receipts and cancelled checks to sort out. The short form, with only a few lines to fill out, is a tempting alternative, especially as we get closer to April 15.

The IRS has made the short form (1040A) an even greater temptation this year by increasing the zero bracket amount. This year if you're single you can claim a $2,300 deduction; $3,400 if you are married and filing with your spouse. Exemptions, too, have increased this year, from $750 to $1,000.

According to the Minnesota society of certified public accountants, the short tax form is very handy for those who have had too much tax withheld from their pay and must file a return to get a refund. It can also be used by those with incomes under $10,000 who owe no taxes but have an earned income credit coming to them.

The IRS will let you file the short form if your income is solely from salaries, wages and tips, with no more than $400 in dividends or interest. If your adjusted gross income is over $20,000 ($40,000 on a joint return), then you cannot use the short form.

Most American taxpayers don't bother to itemize their deductions and some alternate between the short and long forms, bunching deductible expenses, such as extensive dental work, in the years them itemize. However handy the short form appears, the question of which form to use is something you should reevaluate each year — long before April 15. Any change in your lifestyle, including one of more of the following, could warrant a reappraisal of the method of filing.

Purchase of a home — Interest and real estate taxes would almost certainly make itemizing worthwhile.

Other large interest payments — Don't overlook interest on time-payment plans, loans, charge accounts and credit cards as well as the interest on back taxes paid for prior years.

Unusual state and local tax payments — Again, include payments made in 1979 which apply to earlier years as well as generally higher current taxes, and perhaps prepayments of 1980 taxes you may have made. Large purchases during the year could have meant exceptionally high sales taxes;

Unreimbursed business expenses incurred — Costs of performing your job other than commutation expenses may be deductible: uniforms, special work clothes, union dues, subscriptions to technical publications, tools and equipment, business entertainment, an educational course to help you keep up with your present job.

Expenditures for managing investments — Subscriptions to investment publications and services, costs of traveling to and from brokers' offices, tax advice and assistance, safety deposit box is used to store investment documents all are deductible.

Capital losses on sale of assets — This applies only to assets purchased for investment, not to such things as home, car or boat.

Large medical bills — Only amounts in excess of three per cent of adjusted gross income are deductible, but one serious dental project could do it. Don't forget health insurance, drugs and prosthetic devices such as eyeglasses, dentures, or braces;

Divorce. Alimony is deductible for the payer, taxable income to the recipient. (Child support is neither although it will help decide which parent can claim the dependent exemption.)

Blood is broken down into red blood cells, platelets, plasma and an antihemophilic factor. Red cells are used in surgery. Victims of hemophilia (a bleeding disease) need the antihemophilic factor, and leukemia patients need platelets to help prevent bleeding during treatment. Plasma is used to treat burn patients and accident victims with acute blood losses.

ENERGY SAVING TIPS
FROM THE FRIEND OF THE FAMILY

It's the Tiny Air Pockets That Save Energy

With the many products on the market, insulating can be a confusing task. Understanding what insulation is and how it works can help make the task easier.

All insulating materials have one thing in common: tiny air pockets which act as "insulators" to resist the flow of heat out of your home. Each type of insulation has a different level of resistance, known as "R-value." The higher the R-value, the better.

Some types of insulation are better for different insulating jobs. Loose fill (fiberglass, mineral wool, cellulose or vermiculite) is most often used in unfinished attic floors, under finished attic floors and in walls. It can be blown or poured in.

Batts and blankets (fiberglass or mineral wool) come in certain widths and are best when insulating attic floors with regularly spaced joists or rafters.

Ridge board (like sheets of styrofoam and beadboard) can be used to insulate cathedral type ceiling, mobile homes and basement walls.

Foam insulation is most often blown in walls.

Many materials can be installed by the do-it-yourselfer. Others require professional installation. Your local building supplier can give you futher advice on home insulation to meet your needs.

Energy...here to serve you today and tomorrow. Use it wisely.

These energy saving tips are brought to you as a public service by the Natural Gas Council of Minnesota.

Johnstone Is Recipient Of Service Award

First annual service to rural youth award was presented by KIDS, Inc. to Bruce Johnstone of Excelsior at a luncheon at the Minnesota club in St. Paul for his outstanding leadership and service to rural youth.

He has served as a board representative to the KIDS-sponsored Camp Buckskin program which is designed to help rural children develop reading skills as well as their self-confidence and sense of responsibility to themselves and their communities. Since 1972, 17 children from Pennington county have attended the Camp Buckskin summer learning peogram near Ely.

On hand to congratulate Johnstone were Senator Rudy Boschwitz, the featured speaker; Mrs. Albert Quie; and Cy Carpenter, president of the Minnesota Farmers Union and chairman of the board of KIDS, Inc. Carpenter is a former Thief River Falls resident.

Glenmore Adds Supervisor And Counselor

William "Bud" Elleson has been appointed by Glenmore's executive director, Rev. Robert C. Wittenstrom, to be the new supervisor of treatment services in Glenmore's treatment center at Crookston. Elleson has been in the chemical dependency treatment field for over 10 years. Previous to his entering this field, Elleson served in the U.S. air force and in the merchant marines.

Mrs. Orland "Molly" Johnson was hired by the Glenmore foundation to be a chemical dependency counselor in the treatment center in Crookston. She has worked in the field of chemical dependency since 1972. Most recently, she served as family therapist in the family freedom program operated by the Bi-County community action program in Bemidji.

Elleson has completed special training in chemical dependency at the University of Minnesota, the University of North Dakota, and at Moorhead state university. He has also been involved in special training programs at the Fergus Falls state hospital and at the Hazelden treatment center in Center City.

Mrs. Johnson is a graudate of the Fergus Falls state hospital training program for chemical dependency counselors. She has also attended numerous workshops at the University of North Dakota, the University of Minnesota and other workshops put on by other C.D. centers. She has had special training in diagnostic procedures involving chemical dependency problems unique to women and has had special training in the area of incest and working with battered women.

County Board OKs '79 Revenue Budget

Revenue budget of $1,320,000 was approved by the Pennington county board of commissioners meeting Tuesday at the courthouse in Thief River Falls. The meeting was declared open as a hearing on revenue sharing and budget but no appearance was made by anyone to testify.

The revenue budget is up sharply from a year ago when the million dollar mark was passed for the first time at $1,010,400. Increases are noted in all five areas for which local revenue is raised through mill levy. Actual levies themselves are unknown at this time since county valuation figures have not been received.

General revenue fund is up from $430,000 a year ago to $476,106; road and bridge budget increased from $321,000 to $380,000, reflecting higher fuel costs as well as other increased costs; welfare levy locally climbed from $214,000 a year ago to $350,000; Oakland Park nursing home bonds will require $38,728 this year in comparison with no levy a year ago; and law enforcement center bond payment will total $74,423 this year, up from $45,400 a year ago as the county begins to pay principal as well as interest.

Lesser amounts are to be levied for the Northwest Regional commission, Red Lake river watershed and the Middle river-Snake river watershed.

The board reallocated interest on revenue sharing funds to a fund for placement of an elevator in the courthouse to comply with barrier free regulations for the handicapped.

Announcement was made that Ronald Tollefson, road patrol operator, will retire at the end of the year after 20 years of service to the county.

Discussion was held on the future of Oakland Hall dormitory in the former Oakland Park nusing home building. Dr. Alex Easton and Kenneth Murphy of the Oakland hall board appeared to discuss the problems in heating the building. Because of the heat loss due to lack of insulation and poorly fitting doors and windows, they said it may be necessary to close the facility at the end of this semester. The board took the information under advisement. The dormitory offers housing for approximately 50 students in post high school educational

Alderman Womack

Elect Womack To City Council

J.J. Womack carried each of Thief River Falls' five wards Tuesday to be elected a new member of the city council in the only contest on the city election ballot. Womack's term as alderman-at-large will expire December 31, 1983. A total of 1,055 voters cast ballots in the election.

Reelected without opposition were Mayor Bob Carlson with 881 votes, first ward alderman Milan Borsheim with 159, third ward alderman Ambrose Wysoski with 111 and fifth ward alderman Clayton Restad with 294. While Restad was reelected to the council, he will now be representing the fifth ward rather than serving as alderman-at-large, with position he held previously. Leaving the council at the end of this year will be current fifth ward alderman Milton Reierson.

In the two-way race between Womack and Allan Nichols, Womack had comofrtable margins in all five wards to win 632 to 371. Womack carried 13 of the 15 precincts in the city, losing precinct 5B by a vote of 55-52 and being tied at 32 votes each in precinct 2B.

Vote totals for Womack were as follows with precincts A, B and C listed respectively in each ward: Ward I, 34-33-51—118; Ward II, 52-32-50—134; Ward III, 10-31-36—77; Ward IV, 27-35-56—118; and Ward V, 82-52-50—185.

ACE Club At Northland To Host Visitors

In observance of American Education Week the Northland community college ACE (adults continuing education) club is inviting older than average students to an open house at Northland college on Thursday, November 15 from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. and 7 to 9 p.m.

The older than average students that the ACE club is interested in attracting to the campus are those who are returning to college, persons interested in changing careers, those interested in personal enrichment and those who have always had a desire to return to college and are now in a position to do so.

Campus visitors will have the opportunity to sit in on regular classes conducted by Northland instructors. This experience will provide an opportunity to gain first hand knowledge of how college classes are conducted as well as alleviate apprehension about enrolling in college classes.

Among the classes that are open to visitors are English, business, art, theatre, biology, sociology, computers, political science and psychology.

The open house is an opportunity for visitors to tour the facilities at Northland, meet faculty and administration and discuss continuing education with ACE members now enrolled at Northland.

ACE club members will serve as hosts and guides for the campus visitors.

Energy Agency Reps Discuss Area Planning

Mark Schoenbaum and Al Lessik, community energy coordinators for the Minnesota energy agency, met with local officials Monday regarding the agency's programs for the coming winter.

Meeting with the energy agency personnel were Sheriff Charles Richards, city planner Jack Quinlivan, county extension director Terry Courneya, superintendent of utilities John T. Anderson, Mayor James Gaven of St. Hilaire, Julie Chase of the Northwest regional library and a representative of Mayor David Brown of Goodridge.

Pamphlets were distributed for local use on emergency housing for people whose homes run out of heating fuel, where to call if fuel payment assistance is needed, a place to contact for information on insulation or weatherizing homes and where to find out how to do the work necessary.

The men said they expect fuel oil supplies to be tight throughout the winter with the price about doubled from a year ago and expectations that prices will be $1.05 per gallon for No. 2 fuel oil by the end of the winter.

They encouraged conservation of fuel in all manner possible and noted that information can be received by calling the county extension office at 681-2116 locally or toll free to the state energy agency at 1-800-652-9747.

Representatives of organizations which want to be included in the fund distribution may obtain application forms by writing to the Thief River Falls United Way at P.O. Box 276, Thief River Falls.

Mrs. Drees also reminded that there is no house-to-house solicitation of funds being planned this year. Persons who wish to contribute to the drive but will not be contacted in the business or professional area canvass may send their donations to the box number listed above.

Arctic Reports Sales Increase

Arctic Enterprises, Inc., of Thief River Falls has reported operating results for the second quarter of fiscal 1980, noting that net sales for the three-month period ending September 30 were $68,642,000, up 14 per cent from $60,113,000 for the same three-month period last year. Consolidated net income for the quarter was $1,587,000 or 51 cents a share, up 21 per cent from $1,316,000 or 42 cents a share.

Net sales for the six-month period ending September 30 were $105,479,000, up 26 per cent from $83,914,000 for the first half of last year. Consolidated net income for the six months was $1,122,000 or 36 cents a share, up 108 per cent from the $539,000 or 17 cents a share reported for the same period last year.

John C. Penn, president, said, "The increase in both volume and profits during the quarter is primarily attributable to good wholesale sales of both Arctic Cat and Scorpion snowmobiles. October wholesale sales continue strong and our dealers remain optimistic about this season."

Penn indicated that operating results for the remainder of the fiscal year will depend on snowmobile retail sales from now through January. Although both industry and company retail sales were down through the end of September, preliminary surveys indicate that Arctic's retail sales in October were substantially ahead of last season. Continuation of this favorable trend will depend upon rural economic conditions, gasoline availability and snowfall conditions, he said.

"Sales of marine products increased eight per cent over the same period in the previous year in spite of soft market conditions in the industry," Penn said.

School Closed November 9

There will be no school Friday, November 9, due to parent-teacher conferences in the elementary and middle school. High school will be having curriculum study for Title IX as well as parent-teacher conferences.

Postpone Meets On Swine And Feeder Pigs

Plans for the feeder pig producers meeting scheduled for 8 p.m. on November 13 and the swine producers barn meeting scheduled for November 21 at 1:30 p.m. have been postponed.

In trying to avoid duplication of programs, the Pennington county extension office will be working in cooperation with the Northern Minnesota feeder pig producers association and will reschedule these meetings with sessions of the feeder pig association.

By doing so the county extension office hopes to make its meetings available to a larger group of people at more convenient times. Notice of the new meeting dates will be released in the near future, according to Howard Person, associate county extension agent.

Meet On Aging Is Postponed

Pennington county committee on aging meeting set for November 12 has been postponed to November 19 due to the veteran's day holiday.

Invite School Visitation During Education Week

NEWSPAPER EDITORS are prone to complain about long hours, too many deadlines, late copy, lack of appreciation and a host of other real or imagined difficulties. The profession is not without its compensations, however, as evidenced by Times editor Marvin Lundin in the photo above with the Texas Cowgirls (the editor is the one with the necktie) during their visit to Thief River Falls this week. The former Dallas Cowboys cheerleaders are adding to the football theme of the Hydra-Mac dealer convention and will also entertain at a new car showing by local auto dealers at the sports arena on Thursday. For the editor's interview and photos of the Cowgirls, read Monday's Times next week.

All public schools in the Thief River Falls school district will have open house visitation during American education week which is being observed nationally November 12-16. Theme of the week is "Teach All the Children" and it has been proclaimed by government officials as well as officers of sponsoring organizations.

At Lincoln high school there will be open visitation encouraged during regular school hours throughout the week. Tours of the school, conducted by members of the student senate, can be arranged by contacting the principal's office. For conferences with faculty members, call the teacher or make arrangements through the guidance office by calling 681-2700, extension 247.

Franklin middle school will have open visitation from 1 to 3 p.m. during the entire week. A special education meeting is planned for Thursday, November 15, from 7:30 to 9 p.m. and all parents of students in the special education program of the school who would like information on the program are encouraged to attend.

Northwest vocational center, which includes Thief River Falls students as well as those from several area schools studying vocational subjects, will be open to the public all week. Visitors are asked to please stop at the director's office in the center for information, safety glasses and student guides.

At Knox elementary school there will be open visitation from 8:30 to 11:30 a.m. and 12:30 to 3 p.m. Monday through Friday and coffee will be served in the school cafeteria every day.

Mark Twain school will have open visitation from 9 to 11 a.m. and 1 to 3 p.m. Monday through Thursday, November 15, with coffee to be served in the school throughout the day.

Northrop elementary school will observe open house every day of American education week from 8:20 a.m. to 3 p.m. and parents of elementary students are encouraged to visit any of the classes.

Washington elementary school has an open house scheduled for Tuesday evening, November 13, from 7:30 to 9 p.m., at which time coffee and rolls will be served for all visitors.

Area vocational-technical institute is open to the public all week from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. with visitation encouraged.

"Your schools are open to the public at any time during school hours," stated Dr. William Corliss, superintendent of schools, "but American education week allows us an opportunity to place a special emphasis on visitation. Our administration and faculty appreciate interest shown by parents and others in our school programs and all join in encouraging them to visit classes and observe what is taking place for children in our community."

In proclaiming American education week in Minnesota, Gov. Al Quie noted that the schools represent the best efforts of the community to improve the quality of life and that there is a "widespread need for better communication and more cooperative relationships between professional educators and the community".

Gov. Quie said he urged all citizens to reaffirm their commitment to improving education on all levels and to translate that commitment into action by visiting local schools.

American Legion commanders throughout the area have joined in proclaiming the week as one of the sponsors of the annual observance. The American Legion proclamation notes that schools represent a amjor investment by any community and that teachers are an important part of the community's leadership. It further states that an involved citizenry provides a most important facet in community schools.

Joining the American Legion in sponsorship of the observance in Minnesota are the Minnesota Education association, Minnesota congress of parents, teachers and students and the state department of education.

Anna Sandberg Is Visited By Swedes

As an extension of a two-week concert tour with the Vasterviks Folkdanslag of Sweden, two young ladies from that Scandinavian country are spending a month traveling in the United States and visiting relatives. Three of those relatives live in northwestern Minnesota and two in the Thief River Falls area.

Anna Karin Johansson of Stora Bjorka, Sweden, 24, was a dancer with the folk dance group which presented 15 concerts in Kansas and Colorado. Her mother is a cousin of Mrs. Anna Sandberg of Thief River Falls, Erling Anderson of Plummer and Carl Anderson of Roseau, as well as Mrs. Thule Norman who lives in Washington state.

Anna Karin also has four other cousins of her mother who live in the United States and has or will be visiting some of them. Her traveling companion is Anna Karin Olsson, 25, a native of Ornskoldsvik who now lives in Uppsala while attending graduate classes at the university there. She was an interpreter and did some singing with the Folkdanslag.

It was the first trip to the United States for Mrs. Johansson whose family operates a farm in the northeast of Smaland province, raising wheat and sheep. The farm has about 25 hectares (about 65 acres) of open land plus some forested land. Anna Karin says they raise all the feed for their sheep, provide pasture in the summer and are still able to raise wheat for sale on the farm. Her father keeps about 100 ewes and sells about 150 market lambs each year.

Both Miss Johansson and Miss Olsson are home economics teachers who specialize in textiles. Miss Johansson is currently teaching classes in sewing, weaving and knitting to classes of students 18 years of age and older. Some of these are students of the textile industry while others are taking classes for their own enjoyment, for home use or because of an interest in continuing culture and tradition of the country.

Miss Olson had been teaching younger students in Sweden, where home economics instruction in textiles is compulsory for both boys and girls from third through ninth grade. Since they knew they would be making the trip a year in advance, they were able to arrange for teaching, study and work schedules to allow the time for travel.

In addition to her university

Both visitors speak English well, having studied it for the required eight years in school.

Kathy Sollom Weds Daryl Myers At Zion

Miss Kathy Sollom, daughter of Lt. Col. Almond H. Sollom, USMC (Ret.) and Mrs. Sollom of Thief River Falls, became the bride of Daryl Myers, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Myers, at a recent ceremony at Zion Lutheran church in this city.

Rev. James Mattson officiated at the double ring ceremony attended by approximately 275 relatives and friends. Kristy Gerardy, a friend of the bride, was the organist. She played the traditional wedding march for the processional and "Music Box Dancer" for the recessional. During the ceremony, Steve Sorvig, a firend of the couple, sang "Evergreen," "If" and "Wedding Song."

Assorted greens decorated the candelabra that formed the chancel setting. Yellow ribbon bows marked the pews.

The bride was escorted to the altar and given in marriage by her father. She was attired in a sleeveless gown of white eyelet sewn by her mother. The fitted bodice was styled with a wide inset midriff and a scoop neckline accented with a natural falling ruffle. Her slightly flared, gathered skirt was complemented by a wide ruffle that extended into a train. She wore a pearl necklace, borrowed from her mother, and a gold bracelet, belonging to her grandmother. In her hair was a cluster of three yellow sweetheart roses surrounded by babies' breath. She carried a bouquet of yellow roses, babies' breath and daisies, accented with spider plants and mixed greenery.

The bride's personal attendant was Mary Johnson, Thief River Falls, who also distributed the flowers.

Maid of honor was Carrie Sollom, twin sister of the bride. Other attendants were Tobey Myers, sister of the bride; Toni Peterson, Jenny Bulger, all of Thief River Falls, and Kathy Myrold and Deb Wassink of Moorhead, friends of the couple. They wore gowns of yellow eyelet, styled like the bride's, and carried bouquets of white daisies, babies' breath, spider plants and greenery. In their hair, they wore a cluster of babies breath. Their necklaces were gifts from the bride.

Wearing a similar gown and necklace, a gift from the couple, was the flower girl, Kimberly Myers of Anchorage, Alaska, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Myers.

Harold Myers, Anchorage, a brother of the groom, was best man. Gromsmen were Jerry and Eldon Myers, brothers of the groom; Don Sollom, Minneapolis, a brother of the bride, Barry Newton and Sheldon Peterson, Thief River Falls, friends of the couple. The guests were seated by Tim Prestebak, Goodridge, cousin of the bride; Joel Hagen, Fargo, N.D., cousin of the groom, and Brad Steiger, a friend of the couple. All wore tan western flair tuxedos styled with front and back yokes edged in satin, ivory ruffled shirts and yellow boutonnieres.

The rings were carried by Lee Nieland, son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Nieland of Thief River Falls. Like the men of the wedding party, he wore a tan western flair tuxedo. His ID bracelet was a gift from the couple. The pillow on which the rings were carried belonged to the bride's grandmother.

The mother of the bride was attired in a floral print accordian pleated skirt with a dusty rose blouse. Her corsage was a white orchid. A similar corsage was worn by the groom's mother who wore a pink floral gown with a ruffled neckline.

Special guests were Mr. and Mrs. Ole Prestebak, grandparents of the bride, and Mr. an Mrs. Henry Williams, grandparents of the groom. All are Thief River Falls residents.

A reception at the Country Club followed the ceremony. Hosts and hostesses were Mr. and Mrs. Robert Sollom, brother and sister-in-law of the bride, and Mr. and Mrs. Craig Pladson, brother-in-law and sister of the groom.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Carriere, friends of the couple, distributed the wedding programs as Candy Pladson, niece of the groom, registered the guests. Paula Newton arranged the gifts and Craig Pladson, Jr., served as gift bearer. Rice distributers were Hugh Sollom, nephew of the bride, Dena Prestebak, cousin of the bride, and Chad Carriere, friend of the couple. The punch was served by Penny Storbakken and Dan Pape of East Grand Forks, friends of the couple.

Served at the reception was Kransekake, the traditional Norwegian wedding cake, surrounded at the base by a wreath of Daisies. Arlene Prestebak, aunt of the bride, and Grace Jorde, godmother of the groom, served the cake while Vi Gordon, and Dorey Hagen, aunts of the bride and groom, poured the coffee.

Waitresses were Pat Johnston, Sherry Hanson, Melodee Rupprecht, Sue Spengler, and Joni and Kelly Wennberg.

Later that evening, a wedding dance was held at the Country club.

Following a wedding trip to Madden's lodge near Brainerd, the couple is now at home in rural Thief River Falls. Photo, R.L. Nieland Studio.

Orville Peters Honored On Their 40th Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Orville Peters of this city were honored on their 40th wedding anniversary on Sunday afternoon, October 14, at a reception at the Evangelical Covenant church.

The event was hosted by the couple's children and their families: Mr. and Mrs. Maynard (Shirley) Peters, Orvie, Malinda, Wanda and Keith of St. Hilaire; and Mr. and Mrs. Duane (Sharon) Chader, Ann and Ruth of Madison Lake.

Upon the couple's arrival, they were presented with a corresponding boutonniere and corsage of red roses and white carnations.

A brief program was given with Mrs. Peters' brother, Rodger Sackett as master of ceremonies. Rev. Don Peres, gave the devotional meditation. Music included piano solos by Ann Chader and Mrs. Duane Chader, a duet, "Children of the Heavenly Father," by Mr. and Mrs. Charles Erickson, and the solo, "The Old Rugged Cross," by Mrs. Nels Holmberg. Both songs are the Peters' favorite hymns. Included in the program were two poems written by Mrs. Peters' mother, Mrs. Myrtle Sackett, and read by Rodger Sackett and Orvie Peters, the oldest grandchild. Unable to attend was Hans Drotts of Batavia, Ill., one of the original attendants. Centering the head table was a bouquet of red roses, Mrs. Peters' gift from her husband. A similar bouquet graced the guest book table.

The serving table was centered with a pillared, three-tiered anniversary cake decorated with red roses and white wedding bells. The cake was cut and served by Mrs. Hugo Anderson, Peters' sister, and Mrs. Gerhard Kast, a friend of the couple. Pouring coffee were Mrs. Flourence Drotts, Mrs. Peters' aunt, and Mrs. Harlan Hallstrom, a niece.

Mrs. Rodger Sackett served the punch and Malinda and Wanda Peters presided at the guest book table and distributed the thank-you notes.

Adding interest at the reception was a picture gallery of the Peters' family and close relatives.

Our-of-town relatives and friends attending were from Madison Lake, Stephen, Viking, Newfolden, St. Hilaire, Warren, Goodridge, Red Lake Falls and Plummer.

For the occasion, Mrs. Peters chose a ruby red dress with matching lace insets in the long, fitted sleeves.

The evening prior to the reception, Mr. and Mrs. Peters hosted a dinner party at the Best Western. Their guests were their son and daughter and their families, together with Mrs. Myrtle Sackett and Mrs. Florence Drotts.

Letters to the Editor

To The Editor:

Only seldom do I write "letters to the Editor", but I would like to comment on Dr. Nelson's letter in the November 5 issue.

He speaks of the "city fathers of Brainerd subverting the laws of our state". That has a nasty sound, but is it not true that they used legal means which they had every right to use? They were working within the law, and there was no question of "anarchy" here.

Secondly, has any record been made of a marked increase in dental decay in the Brainerd area these past ten years, in comparison to other localities using fluoride? Has there been such a decrease in these last, that dentists have little work? It would be interesting to know in both cases. Of course I know many factors influence dental decay, and I suspect fluoride is perhaps only a minor factor in prevention.

Last, we are having so much lately of governments "knowing what is best for us" and forcing the solution on often unwilling people. Brainerd is not the only community not wanted water fluoridation, but was one having the courage to fight — using legal means. That still is allowed under our system of government — and let us hope it always will be. Thank you for the chance to express this.

Sincerely,
C.M. Isaacson

He played the inaugural organ concert in Cincinnati's music hall.

During the first half of the 1979-80 concert season, Hammel will play over 50 concerts and take part in 35 workshops in 19 states from California to New York.

Monday evening's concert at St. John church will include several selections by J.S. Bach and individual numbers by Franz Joseph Haydn, Henry Mulet, Seth Bingham, Karg-Elert and Franz Liszt.

Wheel Chair Securement Rule Begins

Rules governing wheelchair securement devices in motor vehicles will take effect on November 5, according to Minnesota state patrol chief Roger Ledding.

"At that time it will be unlawful to transport a person in a wheelchair unless the wheelchair is secured to the vehicle and the occupant of the wheelchair is restrained by at least one strap of belt encircling the person and the backrest of the wheelchair," said Ledding. "This law applies to all vehicles used to transport persons in wheelchairs, except regularly inspected school buses which are subject to special rules."

According to ledding all securement devices must pass an inspection conducted by the State Patrol. An inspection certificate will be affixed to the lower left corner of the vehicle's windshield upon passing inspection. Securement devices must be inspected annually.

"Since the switch over to approved securement devices cannot be done immediately, presently installed securement devices may be used through December 31, 1980, if the device is in good operating condition and will prevent an occupied wheelchair from moving about in the vehicle," said Ledding. However, he warned that after December 31, 1980, each wheelchair securement device in any vehicle must be of an approved type. Further information about the approved securement devices and their availability will be

During the next few weeks the State Patrol will not issue tickets for failure to have an inspection certificate provided the wheelchair is secured. Chief Ledding said this short grace period is necessary to allow time for owners of affected vehicles to comply with the inspection requirements.

Arrangements for inspections can be made with the state patrol district office at Thief River Falls, phone 681-3741.

China To Be Major Market For US Wheat

Mainland China may supply Minnesota wheat producers with a vast new market, according to Minnesota wheat growers vice-president Fred Kreps and western wheat associates executive vice president Gene Vickers. Both Kreps and Vickers will be speaking at the Minnesota association of wheat growers annual convention, November 28, 29 and 30, at the American Inn in East Grand Forks.

"Because of past political situations, the Peoples Republic of China is virtually an untapped market," said Kreps, who recently returned from a trip to Peking.

"Education will play a large part in getting our foot in China's door," noted Vickers. "Once they've learned to accept and use wheat and wheat flour products, however, there's no telling just how far we can go with wheat market expansion in China," Vickers asserted.

Minnesota wheat officials are already exploring the possibility of placing a model bakery in mainland China, to teach the Chinese how to effectively use and make wheat products. Baking seminars would be another step toward educating the Chinese in the use of wheat products.

Kreps and Vickers are just two of several outstanding speakers on the wheat growners convention agenda, according to growers president Jorgen Knutson. "Word is getting around fast that we have an excellent convention planned," said Knutson, hwo added, "Rooms are already being booked up, so anyone who plans to stay overnight should get their reservations made as soon as possible."

Convention opens 3 p.m. November 28 with a meeting of the resolutions committee. Kreps, Vickers and other wheat executives from all over the world are scheduled to speak Thursday. Former Oklahoma commissioner of agriculture and now deputy undersecretary for USDA commodity programs, Billy Ray Gowdy, is scheduled to speak at the Thursday night banquet. Gowdy recently notified wheat grower officials that he was pleased to accept their invitation, and that he would definitely be attending.

County Board Okays Revenue Budget Tues.

training in Thief River Falls.

A group appeared before the board to discuss problems in relation to County Ditch 21 and the assessment of benefits to property owners. A court case in 1949 had caused some land to be removed from benefitting area of the ditch. Legislation in 1977 permits a review of ditch benefits. The group was advised to petition the board if they desired to initiate action for a review of benefits.

Doug Dehnert of St. Hilaire appeared to re-state his position in opposition to reconstruction of a bridge in St. Hilaire and asked the board to reconsider its decision to proceed with building the bridge. The board discussed the request at length but determined to make no change in its previous position.

Don Grabanski was appointed from the board of commissioners to serve on a committee being organized by the chamber of commerce. The committee would seek a use for the Lincoln high school building and its auditorium if the school district locates new high school facilities elsewhere.

Marv Enerson and Rev. James Bernauer appeared in behalf of the county historical society, stating that maintenance of the historical village now costs approximately $7,000 per year and requested that amount from the county. After review of revenue sharing funds, the county commissioners redistributed funds to provide for increasing the historical society allocation from $3,500 to $6,000 for the coming year.

Representatives of the state department of public welfare appeared to discuss use of grant funds for chemical dependency in the county. They were informed that the county social services board is in the process of hiring an alcohol counselor for Pennington county.

Plat of property by Don Magner south of Thief River Falls and west of the Red Lake river was approved, as was the preliminary plat by Ray Oen for land east of the river.

AN EXAMPLE of textile work done by Anna Karin Johansson of Stora Bjorka, Sweden, is this miniature mitten. Anna Karin used wool from sheep on her family's farm to form the felt-like material by hand, then did the embroidery and assembly with her own design. She teaches textiles to students 18 years of age and older.

Anna Sandberg Hosts Swedish Visitors Here

studies, Miss Olsson works about 100 hours a month in a tea shop which sells 49 different varieties of tea. Anna Karin says she has tried them all and prefers either Chinese tea or some of the flavored kinds. Her father is a landscape artist in acrylics and oils and has traveled on exhibitions, allowing Anna Karin as his only child to visit 21 different countries. Her mother is a dentist.

Both girls speak English well, having learned the language in the eight years of compulsory English education in second throuth ninth grade. Miss Olsson has an advantage in that her mother was reared in the United States and that she has visited here once before several years ago.

The young ladies admitted that the socialized system of Sweden requires high taxation (average taxes are 35 and 40 per cent of income), but also insist that "we get a lot for our taxes". Medical and dental as well as hospital care is available to all at practically no cost and the education system is free in the first nine grades and heavily subsidized in the upper levels.

Both Anna Karins said that they had expected the United States to be more different than their home country in the way people dress and the foods we eat. They have found the countries to be quite similar but Miss Olsson says she noticed more small cars on this trip to the U.S. than she did a few years ago.

Gasoline in Sweden is now $2 to $3 per gallon and seems to be available on a ready basis although conservation is stressed there as well. Miss Olsson has her own car, and older model BMW, which she said gets about 12 kilometers per liter (a mile is 1.609 kilometers and there are 3.785 liters in a U.S. gallon).

From here the girls go to Minneapolis, then on to Jamestown, N.Y., before leaving for Sweden November 17. While in the United States they have been traveling on a Greyhound bus 30-day pass which provides them with economical transportation that allows them to see more of the country than flying would. They came from Washington state to Fargo on one bus which had several changes of drivers enroute. In the last two weeks they said they have spent 84 hours on the bus.

As they were showing pictures from Sweden to Mrs. Sandberg at her apartment at 417 Third St. W., Mrs. Sandberg commented on how much she had enjoyed the visit. "I wish they could stay longer," she said.

Health Care Proposal Is Introduced

Senator Dave Durenberger has introduced in the Senate an updated version of his competition-based health care bill. Durenberger's health incentives reform act (HIRA) was introduced as the Senate committee on finance began hearings on catastrophic health insurance plans.

In his statement on the floor of the Senate while introducing HIRA, Durenberger said his proposal has received support from many quarters. The bill "has been carefully reviewed and examined by the business community, health providers, insurers, labor and consumers. The comments from these diverse groups have been numerous and helpful. Their best ideas have been incorporated in the version I am introducing today," said the senator.

Durenberger said his bill will control health care costs and improve coverage by encouraging competition among the providers of health care. HIRA focuses on employer-based group health insurance plans and gives employers and employees incentives to be conscious of health care costs.

Currently, most employers select one insurance plan with the hope that the one plan will adequately cover a large number of employees. Differences in the individual needs of employees are rarely taken into consideration.

According to Durenberger's bill, employers of 100 or more employees would be encouraged through tax incentives to offer at least three plans, each from a different insurance carrier, to their workers. The employees would have the option of selection the plan that best met their needs. Persons selecting a less costly plan would receive the price difference in taxable cash or other benefits.

Since insurance carriers would no longer have a monopoly within a company, they would have to compete to provide the most attractive offering. These competing plans, each associated with a limited number of health care providers — doctors, hospitals and others — would be forced to keep costs down.

State Second In Case Rate Of Measles

Despite the fact that reported measles cases in the U.S. are at an all-time low, Minnesota has the second highest reported measles case rate in the nation.

In Minnesota this year, the incidence rate for reported cases of measles is 30.1 per 100,000 population, compared with the U.S. rate of 5.5 per 100,000.

Forty-six of the 87 counties have reported one or more cases. Highest incidence is in Crow Wing county, which has reported 210 cases (a rate of 523 per 100,000 population). Majority of these cases occurred in the Brainerd schools last spring, with four more reported during the summer.

Education commissioner Howard B Casmey and health commissioner George R. Pettersen point out that the department of health, education and welfare (HEW) set as a national goal the eradication of indigenous (locally transmitted) measles in the U.S. by October of 1982 a goal that "appears to be realistic", according to Dr. A.G. Dean, the state epidemiologist.

Dean cites four apparent reasons for the Minnesota epidemic: (1) Forty-five per Minnesota either had not received measles vaccine or at best were uncertain about their immunization histories;

(2) Fifteen per cent of the cases occurred in persons immunized before 1968, when now-obsolete recommendations were in effect concerning [illegible] children should be immunized, the use of immune globulin, the use of killed virus vaccines;

(3) Thirteen per cent were immunized when they were not yet one year old and never were reimmunized, despite repeated emphasis during the last several years on the importance of reimmunization;

(4) Twenty-seven per cent of the cases were "well immunized"

Mondale Is Speaker For Farmers Union

Vice President Walter Mondale will be featured speaker at the Minnesota Farmers union 38th annual convention to be held November 18-20 in Bloomington.

In addition to hearing Mondale's address Monday evening, November 19, the Farmers union convention delegates will gather to form the policy their organization will pursue in the coming year, hear from several other prominent speakers, and take part in panel presentations on two issues of critical importance to farmers at this time.

Farmer delegates will get a chance to question four experts about the energy and transportation outlook for agriculture on Monday afternoon. Richard Wilson, president of the Missouri based Agri-Trans corporation, a interregional cooperative barge line operating on the U.S. inland waterway system, will discuss a wide range of transporation concerns.

Shelby Southard, transportation expert with the cooperative league of the U.S.A., will give a presentation on the league's plan for a railroad transportation cooperative developed along the lines of the Rural Electric association. They will be joined by Curt Sorteberg, a National Farmers union alcohol fuels expert, and a top ranking official, yet to be announced, from the U.S. department of energy.

Tuesday morning, November 20, the conventioners will take on a broad ranging discussion about farming's future when a second panel will lead debate on the economic and social issues that affect the structure of American agriculture and rural communities. Secretary of agriculture Bob Bergland called for a nationwide dialogue on the issue at the National Farmers union convention last spring.

Susan Sechler, who directs the U.S. department of agriculture project that is collecting data for the dialogue, will speak as a panel member. She will be joined by Gene Wenstrom, Elbow Lake farmer and former state legislator who is heading a special farm structure research project in Minnesota. Marty Strange, co-director of the center for rural affairs based in Walthill, Neb., is also a panel member.

Barbara Lindemann Schlei, administrator of the U.S. department of agriculture's agriculture marketing service and Gerry Morrow, regional marketing manager for CENEX (Farmers Union central exchange, a regional farm supply cooperative) will speak to the delegation about the future of farmer cooperatives during Monday morning's program.

Other important convention speakers include National Farmers union president Tony T. Dechant, Minnesota Farmers union president Cy Carpenter and state commissioner of agriculture Mark Seetin. Dechant, who has served for 13 years as the president of the 300,000 farm member National Farmers union, will not seek reelection at the next national convention. His successor will be elected next March. A special "president's night" program will honor Dechant on Sunday evening.

Minnesota Farmers union is made up of more than 24,000 Minnesota farm families.

State Helps 10 Farmers To Buy Farms

Ten more Minnesotans have joined the ranks of family farm owners under the state guaranteed farm security loan program, raising to 180 the number of qualified families granted the ownership assistance thus far, reports agriculture commissioner Mark Seetin.

The 10 new loans recommended by the farm security advisory council at its October meeting and approved by the commissioner, put a 90 per cent state guarantee on the $2,113,500 financing of the purchase of 1,830 acres of Minnesota farm land.

October farm security loan guarantees raised the accumulative totals to just short of $30 million financing on 29,513 acres of farm land in 51 Minnesota counties.

Recipients of the October Farm Security loan guarantees are:

Mr. and Mrs. Donald Moore, Osakis, $100,000 lender and seller sponsored loan for a 125 acre dairy farm in Todd county;

Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Huls, Avon, $143,000 seller sponsored loan for a 160 acre hog farm in Stearns county;

Joseph Van Overbeke, Jr., Marshall, $119,500 seller sponsored loan for a 120 acre hog farm in Lyon county;

Rudolph Storm, Dover, $349,000 seller sponsored loan for a 280 acre hog farm in Olmsted county;

Mr. and Mrs. James Schewe, Danube, $460,000 seller sponsored loan for a 240 acre dairy farm in Renville county;

Mr. and Mrs. James Conroy, $172,000 lender and seller sponsored loan for a 200 acre crops farm in Traverse county;

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Thomson, Ortonville, $196,000 seller sponsored loan for a 305 acre beef and hog farm in Big Stone county;

Mr. and Mrs. Barry Ervin, Montevideo, $224,000 lender and seller sponsored loan for a 160 acre hog farm in Chippewa and Renville counties;

Mr. and Mrs. Roger Rosendahl, Lakefield, $224,000 lender and seller sponsored loan for a 160 acre crops farm in Pipestone county;

NEWS OF TECHNOLOGY

Research And Development — A Company's Lifeblood

How many companies spend nearly $500,000 every working hour on research and development? There aren't very many, but one of them is Siemens AG, the German-based electrical and electronics giant. This year the company will invest over $1.2 billion, or 8% of its sales on R&D—twice as much as is spent by the average U.S. electrical manufacturer. Siemens alone accounts for about 13% of total R&D expenditures in German industry.

Why this emphasis on R&D? It is axiomatic that a successful R&D program not only assures a company's future but is vital to its growth. New markets open up for companies that innovate. The handful of world leaders in technology are distinguished by their exceptionally high research expenditures and Siemens has for many years been among the leaders.

A major task of Siemens has been to channel the results of this vast R&D activity quickly and systematically into marketable products. For example, nearly half of all products sold by the company are less than five years old, while three-quarters are only five to ten years old. These products are enormously varied, ranging from tiny computers to huge electric power generators, from super-fast laser printers to the latest cancer therapy equipment.

Although accounting for only a small portion of its parent company's worldwide sales, Siemens Corporation, the fast growing U.S. subsidiary, is no piker when it comes to R&D spending. This year it has budgeted $21 million for R&D activity.

Beyond the benefits to the company itself, research and development is vital to the well-being of nations. This well-being depends upon such factors as industrial production, transportation, information distribution and above all, the generation and distribution of energy. The growing scarcity of raw materials and energy resources and the limits of what the environment can absorb are a permanent challenge to industry to develop new and better products, equipment and systems.

Savings Bonds Affordable Securities

Almost all securities that are issued by governments or corporations are designed for large investors. A few cost $1,000, but most cost at least $5,000 or $10,000. This is far beyond the reach of most people.

There is one security that everyone can afford — United States savings bonds. EE bonds come in many denominations, ranging from $50 to $10,000. But with a purchase price of half their face amount, they can be purchased for as little as $25.

Making them even easier to buy, bonds can be purchased in regular installments, sometimes as low as $1.25, alloted from an employee's paycheck through the payroll savings plan. Payroll savings encourages regular, effortless saving for everybody — no matter what their income.

Bonds purchased this way yield 6.5 per cent interest when held five years or more, are exempt from state or local income taxes, and are fully guaranteed against any loss by the United States. Changes in money market conditions do not affect savings bonds.

Bonds are recognized by organized labor and by business to be an effective method of building personal financial security. Unions have been among the bond program's strongest backers, and industry leaders have been in the forefront of volunteer efforts on behalf of bonds.

As a result, an estimated 9.5 million Americans now buy bonds regularly through the payroll savings plan. They have found savings bonds to be a good way to increase their savings, and a good source of ready cash in time of need.

Without broker's fees, without market fluctuations, and without any chance of loss, savings bonds are a security that can be counted on. And, at the price, it is no wonder they have become the worker's security.

Jury Duty Is A Citizen's Responsibility

By Michael F. Colley
President
Association of Trial Lawyers of America

As U.S. citizens, we are likely to have only two opportunities to take a direct part in the process of our government. One is when we elect public officials to the administrative, legislative and judicial branches of local, state or national government.

The other is when we are personally called upon for jury duty to shield or protect our fellow Americans from possible judicial or administrative injustice in the courts.

Michael F. Colley

Each year the U.S. court system calls upon at least a million American citizens to serve as jurors on some 200,000 juries. Just about anyone can be called to serve as a juror, but there are some general qualifications.

In most states, you must be an American citizen, a local resident, at least 21 years of age, have good character, ordinary intelligence, and be able to read, write and understand the English language.

The assembly of a jury panel is normally carried out by a jury commissioner who selects names from a variety of sources such as voter registration rolls, census records, property and tax rolls, vehicle registration records and even city telephone directories.

After a person has qualified as a juror, their name is then placed in a general ballot box from which all trial jurors are drawn as they are needed.

Drawing names for jury duty must be done publicly, as it is the law. After the desired number of names have been drawn, each juror is served a notice specifying the time and place where he or she is required to appear. This is not a request that can be ignored. It is a legal summons and must be obeyed.

But jury duty doesn't take forever. Usually, a jury duty call runs from five days to three weeks, unless you become involved in a lengthy criminal trial or if you are on a grand jury.

Pay for jury duty ranges from a low of $3 a day in Colorado to a high of $16 a day in Massachusetts.

Being summoned for jury duty and its impending responsibility is an honor, and you should not regard it as an unwanted intrusion into your personal life. It recognizes that you are a U.S. citizen and a resident in good standing of your community.

It also means that you will have an opportunity to play an active part in our democratic form of government and see that justice is done in our court system.

Annual Sheep Day Scheduled At Crookston

Fourth annual sheep production day is set at the Northwest experiment station, Crookston, on Thursday, November 29. Registration and refreshments begin at 9:30 a.m. in the auditorium of the agricultural research center.

Theme this year is, "Confinement Sheep Production — an Alternative for Northwestern Minnesota?" Program will open with a top-level extension veterinarian, Dr. Kurt Wohlgemuth from North Dakota state university, who will discuss the health problems one can expect with confined sheep management. Neal Martin, extension agronomist, University of Minnesota, St. Paul, follows and will speak briefly on producing forages for sheep.

Marvin Norby, Fairview, Mont., a successful sheep confinement operator, will speak on why he confines sheep even though he lives in the open range country. Bob Jacobs, extension animal husbandman, will address the group briefly on "Sheep Production During the Past 40 Years".

Harvey Windels, meat animal scientist, Northwest experiment station, will address the group and share some of the lambing barn fundamentals learned with the confined sheep operation. Bob Jordan, animal scientist, St. Paul, will talk on "Nutrition for the Ewe From Flushing to the Lambing Pen".

Sheep producers, their bankers, vo ag men and extension agents are especially encouraged to be on hand. Program details will be mailed to all sheep producers who have previously attended sheep days at the Northwest station.

New Proposal For Refuse Disposal Set

In response to public comments, the Minnesota pollution control agency (MPCA) has revised its proposed changes in refuse-disposal rules for rural areas. New proposals will be discussed at public hearings November 15 in Detroit Lakes and Grand Rapids, November 19 in Roseville and November 20 in Brainerd.

Proposed changes to Minnesota Rule SW-11 would allow some areas with less than 2,500 residents to operate "modified landfills" if certain conditions are met. Modified landfills would have less-strict operating standards than those currently governing sanitary landfills, which now apply statewide for solid waste disposal.

Current regulations require all sanitary landfills to cover refuse daily with a layer of soil. Proposed rules would require modified landfills to cover their waste once a week from May 1 to November 30 and once a month from December 1 to April 30.

The MPCA proposed the less-stringent standards in response to complaints from rural counties that current sanitary landfill standards are too strict and expensive for small rural landfills to meet. Proposals are aimed at cutting waste-disposal costs without harming rural environmental quality.

The MPCA held seven hearings last summer on the proposed changes. Based on comments from interested citizens, the original proposal was altered in three ways.

(1) A distance requirement, which would have permitted modified landfills only if they were at least 30 miles from an existing sanitary landfill, was dropped. Instead, modified landfills could be permitted if economic and environmental analyses show that no practical alternative exists, such as canister systems, transfer stations, or the use of existing sanitary landfills.

(2) A modified landfill would not be permitted if it would cause "adverse economic and environmental impact" on existing permitted solid waste facilities.

(3) Modified landfills would not be allowed to accept hazardous wastes.

In addition, the proposed rule-changes would allow some open burning of certain materials — wood-demolition and tree wastes which are bulky and hard to bury. However, an MPCA burning-permit and permission from local authorities still would be required.

The hearings schedule is: November 15, Detroit Lakes area vocational technical institute, multi-purpose room, south one-half, Highway 34 East of Detroit Lakes, convening at 10 a.m.

November 15, Itasca community college, Wilson hall, Room 137, Route 3 East of Grand Rapids, convening at 7 p.m.

November 19, Minnesota pollution control agency board room, 1935 West county road B-2, Roseville, convening at 10 a.m.

November 20, Crow Wing county social service building, meeting room No. 1, East Laurel and Fourth streets, Brainerd, convening at 1 p.m.

Subjects covered will range from "Theater Magic" to "The Development of Artificial Organs: Pitfalls and Progress in Imitating Nature." Main speakers will include Walter Heller, Regents' professor of economics, and Pulitzer Prize winning composer Dominick Argento. Nineteen other speakers will also give addresses.

The day will also include an open forum on colleges and careers moderated by the director of the CLA Career development office; a discussion of the honors program; a Minnesota Scholars congress; and a forum for parents.

Parents forum will include discussion of the ways families develop, the kinds of changes parents and adult children can expect to experience during college years and ways they can help each other.

Information will also be available for parents who want to return to school themselves.

Student participants in Scholars day were selected on the basis of test scores and the recommendations of high school counselors.

Garnishment Not Easy Procedure To Satisfy Debt

With inflation claiming a larger percentage of people's paychecks, few persons are anxious to lose more. The prospect of a garnishment against one's wages, then, is likely to be met with both personal and financial depression in even the most stable of workers, notes the Minnesota Supreme court's information office.

Garnishment is also one of the areas of law that has attracted more than its share of rumors. Some of the commonly-held fears about garnishment have been stripped away over the past decade by court cases and legislation which now afford more constitutional protection to a person who might be faced with garnishment.

For example, there is now a strict limit on the amount that can be taken from a paycheck on a garnishment. In addition, certain legal processes that must be followed give a debtor a circle of protection that didn't exist years ago.

Exactly what is garnishment? It is a legal process that can be used by a creditor, that is, a person or company owed a legal debt, to collect the money. If a garnishment is permitted, the employer of the debtor, or person who owes the money, can be ordered to hold the sum from the employee-debtor's paycheck. But, there are limits on how and when garnishment can be used.

As an example, suppose that Frank Smith owes money to ABC Furniture company for purchases on credit. ABC, as the creditor, has carried a past due account and now wishes to collect.

Before any garnishment steps can be taken, ABC must bring a lawsuit against Frank. Frank will get notice of ABC's claims when a summons and complaint are served on him. This notice is actually Frank's first protection against garnishment. Frank has the opportunity to raise any defenses to ABC's claims, for example, that the debt was already paid or that the items he received were defective. ABC can proceed with garnishment only if Frank does not file an answer to the lawsuit, a default, or if ABC wins in court.

Frank's second line of protection enters if ABC prevails and gets or can get a judgement against Frank. But, Frank's wages still may be exempt from garnishment. ABC must send out a "Garnishment Exemption Notice" 10 days before an intended garnishment. If Frank receives any type of welfare assistance — such as aid to families with dependent children (AFDC) or supplemental security income (SSI) — or has received any in the last six months, his pay is exempt from garnishment altogether, and no money can be taken. Or, Frank could be exempt if he had been an inmate in a correctional institution during the previous six months. To claim an exemption, Frank fills out the form he was sent and returns it to ABC or its attorney.

This notice serves another purpose: it puts Frank on the alert to a pending garnishment. Sometimes a debtor might be able to contact the creditor and work out a voluntary payment plan to avoid garnishment.

People are protected from garnishment in other ways, too. A person who has a low income may not be subject to garnishment. If Frank's weekly take-home pay (pay after tax and social security deductions) is less than 40 times the federal minimum hourly wage, Frank cannot have his wages garnished. This limit comes to $116 a week or less, although the amount will increase to $124 in 1980.

Even if Frank's earnings can be subject to a garnishment, there are restraints. Unlike earlier years, Frank must be left with enough money to live on. The maximum amount that can be taken from his income is one-fourth of his pay. But, in any case, Frank must be left with at least $116 to feed himself and family (again, 40 times the minimum wage.) These rules and others seek to assure that no one is deprived of bread and board because of a garnishment order.

Probably the thing that worries people most about garnishment is that they will lose their jobs because of it. Here's one more protection of the law: an employer generally cannot fire an employee because of a garnishment. Only after an employee's wages have been garnished for three separate debts could the employee be let go.

Garnishment is often complicated. Debtors may have legitimate claims against their creditors or may be able to take steps to negotiate a settlement and avoid a garnishment. When such situations arise, it's always best to contact an attorney, as well as to be aware of the current protections provided by law against the abuses of garnishment, the court information office suggests.

'79 TOPS Rally Has Awards, Skits, Songs

The 1979 Northwestern Minnesota fall rally for TOPS (Take Off Pounds Sensibly) entitled, "How the Waist was Won" was conducted in the Lincoln high school cafeteria Saturday.

Rally included sing alongs, the introduction of chapter queen, coronation of rally royalty, wedding apparel parade, officer awards, best losers, and alumni and graduating KOPS (Keep Off Pounds Sensibly). Skits and contests were also performed throughout the day.

Chapter queens are selected for losing the most weight in a year from their original starting date until their goal is reached. Best losers are selected for losing the most weight in a year, while alumni KOPS are those who lose the most weight in a year and who are able to keep it off. Wedding apparel parade included four women who were able to wear their wedding dresses after losing their desired amount of weight while in TOPS.

Rallies are conducted every year, according to Dorothy Nelson, TOPS member. They are usually conducted in Thief River Falls because of the city's central location, she said.

"TOPS is a weight reducing organization that is based on group therapy and incentives," she said. The organization is based also on doctor recommended diets. Meetings are at St. Bernard's church at 7:15 p.m. Monday with weigh-ins at 6 and 7 p.m. Recently a new club was started Friday at 9:30 a.m. For more information on these meetings, or on the new club, interested persons may call 681-6432.

Fish As Pets Need Special Attention

by Robert L. Stear, D.V.M.

Pet owners in growing numbers are becoming fish enthusiasts. Aquariums in pet shops and dime stores are well stocked with a wide selection ranging from the hardy goldfish to exotic, saltwater tropical fish.

Novice fish fanciers often make the mistake of buying the fish first and setting up the aquarium second. This is often fatal to the fish. Water is a fish's total environment, and should be carefully prepared in advance.

If the water supply in your area contains chlorine or fluoride compounds, it is essential that they be eliminated. Chlorine will evaporate if the water is aged in a wide-mouthed, open container for two or three days. Aging, however, will not eliminate the fluoride compounds. These can be neutralized by adding a chemical compound available in pet shops. Water for a saltwater aquarium is prepared in this same fashion, with the addition of a special blend of "salt," also available at the pet store.

When the water is ready, the tank can be partly filled and plants rooted in a layer of coarse, washed sand. Plants should be arranged on a slight slope from back to front, and the rest of the water added. Finally, the filter, pump and thermostat should be positioned, and the filtration system started. In a day or two the water temperature will stabilize, the pump will remove any passing cloudiness and the aquarium will be ready for the fish.

Fish owners are often tempted to overstock their aquariums. In a tank with no aeration system, you should calculate one inch of fish (excluding tail) per gallon of water. A good air pump will let you double the stocking capacity of the tank, since water in motion will absorb a great deal more oxygen. The fish you stock should be compatible in size and temperament. With a little study, you can learn about individual differences in varieties — those fish that do best in pairs and those that tolerate other smaller fish.

Since one sick fish can infect all others in the aquarium, choose your specimens carefully. The fish should swim evenly, and have no spots or other signs of fungus on its body. If the tail is not in good condition or the body is misshapen, you should choose another fish.

The work is not over when your fish have adjusted to their new home. Water in a functioning aquarium is a constantly changing medium; waste products from the plants and fish, minerals dissolving from decorative rocks and water added to compensate for evaporation can change the water's pH (the acid-base ratio). A pH kit can help you determine the water's acid level and adjust it to your fishes' needs.

Even in a well-regulated aquarium, you may eventually notice a fish with suspicious white spots, or one with limp fins that stays near the bottom. These are only two of the signs that can indicate illness. Ich, the most common disease of aquarium fish, is identified by white pinhead-sized spots scattered over the body and fins. Fuzzy, irregular cotton-like patches on the fish are signs of fungal infection. They generally occur on a fish that already has a bruise or other skin injury.

Treatment for these problems varies. Bacterial infections are best controlled by antibiotics, while fungus growths can be treated with dilute antiseptic solutions. Often a warm saltwater bath can be used to encourage parasites to loosen their hold on the fish's skin, so the parasites can be exposed to the proper medication. Your veterinarian may be able to recommend a reference book that will list the proper concentrations and types of remedies for your tropical fish.

Chief's Corner

by Ken Froschheiser
Chief of Police
Thief River Falls, MN.

Thursday morning, November 1, we awoke to find the first snowfall of the fast approaching winter. This reminds us of the snow removal process for our city streets and avenues.

The Police department will again proceed before the snow plow and remove vehicles that are parked on the street being cleaned. This is a long and inconvenient process for the police and street departments and the owners of the vehicles parked on the wrong streets. We ask all vehicle operators to make sure they are parking their vehicles on the proper streets as outlined below. We would also ask all landlords who have rental property to instruct their renters as to proper times for parking and where to park.

During the last part of this month I will be sending a snow removal notice out in the Shopper that is delivered to your home. Please keep this notice and become familiar with it to expedite the street cleaning process and to help us avoid causing an inconvenience to you by towing your vehicle.

As to safe driving practices, we must all remember that winter is here again and we cannot drive our vehicles in the same manner as one month ago. Care must be exercised on all streets, and especially at intersections, pedestrian crossings and known areas that tend to be very slippery. While talking to street commissioner Blackstad, I was informed that salt will not be available this winter as it was in the past. This means that slippery spots will be just graveled and no melting compound will be used. We must proceed with due caution in these areas.

Once again, the snow removal process will soon begin and I ask that you please follow this schedule when parking:

Snow removal on city streets and avenues will be done in the following manner:

(1) Avenues (north and south) 6 a.m. to 9 p.m. Monday, Wednesday, Friday; (2) streets (east and west), 6 a.m. to 9 p.m. Tuesday, Thursday, Saturday.

Do not park on avenues on Monday, Wednesday, Friday (6 a.m. to 9 p.m.)

Do not park on streets on Tuesday, Thursday, Saturday (6 a.m. to 9 p.m.) All vehicles parked on the streets and avenues when snow removal is in process are subject to tags and tow-away at owner's expense. (City of Thief River Falls Ordinance 9:9.09. subd. 3)

Bone Marrow Transplant Area Opens At U of M

University of Minnesota researchers have announced the opening of a new bone marrow transplant center at University hospitals. Event follows designation of the university as one of six major national transplant centers by the National Institutes of Health and receipt of a three-year NIH grant totaling $540,000.

Pediatrician John Kersey, director of the center, said the university's bone marrow transplant program will now have its own hospital unit and will be able to expand to include up to 40 patients a year. Since 1974, when the university's bone marrow transplant team was established, 70 transplants have been performed in space shared with other hospital units.

Kersey said bone marrow transplant patients from throughout the Midwest will be referred to the university since the other centers are located on the coasts. Also, he said, the university will now be accepting young adult and middle-aged transplant patients for the first time.

In early work on the method, the best results were the children, Kersey said, but refinements in the procedure have allowed expansion not only to older patients but also to new diseases.

Patients with severe aplastic anemia and leukemia, rare but fatal diseases, have been the primary candidates for this treatment, in which liquid marrow donated from a healthy sibling is transfused into the patient. Common denominator in these conditions and other blood and bone diseases for which the procedure is now seen to have potential is dysfunction of bone marrow, the body's factory for blood cells.

Cure rates for aplastic anemia and leukemia patients after bone marrow transplants are encouraging, and recent improvements in the technique may soon make it the treatment of choice for both diseases, researchers say. Between 50 and 85 per cent of the patients who receive bone marrow transplants survive at least one year, depending on the disease, the transplantation procedure used and the center where it is performed.

With leukemia, a malignant condition in which the marrow produces an excessive number of white cells, the biggest obstacle has been recurrence of this cancerous condition following transplantation. But, said hematologist Philip McGlave, a switch to transplanting marrow while the disease is in remission rather than while it is active has led to improved cure rates.

Major advances are also being made in work with aplastic anemia, a disease in which marrow is underproductive. Pediatrician Norma Ramsay has achieved unusually high one-year survival rates with a small group of patients by conditioning them prior to transplantation with a new technique known as total lymphoid irradiation (TLI) Radiation is used to suppress the patients' immune systems so their systems accept the foreign marrow, Ramsay said. Total body irradiation, a more rigorous procedure that can damage the brain and lungs, was used in the past. TLI affects only the lymph organs, which are involved in the immune system, avoiding unnecessary damage from the radiation, she said.

In a new avenue of bone marrow transplant research, the technique is showing potential for application in some kidney transplants. Recognition of the foreign kidney by the body's immune system, which stems from the bone marrow, often leads to rejection of the kidney in high-risk patients. Transplant surgeon David Sutherland said researchers hope the recipient's immune system can be made compatible with the donor's kidney by giving the recipient bone marrow from the donor. Six high-risk kidney transplant patients on whom the technique was tried during the last six months have not shown signs of rejection, he said.

AMERICA THE BEAUTIFUL

One of the beauties of America you can help build is this magnificent church.

One of the most beautiful manmade sights in América for many is this tribute to God, the National Shrine of the Immaculate Conception. The seventh largest church in the world and the largest Catholic church in the United States, it's a Byzantine fantasy of blue and gold domes and slim white towers rising above sober Washington, D.C., and echoing the Capitol dome and Washington Monument.

Dedicated to Mary, protector of the United States, the shrine is being built with the financial help of many Americans, individuals and organizations of a variety of faiths.

The shrine's architecture, sculpture, windows, inscriptions, mosaics and decorations are the fruit of American imagination, skill and devotion. Gifts from fraternal organizations include eight large and four small marble columns from the Catholic Order of Foresters. The tower, its carillon of 56 bells and the campanile to hold the bells came from the Knights of Columbus.

The shrine has no steel skeleton. Fashioned by craftsmen fitting together mortar, stone, brick and tile, the building relies on the laws of physics to "defy" gravity—that is, forces pushing upward and inward balance forces pushing downward and outward. The stones that keep up the semicircular arches inside are all wedge shaped, each one held in place by its neighbors.

The great dome is covered with blue and gold tiles forming the Fleur-de-Lys, the Tower of Ivory and other symbols of Mary. The shrine offers a one-day, two-day or five-day pilgrimage program, including catechetical talks, prayer services, Sacrament of Reconciliation and Sunday liturgy. Tours of the city are also included, and the longer programs offer visits to places associated with the two newest American Saints, St. John Neumann and St. Elizabeth Seton.

For more information, write Rev. Msgr. John J. Murphy, Director, National Shrine of the Immaculate Conception, Fourth and Michigan Avenues N.E., Washington, D.C. 20017.

LEONA HEMMES, Humboldt, was crowned chapter queen during the Northwestern Minnesota fall rally for TOPS in the Lincoln high school cafeteria Saturday afternoon. Chapter queens are selected for losing the most weight in a year from their original starting date until their goal is reached.

Hints For Homeowners

Remodeling your bathroom doesn't have to mean remodeling your budget. There are some economical ways to improve it. These include changing the color, increasing the light and updating the fixtures.

Light- or bright-colored walls, floor, fixtures and ceiling can make the room seem larger, airier. Dark colors can add a look of luxury. Warm shades of red, brown and yellow can make the room seem warmer, too, so stepping out of a hot shower isn't quite so chilling. Cool blues and greens create a tranquil mood.

Another feature often slighted in bathrooms is lighting. Keep it bright, let it reflect off mirrors and white or light-colored walls.

A very important aspect of a bath or powder room is a lovely lavatory. One such fixture that's unique has a delicately sculptured edge for a touch of elegance. The new Aqualady lavatory, by American-Standard, is available in a wide range of colors to offer full decorating freedom. The lighter colors tend to enhance the feminine aspect, while the darker hues, such as Americana Brown and Colonial Blue, make it more suitable to masculine tastes.

An elegant sink can make a powder room look superb—and help you save.

The lavatory measures 21 by 18 inches and comes with fittings on either four-inch or eight-inch centers—either way it can be perfect for a remodeled or newly built bath.

The self-rimming drop-in design in vitreous china eliminates the need for metal rims, and this oval lavatory fits nicely into countertop installation plans.

It's something to think about when you shop for fixtures for a better-looking bath.

Numbers Of Billboards In State Reduced

Billboard signs continue to dwindle along Minnesota's trunk highways, according to F. C. Marshall, assistant commissioner, technical services division, Minnesota department of transportation (Mn-DOT). Marshall said that Minnesota probably ranks among the top six or seven states in the percentage of billboards and signs removed from along highways.

Only 400 nonconforming signs are left to be removed from along Minnesota's trunk highway system. Litigation to determine compensation for them is now in progress, he said.

Nearly 13,000 signs have been taken down under the 1971 Minnesota outdoor advertising control act. Prior to 1971, about 30,000 were removed under Minnesota's original law, which preceded the federal beautification act of 1965.

Between June of 1978 and June of 1979, more than 1,800 nonconforming and nearly 500 illegal signs were removed from along the state's trunk highways.

Nonconforming signs were lawful before passage of the outdoor advertising control act. Because of amendments to the state statute which took effect on that date, the signs no longer met the requirements of the law, Marshall said. Some reasons for nonconformity are improper spacing from other signs, churches, schools, parks and rest areas; signs in areas no zoned for that particular use; and signs that exceed the size limitation.

Sign sizes run from a few square feet, or even less, to in excess of 1,000 square feet. The maximum size is limited to 750 square feet outside of incorporated areas and 1,000 square feet within them. Some signs exceed the maximum size, but they were in existence prior to the 1971 Minnesota law.

Flashing lights may not be used on signs. Lights that cause glare or impair the motorists' vision are prohibited.

Spacing varies from 100 feet to 500 feet depending upon the regulations in effect in a given locale.

He pointed out that the law does allow some signs along Minnesota's trunk highways including on-premise signs (those advertising a business at that business location), official signs (traffic control, directional, motorist service, etc.) and off-premise signs located in areas that are zoned for commercial or industrial use or qualify as unzoned commercial or industrial. Signs can be made of any material, but are usually constructed of wood or steel.

Illegal signs outside the highway right of way are issued 60-day violation notices requiring the sign owners to remove the signs or — if possible — bring them into compliance with the law. Mn-DOT crews take the signs down if they are still in place after the time period expires. The owner then is billed for removal costs.

Illegal signs located on a highway right of way are removed by Mn-DOT as soon as they are detected, Marshall said.

Owners of nonconforming signs are reimbursed on the basis of the cost of rebuilding the signs, less observable depreciation. Owners of the property on which the signs are located are reimbursed for the value of the remaining lease life, discounted on the basis of immediate cash payment. When there is a verbal agreement, payment is made as though a year's lease exists, he added.

Payroll Plan Helps To Buy Savings Bonds

News in the past few months that the United States has the lowest rate of saving by its citizens of any major industrialized nation does not speak well for our economic future. Money saved today is spent tomorrow, creating demand for the consumer goods that keep American industry producing and Americans working. Lower the savings rate, the greater the potential for future economic instability.

Reasons for our low savings rate are many. One that many people cite is that they don't make enough money to be able to save — that everything they earn is eaten up by expenses. But everyone can save, given the right circumstances.

Millions of Americans have found that the right circumstances equal the payroll savings plan for U.S. savings bonds. With payroll savings, money can be saved without any effort at all. A one-time decision of how much to save is all that is required. From then on, that amount is automatically allotted to savings bonds from the saver's salary before it can be spent. Each time the price of a bond is reached, as little as $25, a bond issued. When the bond is held five years or more, it earns interest at an average annual rate of 6.5 per cent.

Savings Bonds are exempt from state or local income taxes, and federal tax may be deferred until the bond is cashed or otherwise disposed of — a fact which can increase a bond's effective yield. They are also guaranteed safe against any loss by the United States itself.

Tens of thousands of companies, including most large industrial firms, offer payroll savings. For employees of these companies it is easy to save and, even if the amount saved from any given paycheck is not much, regular saving means a good-sized nestegg in a surprisingly short period.

For nearly 40 years, men and women have used savings bonds to build themselves greater financial security. Today, the reasons for doing so are more compelling than ever. Our country's future may well depend on raising our rate of saving. And Savings Bonds are the way America can, and does, save.

Durenberger Bills Would Aid Disabled

Senator Dave Durenberger's proposals to remove the roadblocks disabled persons often face when they try to return to work were approved last week by the Senate committee on finance.

Durenberger's measures will change social security provisions that cause a handicapped person to lose all benefits if his or her monthly income exceeds $280 and will make it easier for the handicapped citizens to learn a trade. His proposals were included in the disability insurance amendments of 1979.

The finance committee, of which Durenberger is a member, finished work on the overall bill Oct. 30 and reported it to the Senate floor.

Durenberger's provisions could help the estimated 2,500 Minnesotans who are receiving disability benefits, but who could return to work.

Durenberger also introduced another bill to benefit severely disabled persons. His bill will exempt totally and permanently disabled persons from capital gains taxes on profits from the sale of their homes.

The legislation will exempt up to $100,000 on a one-time basis.

"The sale of a home by a disabled person is in many cases an event arising out of desperation — the disability wreaks havoc with one's life making it impossible to be gainfully employed on a long-term basis," said Durenberger.

"Without income from a job, the maintenance of a house is a virtual impossibility. The home that was previously a haven has become an albatross. The only alternative the disabled individual and his or her family has is to sell the home and either purchase a smaller residence or move to a rental unit.

The senator's work in the finance committee will authorize the social security commissioner to develop and implement demonstration projects that enable the handicapped to work; it provides that extraordinary expenses needed to permit a severely disabled person to return to work would not be counted against the amount of earnings ($280 per month) that cause a person to lose benefits; and, it extends from nine to twelve months the on-the-job trial period during which a handicapped person does not lose benefits. His approved program will also protect benefits for disabled widows and widowers who seek employment and makes it easier for medicare beneficiaries to regain their benefits if he or she has been terminated from employment or must return to the disability rolls for another reason.

Cut Transportation Costs

Mayor Guy "Sandy" Sanders of Brighton, Colorado rides his motorcycle to City Hall.

In these days of high gas prices, a gallon saved is more than a few pennies earned, and no matter what your means of motorized transportation, proper driving habits will stretch your mileage.

By avoiding jackrabbit starts, keeping speed constant, slowing down for stops and warming the engine by driving instead of idling, you're bound to save gas.

Not only individuals are concerned about the prices at the pump and the shortages in the wells. In Brighton, Colorado, for example, the town's mayor decided two wheels were better than four.

It started when Mayor Guy "Sandy" Sanders began riding his Suzuki FZ-50 to City Hall every day. He was so impressed by the mileage and performance that he ordered the purchase of three more Suzukis for city use. Now the police department is considering putting some of its patrolmen on the two-wheelers.

In Oklahoma, 64-year-old Associate District Judge Paul Simmons rides his Suzuki GS-400 from his cattle farm to Wagoner Courthouse every day. Daily cost of the 50-mile round trip: about $1, says the Judge.

Depending on size, weight and engine capacity, motorcycles can get up to 200 miles per gallon. The average mileage for a large, comfortable, comparatively quiet touring bike — like the Suzuki GS 1000N — is 40 to 50 miles per gallon.

And that's no fueling. Well, at least not too often!

Scandinavian Wood Exhibit Tour Begins

"Scandinavian Wood," the first of six planned touring exhibitions of Scandinavian arts sponsored by the University of Minnesota gallery, will open Sunday, November 11, in the fourth floor gallery of Wilson library on the Twin Cities campus. At a later time the exhibit will come to Thief River Falls.

Following its closing at Wilson November 30 the exhibition will be presented in 20 Minnesota cities during the next two years. This exhibition will be followed by others on Scandinavian fabrics, metalwork, furniture, ceramics and glass.

Wood exhibition includes about 100 objects which have been loaned to the gallery by area museums and private collectors and includes examples from Denmark, Finland, Iceland, Norway and Sweden, as well as the work of Scandinavian immigrants. Objects related to food preparation, storage containers, tools, musical instruments and whimsical or non-utilitarian objects are included. Forms of decoration range from incised lines to elaborate painting such as the rosemaling of Norway.

"Scandinavian Wood" explores the structure of handmade wooden objects and the numerous ways in which wood can be decorated," said [illegible], coordinator of the touring program. "The exhibition shows the great skill of the craftsmen."

Exhibit in Wilson will open with a reception from 2 to 4 p.m. November 11. Regular hours for the fourth floor gallery are 8 a.m. to 10 p.m. Monday through Thursday; 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Friday; 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday; and 1 to 6 p.m. Sunday. There is no admission charge.

Exhibition is scheduled to visit Windom, Sandstone, International Falls, Ely, Hibbing, Thief River Falls, Park Rapids, Detroit Lakes, Breckenridge, Rochester and 10 other communities during the next two years.

University gallery touring exhibitions program is a cooperative effort with the Agricultural extension service [illegible] the arts, a department of continuing education and extension. Funding for "Scandinavian Wood" has been provided by the Otto Bremer foundation and its affiliated Minnesota banks and the Minnesota Humanities commission.

Many Feel Car Is Necessity Of Life

by Gary Witzenburg
Popular Mechanics Magazine

Ann Dusatko, former schoolteacher, is not quite the sort of woman you'd expect to find with a bumper sticker on her car reading, "Don't mess with my ride." But there it is, and Mrs. Dusatko, a widow and twice a grandmother, is not at all reluctant to tell you why she put it there.

"It's my message to Washington," she says firmly. "You can't exist in a country town like this without a car, and I can't afford to pay $500 or $800 more for a new car just because the government says it has to come equipped with things I've gotten along without all my life. Inflation is bad enough."

Mrs. Dusatko is typical of many Americans who feel that their "ride" is threatened. Like her, some blame a Washington bent on more and more regulation of the auto industry, with each new federal edict forcing car prices upward. Others point to factors such as the increased cost of gasoline, higher state and local taxes on automobiles, and the anti-car arguments of environmentalists.

America's love affair with the auto is more than three-quarters of a century old, but the determination of increasing numbers of car owners to speak up in its behalf is a relatively new development. Motorists, it seems, have finally come to realize what one farsighted U.S. Secretary of Commerce, Luther Hodges Sr., was talking about in 1962, when he warned them that they must "speak up" if they did not want their "freedom of mobility" curtailed by "the anti-autoists."

Addressing "Mr. and Mrs. Motorist," Hodges said: "Make no mistake about it, restrictions on the use of our cars are coming — unless we stop taking our freedom of the road for granted."

To motorists like Mrs. Dusatko, mobility is the key word. It comes quickly to the tongue when she is asked what her car means to her.

"It means," she declares, "the difference between mobility and immobility. Without it, I'd be stuck. I'd have no way to get out of town to my dentist, to a medical specialist, to go shopping, to get to a beauty shop, or visit my family. There's no bus service here, no train, no plane. You go by car or truck, or you don't go at all."

It's easy to see her point. Like other rural American communities with limited facilities, Clarkson, a pleasant town of 900 in northeast Nebraska, relies on automobility for its existence. Its residents know precisely which larger towns offer the specific supplies and services they need and drive there automatically. That means trips of 16 miles to Columbus, a town of 16,000, or 90 miles to Omaha or Lincoln, Nebraska's largest cities.

The car, however, is no less vital to residents of urban areas. Robert Jackson, head of the Compass group, a tourism development firm in Miami Beach, points out that virtually all of southern Florida depends on the automobile to meet transportation needs. "The car isn't just a convenience here," he will tell you, "it's indispensable. This is a resort area and things are so spread out that you simply cannot get to them by mass transit, no matter how good it might be."

As a travel consultant, Jackson averages 160 miles a day by car just to visit his clients. "I couldn't do business without a car," he says.

Across the country in Los Angeles, Dick Barton, an aerospace executive, is equally adamant. He lives 35 miles from his office at the Rockwell international space systems plant in suburban Downey, and says it would be impossible for him to make the trip any way but by car. "It takes me 45 minutes to drive here," he explains, "and it would take at least three hours by public conveyance — if there were any public conveyance, which there isn't."

Indeed, declares Barton, "Nobody in California could get by without a car. Our whole economic system — our work system — is based on the car. There really is no other means of transportation possible. You can drive for two hours in Los Angeles and still be in the city. That means that the average person must have a car to pursue his employment. People here literally go 360 degrees when they are on the move and it would be all but impossible to provide a public transit system that could go in all directions."

(A side note: Only two of every 100 members of the American traveling public are served by public transit, according to the National transportation policy study commission. Ninety-two of the 100 prefer the private motor vehicle. But all taxpayers help pay the tab for public transit, a fact many do not realize. Fares actually cover little more than half the cost of operating the nation's transit systems. Remainder is paid by the taxpayers via subsidies to the systems from the federal, state and local governments. And, says the American public transit association, the rate of subsidization is climbing each year.)

To 36-year-old Walt Jarema of St. Clair Shores, Mich., the car has a special significance. His not only gets him to and from his job as a dye maker, it gives his family an independence, a sense of privacy and freedom that it could not otherwise have. With their three sons, Walt and Mary Jarema have traveled by car, or in their light truck, on vacation trips that only the wealthy could have afforded a few decades ago. Without such automobility, the Jaremas could not drive their sons around the Detroit area to play the hockey the boys love. Without a car, they would live not in a suburb but in the city itself where Walt and Mary grew up, and, says Mary, "I don't think we could ever go back to that."

Walt Jarema loves cars. He put his first together as a teenager, customizing it with parts from several makes. Now he and his wife see their automobility threatened by government regulations and by inflation.

"It's like a freedom we worked for and we earned," Mary Jarema says, "and someone's trying to take it away."

Such strong feelings by motorists are interpreted by New York psychologist Nicholas Zill as reflecting the individual driver's concept of the car as a "cocoon" that offers privacy and as a vehicle embodying various characteristics, among them freedom.

Sociologist Leroy Gould of Yale views the situation in these terms: "We have built a suburban society which depends on the automobile and demands mobility. It's structurally built in."

And Washington Post writer William Greider has pointed out that, without the automobile, America's poor would be the hardest hit of all. "If you want to see what it looks like," he has written, "examine a Latin American city where the poor lack mobility — where they stack up in the cities and build tarpaper slums, unable to find work and unable to return home."

Motor vehicles, according to Greider, "spread equalitarian life values through America — the values of time and mobility — and they spread these qualities downward in our society, more than any patch-up government programs. Cars give poor people more choices. If government regulation were to cripple the automobile society, in the name of saving oil, it would most surely hurt the least first and hardest."

Against that background, Greider has commented: "I am reasonably certain that government regulation will not be allowed to cripple the automobile because too many politicians understand that the very idea contains the seeds of class war."

Strong words, those, but there is evidence that politicians and government officials are susceptible to education as to the public's determination to protect the principle of automobility.

When former secretary of transportation Brock Adams talked last December of the need to "re-invent the car," he found himself the target of such widespread criticism that he was soon backtracking. By early 1979 he was explaining that what he had meant was "that we must improve the automobile as a means of personal mobility." In March, he told the Richland, Wash., Chamber of Commerce: "Preserving the motor vehicle and the freedom it affords us — the 'automobility' we enjoy and which our economy depends on — is one of the most important and most urgent transportation challenges before us."

Adams' successor, Neil Goldschmidt, has avoided any reference to "re-inventing" the car.

Still, no one who follows developments in the auto industry and in Washington can doubt that more restrictions on our cars are coming — unless, as Luther Hodges, Sr., put it, "we stop taking our freedom of the road for granted."

Keep that bumper sticker on your car, Mrs. Dusatko.

350 Million Bushels Sold By Farmers

More than 350 million bushels of grain and oilseeds disappeared from Minnesota farm storage into marketing channels during the June through September quarter, Agriculture commissioner Mark Seetin estimated recently.

That volume of commodities sold and fed to livestock had an estimated farm value of over $1 billion.

But the well of Minnesota's most productive industry is far from dry, commissioner Seetin said, pointing out that the October 1 farm grain stocks plus the new crops of soybeans, sunflower seeds, and corn being harvested this fall added up to nearly 1.2 billion bushels with a farm value of almost $3.5 billion.

Corn showed the greatest volume of disappearance, an estimated 193.1 million bushels worth over $442 million sold and fed to livestock between June 1 and October 1. But the October 1 carryover and new crop of corn added up to over 746 million bushels that Minnesota farmers have for continuing marketings and the production of milk, meat and eggs.

Soybeans probably contributed the second highest amount of cash marketing receipts during the three month period. Farm stocks of this crop are estimated on September 1, and compared to June 1, the volume marketed by Minnesota farmers was an estimated 25.6 million bushels. If they marketed only 10 million bushels of the old crop carryover during September, the three month marketings of soybeans generated $243.5 million in gross income. October 1, unofficially, Minnesota farmers had 175 million bushels of soybeans to sell.

Minnesota farmers marketed 63.56 million bushels of wheat valued at $200.6 million during the quarter. October 1 they had a farm stored carryover of 101.1 million bushels worth almost $379 million.

Minnesota farm marketings of other field crops during the June through September period, as indicated by the June and October farm stored inventories and 1979 harvest estimates, are:

Barley 24.1 million bushels, $53.5 million farm value, October 1 carryover of 45.6 million bushels worth $101.2 million; oats 44.75 million bushels, $55.9 million farm value, October 1 carryover 80.3 million bushels worth $107.9 million; Rye 903,000 bushels, $2.25 million farm value, October 1 carryover 2.26 million bushels worth $5.6 million; Flaxseed 868,000 bushels, $5.85 million farm value, October 1 carryover 1.64 million bushels worth $11.1 million.

Blood Bank Annual Meet Slated Monday

Annual meeting of Northern Blood bank, Inc., will be held Monday at 8 p.m. in the north conference room of Northwestern hospital services in Thief River Falls.

Directors whose terms expire this year are Mabel Leyden, Sylvia Olson, Dolores Johnson, Marvin Lundin and Dan Shafland of Thief River Falls, Lester Elseth of Newfolden and Harry Solberg of Goodridge. Ken Kohler of Thief River Falls is president of the association with Solberg as vice president and Beverly Holm of Thief River Falls as secretary-treasurer.

KICKING UP THEIR HEELS Tuesday evening at a "pep fest" held as a preliminary to the Hydra-Mac "Skid Steer Loader Bowl" slated for 3:30 p.m. today are these members of the Texas Cowgirls dance group. The former Dallas Cowboys cheerleaders were imported from Dallas, Tex., to do the cheering for the Hydra-Mac team as part of a dealer promotion based around a football theme. The Thief River Falls based Hydra-Mac firm manufactures skid steer loaders and has brought nearly 300 dealers, distributors, factory representatives and other guests into town for the dealer meeting. The Texas Cowgirls are a feature attraction, making their initial appearance at the pep fest and scheduled to appear this afternoon at the big bowl game between the Hydra-Mac Geer Drives and The Chain Gang in the Thief River Falls sports arena. A football field complete with turf and goalposts has been created in the arena for the event. The Cowgirls above are performing at midfield.

WHY THE BIBLE IS STILL A BEST-SELLER

By Maria McCallister

In each reader's life there are times when finding just the right book seems like an impossible dream. He goes to the shelf, scrutinizes the collection and often discovers little there to capture his interest. Yet time after time he reaches for the book of books, the Bible, because, perhaps more than any other book, it has something for everyone.

It is no wonder, then, that the Bible remains a best-seller, while other works come and go.

Though divinely inspired, the Bible is a kaleidoscope of human experience and is easily related to everyday life. From the beauty and romance of the Song of Solomon to the cries of joy and sorrow in the Psalms it describes our emotions, our intellect and our actions.

We can relate to the cast of characters because they are real people and we see ourselves in them. We can identify with Moses who got angry, Job who got frustrated and the disciples who bickered with each other. Encouragement is found, too, as we see God enable each of them to achieve victory over their difficult circumstances.

Our thirst for adventure and excitement can be quenched by reading about David's close encounter with Goliath, the parting of the Red Sea and Daniel's experience in the lion's den. Here is human drama at its best because it is coupled with divine intervention.

The Bible, then, is popular because it has adventure, suspense and emotion. But more importantly it is a story of a Father's great and unceasing love for His children. We treasure it because it is God's word to each of us. Through it we are told we can know Him personally because of what His Son did on the cross. He tells us we can come directly to Him for guidance, and our lives are given meaning and purpose.

Most of all we are told the almighty God loves us, that nothing can separate us from that love, and that ultimately He will have victory over all circumstances.

The Bible thus continues to be a best-seller because it takes all of life's loose ends and weaves them together into a beautiful tapestry. As long as people want to understand themselves and life, it will remain the most widely read book in history.

Dave Goltz Will Speak Here

Dave Goltz, a member of the Minnesota Twins pitching staff since 1972, will be a special guest speaker Mon., Nov. 26, at the Thief River Falls Sports Boosters Club pie and ice cream social.

Goltz, who was recently claimed by the maximum 13 teams in the annual major league baseball free agent draft, was born in Pelican Rapids, went to school in Rothsay and now lives during the off-season in Fergus Falls.

A 20-game winner for the Twins in 1977, the 6-4, 215-pound righthander is no longer an official member of the Minnesota organization, with whom he signed in 1967. However, he could still be in a Twins uniform in 1980 should the club bid for his services on the free agent market.

Prowlers Looking For An Opponent

Lincoln high school athletic director Russ Smith is still looking for a 1980 football opponent for the Prowlers to replace Crosby-Ironton.

Thief River Falls' football schedule is expected to remain basically the same next fall when the Prowlers will play at home against Grand Forks Red River, staples, Fergus Falls and East Grand Forks while traveling to Detroit Lakes, Moorhead, Bemidji and Crookston. Smith is awaiting signed contracts to verify the schedule.

With Crosby-Ironton officials looking elsewhere for an opponent, it's the third week of the season that Smith has to fill. And to date he hadn't had any luck. There is still a possibility, too, that the Prowlers and Rangers, who have met on a home-and-home basis the past two years, may get together again if Crosby-Ironton is unable to find a suitable opponent to replace the Prowlers.

Should the Prowlers face an open date next fall, it'll be the second time Thief River Falls has failed to fill a schedule in six years. The Prowlers had an open date in the middle of the 1975 season when they finished 3-5. Then Thief River Falls coach Jim Sims made it known he didn't like the week off when he said, "That open date didn't help at all. It took the edge off the kids. I never want to go through that again."

Miscellaneous

+ Thief River Falls skaters Tom Goddard and Scott Sabo played key roles as the Warroad Lakers opened their 1979-80 hockey season with a 7-4 win at Morden, Man. Monday as Goddard, a third-year Laker veteran scored once and Sabo, a 1979 Lincoln high school graduate, collected four assists in his Warroad debut as a right winger after a high school career as a center. The Lakers begin play in the stronger CASH league Thursday at St. Boniface and open their home schedule Saturday night against St. James.

+ Interested in attending a National Hockey League game, but don't want to face that long trip to the Twins Cities for a Minnesota North Stars game? Try the Winnipeg Jets, one of the former WHA teams now playing in the NHL. Jets remaining home dates in November include Sat., Nov. 10, Toronto; Wed., Nov. 14, Hartford; Fri., Nov. 16, Quebec; Sun., Nov. 18, Pittsburg; and Sat., Nov. 24, Vancouver. Monday through Friday game times at the Winnipeg arena is 8 p.m. On Saturdays its 7 p.m., Sunday 7:30 p.m. For additional information call 772-9491.

+ Thief River Falls opponents earning spots on the 1979 Mid-State all-conference football team were Detroit Lakes players Scott Santwire, quarterback; Dave Norby, center; Rick Melbye, slotback; Neil Sonnenberg, fullback; and Jeff Folkert, linebacker; Crosby-Ironton players Tom Zima, end; Scott Stanfield, quarterback; Steve Whitney, tackle; Tom Hendrickson, guard; and Dave Tagtmeier, halfback; and Staples players Paul Mayhew, quarterback; Jim Crawford, guard; and Greg Dravis, flanker. Park Rapids, Detroit Lakes and Crosby-Ironton all shared the Mid-State Conference football title this fall.

+ International Falls senior Peter Lucca, a sprinter in track, ended his one-year high school football career with a school-record 1,126 yards rushing this fall. His afterthought: "I should have come out earlier."

Prowlers Disappointed With 3-6 Finish

According to head coach Gene Jurgens, the numbers were right, but in reverse order as the Lincoln high school football team compiled a 3-6 record during the recently completed 1979 season. Jurgens said it should have been 6-3.

"We were disappointed with our season because we felt we were definitely better than 3-6," explained Jurgens. "I think 6-3 was definitely within possibility and we should have had that."

A shaky start, a strong mid-season run and a poor finish summed up the Thief River Falls fall campaign as the Prowlers opened with losses to Grand Forks Red River 30-8 and Detroit Lakes 13-6 before beating Crosby-Ironton 26-14, Staples 37-0, losing to Moorhead 41-14 and upsetting then No. 2-ranked Bemidji 22-21. That set the Prowlers up as a Northwest Athletic Conference title contender, but they wound up losing three straight season-ending NWAC games to Fergus Falls 28-22, East Grand Forks 20-18 and Crookston 28-8.

"We figured we had the best chance we've had for a while," said Jurgens when he talked about his preseason expectations. "But we lost three games we should have won. There was absolutely no reason for losing to Detroit Lakes, East Grand Forks and Fergus Falls. We just didn't play very well against those people. I don't know if we could have done anything about those other three losses: we just weren't ready for Red River in the opener; against Moorhead we played well but still lost; and Crookston was just better than we were."

Thief River Falls did an about-face in midseason when the Prowlers' strength went from their defense to offense. And in the end it was their defense that let them down.

"Offensively we rolled up quite a few yards," mentioned Jurgens. "We were scoring three touchdowns a game with no problem, and I think you should win most high school ball games with three touchdowns."

Multi-talented senior Bill Jury, the team's captain, led the Prowlers offensively as he accumulated 990 yards in total offense to rank third on the NWAC charts that included rushing, passing, receiving and kick return totals.

Jury's 716 yards rushing is the fifth highest single season total since the Times began keeping such records in 1970. Rob Swenson leads the list with 979 yards in 1971, with Kent Smith collecting 928 yards in 1972, Swenson 793 more in 1970 and Jeff Kosel 746 in 1977.

In addition to Jury's performances, the Thief River Falls offense featured a passing attack this year that found first-year starter Jeff Ulrich completing 26 of 65 passes for 402 yards. That's the third highest passing yardage figure for the Prowlers since 1970 when Mike Lee was 54-for-106 for 878 yards. In 1976 Mike Wiebolt was 28-for-80 for 491 yards.

"Our passing game developed as the season progressed," explained Jurgens who said the Prowlers began using their backs as receivers instead of trying to go deep to wide receivers. "By adding the screens, it helped our passing game a lot," he acknowledged.

The statistics back up that claim. Fullback John Dillon and Jury, a halfback, shared the team lead with eight pass receptions apiece. Dillon, whom Jurgens called the best fullback in the NWAC, collected 167 yards on his eight catches and Jury finished with 135.

What does the future hold for the Prowlers? The Lincoln sophomore team was unbeaten in six games this fall, but the combination sophomores-junior varsity squad was winless in three starts.

"There's a good number of sophomores and some good juniors coming," pointed out Jurgens. "But we just don't have two strong classes back-to-back. The junior class has a few good players, but it just don't have the big numbers. A lot of those sophomores will have to pay a lot for us next year."

Host Brainerd . . .

Spuds Beat Swim Team

Lincoln high school girls swimming team will close out its 1979 home schedule Thursday when the Prowlers host Brainerd in a 5 p.m. duel meet in the Franklin middle school pool.

Thief River Falls, a 101-71 loser at Moorhead yesterday, will complete its regular season schedule Tuesday at Bemidji. The defending champion Prowlers will compete in the 1979 Section 3 swimming and diving championships Nov. 20-21 at Bemidji State University.

"We were just basically outswam," reported Thief River Falls coach John Hustad after Tuesday's meet at Moorhead. "We made some improvements, but on the wrong side — our younger kids made the improvements but our older ones didn't. When your number 2 and number 3 swimmers get their fastest times but your number 1 people don't, it normally doesn't affect the meet that much. And that's what happened to us."

The Prowlers, who challenged the highly regarded Spuds before losing by a mere 87-85 margin here a month ago, managed to win just two events yesterday. Franki Kuyath took the 100-yard breaststroke with a 1:18.9 and Brenda Lund set a new pool record in winning the diving competition with 217.2 points.

In addition, Joan Glauque established a new Lincoln school record with a 1:08.5 in the 100-yard butterfly where she finished second to Moorhead standout Holly Corner.

Some Hunting Seasons Close In Minnesota

Hunting seasons on woodcock, rails and jacksnipe closed in Minnesota Nov. 4, the Department of Natural Resources noted.

Although the birds are lightly hunted in this state, considering the opportunity available, about 58,000 woodcock and 5,000 rails were taken in 1978.

Region 8AA Matches Are Set Thursday

Moorhead, East Grand Forks, Thief River Falls and Crookston will compete Thursday in the semifinals of the 1979 North Half Region 8AA girls high school volleyball tournament at Moorhead.

All four advanced through opening round quarterfinal play Saturday. Thursday's semifinals will find Thief River Falls and East Grand Forks playing at 5 p.m., with Crookston taking on Moorhead at 6:30. The winners meet in the championship match at 8 that night.

The North Half winner will host already-crowned South Half titlist St. Cloud Apollo Saturday at 2 p.m. in the Region 8AA championship match.

State Football Playoffs Reach Semifinal Games

by Larry Larson,
MSHSL Publicist

When the eighth annual Minnesota State High School League state football playoffs began last week, 20 of the 40 teams that had qualified in the five classes — AA, A, B, C and nine-man — had never previously played in the state playoffs. This week as semifinal action takes place, nine of those 20 teams are still alive.

Last Friday and Saturday's 20 quarterfinal contests resulted in the usual number of upsets and exciting games. One game was decided in the waning moments when a field goal was made and another outing resulted in a 32-point differential when a close game was expected.

This week's play is again expected to result in the same kind of excitement and unexpected action.

Class AA

Three of the four teams that have reached the semifinals in Class AA are appearing in their first state playoffs. One of them is Minneapolis Roosevelt (9-1), who last week shocked strong Stillwater 7-6. This Thursday night at 7:30 p.m. at Parade Stadium in Minneapolis, the Teddies will face Richfield (9-1), a school which has appeared in three previous state playoffs — 1972, 1975 runner-up and 1977. Richfield advanced to the semi's via a 20-0 triumph over Rochester John Marshall last Saturday evening.

Two schools making their first appearance in the playoffs will battle in the other semi-final game. Columbia Heights (9-1) will face Armstrong (9-1) of Plymouth on Friday night at 7:30 p.m. at Parade Stadium. Columbia Heights impressed in quarterfinal play when sidelining Cambridge, 40-6, while Armstrong edged past Duluth Denfeld, 29-27, last weekend.

Class AA championship game is scheduled for Fri. Nov. 16, 7:30 p.m. at Parade Stadium.

Class A

Like in Class A, three of the four schools that have reached the semifinal round have never before appeared in a state playoffs. They are undefeated Paynesville, Rochester Lourdes and Crookston. Apple Valley, making their third straight state playoff appearance, rounds out the field.

This week's Friday night 7:30 p.m. game pits Paynesville (10-0) against Apple Valley (9-1) at Rocori high school in Cold Spring and Rochester Lourdes (9-2) will face Crookston (7-3) in Rochester, on Saturday at 1:30 p.m.

Paynesville advanced by virtue of a 15-14 triumph over Paynesville while Apple Valley blanked St. Peter 17-0. Rochester Lourdes won in their quarterfinal game over Brooklyn Center by a 40-15 margin and Crookston stopped Park Rapids 24-12.

Class B

All four of the schools that have reached the second round in Class B competition are undefeated and have previously played in the state playoffs. Most noteworthy is Gaylord, who won state championships while in Class C in 1972 and 1973 and then captured the Class B title in 1975. The Spartans also appeared in last year's playoffs.

Another perennial entry is Mahnomen, who appeared previously in 1974, 1975 and 1976, but has never advanced beyond the semi-final round. Other semifinalists this year are Holdingford, a runner-up in 1973 and entrant in 1977, and Winona Cotter, who appeared for the first time last fall.

This week's Friday, 7:30 p.m. games pit Mahnomen (11-0) against Holdingford (11-0) in action at Little Falls while Gaylord (11-0) will face Winona Cotter (10-0) at Faribault. Last week, Mahnomen, who has given up but nine points all season, shut out Blackduck 35-0 and Holdingford rolled by Sleepy Eye St. Mary's 27-15. Gaylord limited Belle Plaine to a field goal in winning 19-3 while Winona Cotter whitewashed Blooming Prairie 26-0.

Class C

Two of the four semifinalists in Class C are experiencing their first state playoff appearances while the other two old hands at state playoff play have appeared three previous times. Making first trips are Tyler (11-0) and Harmony (10-0), who will face each other in Preston Friday night at 7:30 p.m. Tyler beat Lamberton 21-8 last Friday in quarterfinal play and Harmony handed Randolph their first loss of the season when winning 35-6 last Saturday.

In the other semifinal game the two schools involved have been involved in state championship games in Class C four of the past five years. And in one of those years — 1974 — Battle Lake and Bird Island-Lake Lillian played in the state title game against each other and battled through two overtimes before Battle Lake won 34-26. Neither reached the finals in 1975, but in 1976 Bird Island-Lake Lillian was runner-up. So this Friday night's 7:30 p.m. game at Willmar between unbeaten Battle Lake (11-0) and undefeated Bird Island-Lake Lillian (11-0) should be a dandy.

Nine-Man

Among the four teams that have reached the semifinals in nine-man play, only Toivola-Meadowlands is undefeated. . .and they are the only school in this year's field that has never been to the state playoffs. The others — McIntosh-Winger, Russell and Morton — have been there before. . .but never to the championship game.

This Friday's 7:30 p.m. games will find Russell (8-1) playing at Morton (9-1) and Toivola-Meadowlands (9-0) meeting McIntosh-Winger (10-1) at Walker.

In quarterfinal play last week, Russell eked out a 14-12 victory over Alden-Conger, the school which had the state's longest winning streak — 26 games — and was last year's Class C state champion. Morton, meanwhile, got a game-winning field goal from senior kicking sensation Jim Gallery in winning 25-22. Gallery, a quarterback, had booted two field goals earlier this season from 53 yards.

In lower bracket quarterfinal play, Toivola-Meadowlands, one of nine unbeaten teams still remaining, advanced with a 16-6 verdict over Kelliher and McIntosh-Winger downed Lake Park by 16-12.

WOMEN'S '500' CLUB

DOLLIE NEWLAND of Thief River Falls hit a couple of high points in her bowling career during the past few days. She finished fourth out of more than 1,000 entries in the state women's 600 tournament held at Maplewood Lanes in St. Paul; rolling games of 189-201-205-201 for a 796 scratch in the four-game event. Her 45-pin handicap for the four games gave her an 841 for the fourth place finish. She had scarcely returned from the tournament when she rolled the season's high series at Family Bowl here. Bowling in a Monday afternoon league she had games of 234-242-176 for a 652 series. It was a few pins over her previous personal high series. The tourney in St. Paul was restricted to women bowlers in the state who have bowled a series over 600 pins. She is shown delivering a strike ball in the Tuesday afternoon league and with the women's 500 club board which shows her on top with 13 series of 500 pins or higher this season.

Safe Hunting Includes Care On Highways

Hunters should start thinking "safety" long before they reach their hunting site, urged Commissioner John P. Sopsic, department of public safety.

"It's just as important for hunters and trappers to follow common sense rules of highway safety while driving as it is to follow safety precautions while hunting," said Sopsic.

According to the commissioner, in too many cases, hunting parties leave right after work and try to reach their hunting site in a non-stop, marathon drive. Driver fatigue is highly likely in this situation, so frequent stops are a good idea. On the other hand, stopping for a alcoholic drinks or "pick-me-ups" is always a bad idea when driving is involved.

An open bottle in a van, motorhome or in any motor vehicle is not only a bad idea, but strictly illegal.

Traffic may be heavy on the way to and from weekend hunting ventures. Extra care is called for when passing, especially on two-lane roads. The pass that might save a minute could cost a life.

Unpredictable weather conditions of late fall can also require extra care in driving. Frost, rain or an early snow can cause slippery road conditions and also affect windshield visibility. Decreasing speed to match weather and road conditions is a must.

Combined with low sun in the morning and evening, even light frost on windows can produce a glare capable of nearly blinding a driver. Remember to bring sunglasses for unexpected glare. Use headlights freely, whenever there is any doubt of impaired visibility, remembering to dim brights when meeting traffic. This not only lets you see better in poor visibility, but just as importantly, lets others see you.

Most hunters have strict rules about drinking while hunting and using safety precautions such as carrying their guns properly and using safety catches. Besides following these important rules of the woods, hunters should remember the equally important rules of the road while getting to the woods.

Beaver, Otter Trapping Will Start Nov. 15

Minnesota trappers should find a good population of beaver and higher fur prices when the beaver and otter trapping season opens on Nov. 15, the Department of Natural Resources said.

Beaver trapping will be open statewide except in special areas, such as state parks, where it is prohibited. But otter trapping will be confined to a north zone, shown on page 12 of the 1979 small game hunting and trapping regulations — available from county auditors, license agents and DNR offices.

There is no limit on the number of beaver that may be trapped during the season but no more than three otter may be taken. The season on otter only lasts 15 days, closing on Nov. 29, but beaver may be taken through Feb. 29, 1980.

An annual aerial census of active beaver colonies conducted by the DNR this spring revealed that beaver numbers had increased in most areas compared with last year.

A law was enacted by the 1979 legislature to allow the use of snowmobiles and all terrain vehicles in Lake of the Woods county to transport and check traps and to transport beaver and otter carcasses. However, use of the machines for these purposes is prohibited elsewhere in the state.

Officials said trappers should read all the regulations carefully before setting out their traps. They added that persons who obtained a license to trap beaver this spring must use the same license for the upcoming winter season.

Since all hunting and fishing licenses are valid from March 1 to March 1, a beaver trapper will be able to use his license through the end of the season on Feb. 29.

Special permits must be obtained from managers of some state and federal wildlife areas in order to trap, and some areas — or parts of some areas — are closed to trapping.

Northern Division champion Golden Valley Lutheran will face Southern Division representative Normandale Saturday at 1:30 p.m. at Macalester college in St. Paul in the 1979 Minnesota junior college athletic association (MJCAA) state football playoff game.

Unbeaten Golden Valley Lutheran, 8-0 in Northern Division play, completed its regular season schedule Saturday with a 28-6 victory over the Gustavus Adolphus junior varsity. Normandale shared the Southern Division crown with Inver Hills this fall, but the Lions beat the Giants in head-to-head competition to earn the post-season playoff berth.

In final week Northern Division games, Northland surprised Crookston 27-7, Brainerd outlasted Hibbing 32-28, Mesabi edged Itasca 6-3 and Vermilion defeated Fergus Falls 20-7.

State Soccer Title Contest Is Thursday

A state high school soccer champion will be named for a sixth time Thursday night when the sixth annual Minnesota State High School League-sponsored state soccer tournament culminates at Richfield senior high school.

The event began Tuesday with semifinal games scheduled at Richfield. Action included a contest between Section Four champion North St. Paul (16-3) and Robbinsdale (14-3-2), winner of Section Six, and Section Three victor, South St. Paul (15-2-1), last year's state runner-up, against Section Five titlist, Burnsville (16-4-1).

Losers on Tuesday meet for the third place trophy beginning at 6 p.m. on Thursday at Richfield. The state championship game is scheduled for 7:30 p.m. that night.

Three of the teams entered in this year's state tournament made their first ever appearances. They are North St. Paul, Robbinsdale and BBurnsville.

South St. Paul comes into the tourney with the best record and many people think the Packers are the team to beat, despite the fact that their first state tournament opponent, Burnsville, beat them 3-2 in regular season play.

The four state tournament entrants are among 52 soccer-playing high schools that participate in the sport.

"On a lark" originated in the 16th century when people set out nets at daybreak to catch the small larks, considered to be tasty breakfast fare. Since young men and women joined in on the netting enterprise and because their activities were not wholly limited to trapping the birds, the whole business took on aspects of an outdoor frolic.

Jon Swanson Is Named Cards' Football MVP

Jon Swanson, a versatile senior who played both end and quarterback on offense, along with his linebacking duties on defense, was named most valuable player on the 1979 Plummer high school football team, it was announced by Cardinals coach Gary Brantl.

Swanson had a busy fall as he led the Cardinals in scoring with five touchdowns, a two-point conversion and a safety for 34 points; topped the team defensive charts with 95 tackles; caught six passes for 80 yards and two touchdowns; completed eight of 25 passes for 73 yards and two touchdowns when regular signal caller Brad Rosten was injured; rushed for 268 yards; and punted 28 times for a 29-yard average.

His efforts earned Swanson a spot on the North Tri-County all-conference football team. And in addition to the MVP award, Swanson was also named the Cardinals' top lineman.

Senior Kevin Malwitz, an offensive end and a linebacker on defense, was also an all-conference pick this fall and he was presented with the Cardinal award by Brantl and assistant coach Bill Poole for his hard work and hustle, both in games and during practice.

Malwitz' 1979 figures included a team-leading 19 pass receptions for 229 yards; two touchdowns and four two-point conversions for 20 points; four pass interceptions; three fumble recoveries; and 90 tackles, which ranked him a close second to Swanson in that category. He shared the team lead in interceptions and fumble recoveries.

Other special awards went to Alan Mattison, top back; Rosten, most improved; and Dave Haugen, top rookie.

Mattison, a senior, led the Cardinals in rushing with 642 yards on 129 carries. He scored three touchdowns and 24 points; collected 62 tackles; and tied Malwitz for the team lead in fumble recoveries with three.

Rosten, although he missed several games because of an injury, still passed for 320 yards, completing 23 of 56 attempts. The junior quarterback passed for five touchdowns and scored four times himself for 24 points.

Rosten and Ken Fisher were named co-captains of the 1980 Plummer football team.

Seniors Blair Gustafson and Clifton Franklund also figured in the 1979 Plummer statistical charts. Gustafson rushed for 572 yards, scored three touchdowns for 18 points and was credited with 66 tackles on defense. Franklund caught six passes for 126 yards and three touchdowns.

Jay Brekke matched Gustafson with 66 tackles and scored eight points on a touchdown and a two-point conversion.

Kevin Gerardy completed the Plummer scoring with a touchdown and he shared the team lead in interceptions with Malwitz by picking off four passes.

Plummer turned things around the second half of the 1979 season when the Cardinals won four of their final five games after losing four straight season-opening games, finishing 4-5.

The Cardinals opened with losses to Mentor 12-2, McIntosh-Winger 24-0, Middle River 44-14 and Oklee 46-0. Plummer broke into the win column with a 56-26 homecoming win over Clearbrook, lost to Gonvick 30-14 and then closed with wins over Goodridge 24-16, Grygla 28-0 and Erskine 14-6.

Offensively the Cardinals finished with 2,719 yards, with 2,179 yards coming on the ground and 540 more coming on 40 pass receptions.

Illegal Wildlife Imports Profitable

Sales of illegally imported wildlife in the U.S. now run into "tens of millions of dollars a year," earning for an international network of smugglers profit margins comparable to those in the drug trade, according to the current issue of National Wildlife magazine.

Illegal trade in products made from wildlife, such as ocelot fur jackets and crocodile shoes, is even greater in volume, reports the National Wildlife Federation's bimonthly publication.

"The most sobering fact is that much of this traffic involved protected wildlife — including many species whose existence is threatened or endangered," the magazine observes. "The rarer the creature, the higher the price. And the higher the potential profit, the greater the incentive to smuggle."

As examples of rare and valuable wildlife often smuggled into the U.S., the magazine cites the unusual hyacinthine macaws from the jungles of southern Brazil, which bring as much as $8,000 apiece. And a shipment of 375 threatened Indonesian cockatoos seized two years ago was valued at $750,000.

There is a "seemingly insatiable appetite" in Europe, the U.S. and Japan for exotic wildlife, and the market is supplied by an international network of poachers, middlemen, brokers and dealers, says the magazine report. "The markups are staggering," the report adds "and the risks, at least in the past, have been low."

Most of the illegal wildlife comes from the jungles and tropical rain forests of Asia, South America and Africa. For impoverished natives, collecting mammals, birds and reptiles is a source of income. Dealers in Bangkok, Singapore, Barranquilla (Colombia), Asuncion (Paraguay) and certain other cities buy up the harvest for a fraction of the final retail price, and they, in turn, supply dealers and brokers in Europe, the U.S. and Japan.

How are the animals smuggled into the U.S.? Many younger animals are crammed into small crates and die in transit. Endangered radiated tortoises from Madgascar were found under the false bottom of a crate containing poisonous snakes. Rare Australian parrots were concealed in a shipment of race horses. Parrots were found stuffed in nylon stockings and stashed in automobile door panels.

"Up to ten animals may perish for every one that reaches its destination alive," National Wildlife estimates.

Most often, illicit wildlife and their products come into the U.S. shielded by false or misleading documents, and this is what makes the illegal trade so difficult to control. Clark Bavin, Chief of the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service's law enforcement division explained to National Wildlife that with just 210 agents and 35 inspectors at work it's nearly impossible to stem the flow of illegal imports. "We suspect that there's a large volume of illegal traffic that we're nowhere near approaching," Bavin said.

In addition, penalties for those animal smugglers who are caught have been little more than hand slaps, the magazine reports. There are 584 convictions for such crimes in 1977, all of which were classified as misdemeanors, with fines totalling just $31,117. Jail sentences totalled only 2,015 days.

Now, however the word is out that the U.S. is cracking down on animal smugglers. The Fish and Wildlife Service, the Justice Department, and the Customs Service are all stepping up their efforts to catch and convict smugglers, brokers and dealers.

Kenneth Berlin, who runs the Justice Department's wildlife enforcement program, told National Wildlife that in the future, U.S. attorneys will be pressing for tougher sentences for wildlife smugglers. And the Fish and Wildlife Service is preparing new regulations requiring all wildlife importers and exporters to get federal licenses. That way, a conviction for illegal trade could cause a license revocation and put the dealer out of business.

President Carter announced in his August environmental message that he would submit to Congress a bill strengthening the federal government's power to control illegal smuggling of wildlife and wildlife products. In addition, Carter announced the establishment of a Department of Justice "strike force," to crack down on violators, especially those trading in protected wildlife species.

With the risks of conviction and punishment much greater, officials now hope illicit wildlife trade will cease to be such a lucrative international crime. Until then, the earth's beleaguered wildlife will be helpless victims. As Joseph O'Kane, a U.S. customs agent, told National Wildlife, "You can't equate wildlife smuggling solely in terms of dollars. You must also think in terms of when something becomes extinct."

Trapper To Give Program At Plummer

Government trapper Ernie Zahn will present his program on furbearing animals at the Plummer public school on Friday, November 16 at 8:30 a.m.

If it grows a fur coat and is a native of the upper midwest, Ernie Zahn more than likely has its pelt. His collection contains examples of everything from the smallest sought after fur-bearer to the largest.

Zahn has been with the North Dakota fish and game service for 28 years. His responsibilities were in the area of predator control, which involved the control and restraint of any animals causing destruction to crops or livestock or suspected of disease. He has also given technical assistance with workshops on bird and rodent control and on rabies detection.

Ernie Zahn is touring the upper midwest under the management of the Dakota Assemblies, Box 804, West Fargo, N.D. 58078.

Gophers Host Hockey Coach Clinic Saturday

University of Minnesota head hockey coach Brad Buetow will hold a clinic for coaches of all levels Saturday, November 10. The clinic will be divided between Williams Arena and Bell Museum of natural history on the U of M campus.

Then from 3:30-7:30 in the basement of Stub & Herb's (Washington-Oak St.) is a social hour preceding the Gophers' 7:30 face-off time with Colorado College in Williams Arena.

UND Sports Teams Draw Over 1 Million

Three high visibility sports at the University of North Dakota — basketball, football and hockey — have drawn 1,278,018 fans in the last seven seasons, according to figures announced today by the UND athletic department.

UND football the past seven seasons, including 1979, has drawn an average of 8,465 in 32 home games on total attendance of 270,873. UND Memorial Stadium, which was renovated in recent years, has a capacity of 15,000. The 1978 season was the best of seven for average attendance, 10,380. UND averaged 8,410 for five home games the past season.

Hockey, played in the 5,630-seat Winter Sports Center, which was opened Nov. 2, 1972, has crawn 610,478 in 132 games, an average of 4,025. Last season 117,723 attended 22 games, an average of 5,351, including a two record-setting crowds of 6,000.

Sioux basketball, which has enjoyed great success under the expert tutelage of Dave Gunther for nine seasons, annually ranks among the nation's NCAA Division II basketball attendance leaders, frequently in the top five or six.

In the past seven UND cage seasons 396,667 have attended 103 games in the UND Fieldhouse, an average of 3,851. In the last six seasons, the average is an even more impressive 4,005 per game. As many as 8,000 have packed the UND fieldhouse for games. The fieldhouse was opened in 1951.

Few of the nation's NCAA Division II members can match those figures, according to UND athletic director Carl R. Miller.
